The KING OF DIAMONDS

By LOUIS TRACY

Author of:
"The Wings of the Morning," "The Pillar of Light," Etc.
Copyrighted by McLeod & Allen, Toronto.

As for the double transfer, he distinctly remembered copying letters dealing with several such transactions at the time of the coal company's conversion into a limited liability concern.
He was early to bed, and his rest was not disturbed by dreams. He rose long before the ordinary residents. Deferring his breakfast, he walked to Fleet Street, and purchased copies of morning and evening papers for the whole of the week.
He could thus enjoy the rare luxury of seeing himself as others saw him. He read perfunctory descriptions of the scene in court, and found himself variously described as "pert," "masterful," "impetuous," "highly intelligent," "endowed with a thin veneer of education," and "affected."
Philip could afford to laugh at the unfavorable epithets. Up to the age of thirteen, he had been trained in a first-rate lycée, and his work was supervised by his mother, a woman of very great culture.

He spoke French as well as English, and spoke both admirably. He knew some Greek and Latin, was well advanced in arithmetic, and had a special penchant for history and geography.
It was in the glowing articles which appeared during his imprisonment that he took the keenest interest. Oddly enough, one ingenious correspondent blundered on to a cleric. Gifted with an analytical mind, he had reasoned that the diamond laden meteor fell during the extraordinary storm of the nineteenth, and the Meteorological Department in Victoria Street helped him by describing the center of the disturbance as situated somewhat to the east of the London Hospital.
This writer had actually interviewed a member of the staff of that institution who amused himself by noting barometrical vagaries. His instrument recorded an extraordinary increase of pressure soon after ten o'clock on the night of the storm.
"Alas!" added the scribe, "it did not indicate where the meteor fell, and not policeman, bus driver or railway official can be found who observed anything beyond a phenomenal electrical display and a violent downpour of rain."
That was too close to be pleasant, and Philip was glad to hear from M. Foret that the solicitors, after telephoning to ask for some particular concerning Mr. Anson, were giving prompt attention to his instructions.
"What did you tell them?" asked Philip.
"I said that you impressed me as the kind of young gentleman who would pay well for services given unsparingly."
"Did that satisfy them?"
"Perfectly. Such clients do not abound in these hard times."
Three hours later, a letter came for "Philip Anson, Esq., by hand. It was from the solicitors, and read:
"We are in receipt of your esteemed instructions. Although Saturday is a day

A PRETTY LINGERIE DRESS.

Lingerie gowns are worn more than anything else at the open-air horse shows, race meets and polo matches, where exclusive society congregates in force. Moulton embroideries are extensively employed in the development of these delightfully cool frocks which are not invariably all white, as the vogue for colors this season has resulted in many charming combinations of white embroidered with pale blue or old rose, azure or mottled blue, the different green, maize and brown.

on which it is difficult to do business, we lost no time in inspecting the premises in the Mile End Road, accompanied by a surveyor. We found that the news stand approximately on an area of three thousand two hundred superficial feet, while the shop tenanted by O'Brien had a frontage on the main road of eighteen feet, with a probable depth of thirty or thirty-five feet. The owner of this shop, a resident in the neighborhood, and he will accept four hundred and fifty pounds for the freehold.
"We were fortunate in finding the managing director of the Cardiff and Havre Coal Company, Ltd., at his office. Although the company requires the news for the purpose of a depot, they are not unwilling to sell, with a stipulation that the premises shall not be used by any competing company during a period of twenty years from the date of transfer. We stated that the site was required for a philanthropic purpose, but the latter stipulation is insisted on. The price asked is two thousand two hundred pounds, which we consider excessive, there being a very adequate approach. Moreover, we wish to point out that O'Brien shop does not adjoin the news, and it would be necessary to purchase two other houses to make the entire property a compact one. However, adhering to the letter of your instructions, we have pleasure in informing you that the two properties can be acquired with very little delay, for two thousand six hundred and fifty pounds. The legal and other charges will not exceed one hundred and fifty pounds. We trust, etc."

Philip immediately wrote:
"I am greatly obliged to your promptitude in the matter of Johnson's news and the shop. I enclose check herewith for two thousand eight hundred pounds. The purchase of the other houses can stand over for a few days."
This he dispatched by special messenger. In a few minutes he held a formal receipt.
A telegram came for him. It was from M. Abingdon.
"Can see you after six at my house." Then Philip enjoyed his first real breathing space during hours of delightful madnes in which little delay for two thousand six hundred and fifty pounds. The legal and other charges will not exceed one hundred and fifty pounds. We trust, etc."

It happened, by mere chance, that since Mrs. Anson's funeral no one had been interred on one side of the small space purchased for her. There were three vacant plots here, and a surprised official told Philip there would be no difficulty in acquiring these for the purpose of erecting a suitable monument.
The boy filled in the necessary forms there and then. It was some consolation to know that he could perpetuate memory in this way, though he had forgotten another project which should keep her name revered through the ages. On the site of Johnson's news shop stood the Mary Anson Home for Destitute Boys. He would build a place where those who were willing to work and learn would be given a chance, and not driven, starving and desperate, to pick up an existence in the gutter.
He was too young to devise all the details of such a splendid institution, but he had got the idea and would possess the money. He would leave the practical part of the undertaking to older heads.

The essential feature was that generations yet unborn should learn to love and honor the name of Mary Anson. Provided that were achieved, he knew the work would be successful.
Soon after leaving the cemetery he came face to face with Bradley, the policeman, who was in plain clothes, and walking with a lady, obviously Mrs. Bradley, judging by the matronly manner in which she wheeled a perambulator containing a chubby infant.
"Well, I'm blowed!" cried the policeman, "who would have thought of meeting you! I looked in at the news last night, but you had gone. Some one is looking after you pretty well, eh?"
He cast a patronizing eye over Philip's garments, which were, of course, considerably smarter in appearance than those in which the constable had seen him on Thursday evening.
"Yes," said Philip, "I am in good hands now."
"They haven't given you a watch?"
This anxiously.
"No, I am watchless."
"That's right. You'll have one soon. The inspector has your address. By the way, he wants to know your Christian name."
"Philip."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the inner portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by a systematic course of treatment by the use of a powerful medicine which acts on the inner portion of the ear, and where it is entirely absorbed, it restores the hearing to its normal condition, hearing will be restored forever, unless the cause is caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the middle ear.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Sent by mail.

FRANCE HAS A PURE DRINK LAW

Decree States What Are Unadulterated Liquors and Defines Them Very Clearly.

Paris, Aug. 21.—A decree published in the "Journal Officiel" institutes clearly the standard which must be considered by French law as beer, cider, vinegar, liqueurs and syrups. Beer in France must now contain no antiseptic save sulphurous anhydrides, bisulphates, and such other substances as may later be authorized. As regards cider, its effervescence due to alcoholic fermentation and not to the mixture with it of any other substance, is declared lawful by the ministries of agriculture and of the interior on the authority of the state board of hygiene and of the Academy of Medicine. But it must be sold as "colored vinegar," so that it cannot be confounded with vinegar made from wood and artificially colored with wine vinegar.
All "liqueurs" must be made out of aromatic alcohols rendered such by the maceration of vegetable substances, the addition of the product of the distillation of these substances, or by a combination of these various methods. In all other cases they must be called "liqueurs de fantaisie." Likewise, in the case of syrups, which must be made by the introduction of the juice of fruits into sugar dissolved in water, an exception is made in the case of lemon and orange syrups, which can be composed of sugar syrup with the addition of citric or tartaric acid, and with their aromatic flavoring by vegetable substances, but not by chemical extracts. An exception is also made in the case of orange syrup, which is composed of sugar and an extract of almonds, and in that of moka syrup, which contains an extract of coffee. All other products are to be marked "sirops de fantaisie."
It is also forbidden to sell under the name of cognac any extract from any other than the Charentes or as champagne a sparkling wine, however good, made from grapes from any other department than the Champagne region.

Philip Teate, the well known guide, is in the city making arrangements for the opening of the big game season. He reports game very plentiful round his hunting ground at Lepreux, and anticipates a very successful season. He has already booked a number of engagements.

"How's Your Stomach?"

is the way people in China say "Good Morning." The greeting of almost every nation is an inquiry after health. The Chinese have the root of the matter. A strong stomach is the foundation. Look after this organ and the general health cares for itself. Man is so constituted it cannot be otherwise. It is the mission of

THE PLAYGROUND ASSOCIATION

Programme of the Great Congress to Open in New York on Sept. 8th.

According to letters which have been sent out by Luther Halsey Gulick, New York, president of the association, the second annual congress of the Playground Association of America, which will be held in New York, Sept. 8-12, at the American Museum of Natural History, will be the most important demonstration of the vital relation of play to the life of the nation, which has ever been held in the United States. The literary program will include addresses of the leading promoters of the playground movement, educators and philanthropists and the governor of the state of New York.
Play demonstrations will be held on roof playgrounds, in public school playgrounds and park playgrounds; also visits will be made to public baths, recreation piers. A Harvest Festival will be the closing feature of the congress. Special problems of national importance will be considered. In response to an invitation from Mayor McClellan of New York, the mayors of many of the leading cities have already indicated their intention of being present, and others have written that they will send delegations from their respective cities.

PRELIMINARY PROGRAM.

According to the preliminary program, addresses will be given on the evening of Sept. 10, by Gov. Charles E. Hughes, Dr. Woods Hutchinson and Dr. Lester B. Gulick.
The following evening, the speakers will be Dr. William H. Maxwell, superintendent of schools, New York; Prof. C. W. Hetherington, whose subject will be University Extension Physical Training, and Joseph Lee of Boston, who will give an address on A. Home Playgrounds.

The program as planned for the afternoon of Sept. 8, the opening day, will be Games Every Boy and Girl Should Know, George E. Johnson, New York; Municipal Camp, Charles H. Hetherington; Landscape Gardening in Playgrounds, Charles Mulford Robinson; National Festival in Chicago During the Past Year, Miss Annie Hofer.
On the evening of the same day the addresses will be as follows: Roof Playgrounds, C. B. J. Snyder; What the Playgrounds Can Do for the Older Girls, Miss Beniah Kennard; The Intelligent Opera, David I. Kelly; Kindergarten, Miss Patty S. Hill.

Wednesday morning, Sept. 9.—Winter Organization of Playgrounds, Arthur Leand; The Playground Movement as a Necessary Supplement to the Child Labor Movement, Owen Lovejoy; Some expensive apparatus, Dr. E. H. Arnold; Recent Playground Development in Chicago, E. B. DeGroot.

Wednesday evening.—Relation of Playgrounds to Juvenile Delinquency, Allen Burns; The Playground for Rural Schools, Prof. Royal Melmon; The Play Festival in the Country, Myron T. Scudder; The Play Movement as a Phase of Social Reform, Mrs. Harriet Heller.
Thursday morning.—A Normal Course in Play, Prof. C. W. Hetherington; State Law, Joseph Lee; Athletics for Boys, David I. Kelly; Kindergarten, Miss Patty S. Hill.

Wednesday morning.—Story-telling in the Playgrounds, Miss Maud Summers; Work in Institutions, Miss Sadie American; Athletics for Girls, Miss Josephine Beider; Letter to Girls, Miss Josephine Beider.
Friday morning.—Conference of city officials presided over by Mayor McClellan for conference of games and play festivals for country children, and conference of supervisors of playgrounds.
This is merely a hint as to what the program will be but even from this brief outline, one will readily realize that the congress cannot help but prove one of the most important sessions ever held in the country.

EARLY CHRISTIANS IN CHINA

That Christianity should have been recognized Mongolian religion, favored by the Emperors of China, before the savages of Northern Europe had embraced the faith, upsets the conventional ideas of religious history. The famous Nestorian monument is dated 781 A. D. It was erected after the Christians had flourished in China for nearly 300 years. Lost, regained, forgotten and rediscovered, the shaft establishes the tenets of that ancient church, the favors of Emperors, the rise of Buddhism as an arch enemy and even the customs of the Christian worshippers beyond a reasonable doubt.
Hardly less remarkable is the story of how the facsimile of the Nestorian stone found its way to New York. Visitors to the Metropolitan Museum will see a copy so exact that they might be looking at the original in China.
To obtain it, Fritz Von Helm, a Dane, 26 years old, journeyed 1,300 miles into the interior of China to Santsu, the ancient capital of the empire, bribed priests, hoodwinked missionaries, engaged in intrigues with the Chinese government through the Russian Embassy, faced the danger of seeing his work destroyed many times, and finally brought the replica to New York, where he had obtained the funds which made his exploit possible.
