

BROOKVILLE BOY CASE TAKEN UP

Habeas Corpus in Matter of Youngster Sentenced to Two Years.

A writ of habeas corpus, returnable at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, was issued yesterday afternoon by Judge J. A. Barry for the release from the Boys' Industrial Home, of Robert Earl, Brookville. Motion for the writ was made by J. Starr Tait, attorney for the boy's father, who contended that the lad was illegally committed to the institution.

J. Starr Tait in his appeal for a habeas corpus writ, contended that the magistrate's sentence had not been legal, as the charge against the lad was one of simple assault, punishable under the criminal code with a fine of $20 or two months' imprisonment, but not punishable by a sentence to the reformatory. Judge Barry upheld the contention that the lad should be released and issued the writ.

Has Your Husband Got Indigestion?

Nothing creates domestic discord quicker than an attack of indigestion, and nothing gets rid of indigestion quicker than Bismarck Magnesia. No man can be so sweet tempered, good natured or even fair minded when his stomach is constantly sick, sour, gassy, and upset with after-dinner distress. If your husband has stomach trouble, neither could nor pity him, but help him by seeing that he has a supply of Bismarck Magnesia (either powder or tablets) constantly at hand. A teaspoonful of powder or two tablets taken in a little water after meals will instantly neutralize the acids in his stomach that are causing his trouble and he can enjoy his meals with no more fear of indigestion. Bismarck Magnesia is the special form of Magnesia used by thousands to neutralize stomach acidity and quickly overcome indigestion—do not confuse with Milk, Carbowater, Broom or Citrate of Magnesia. Insist on Bismarck. Its action is safe, prompt and sure and it can be obtained at small cost from any reliable drug store.

PREMIER PLEADS MARITIME CAUSE

Delivers Strong Appeal for Cooperation of Western Provinces.

The convention of the Association of Canadian Clubs closed with the association banquet last night. Premier Veniot was the principal speaker and was given the greatest ovation of the convention. He made a plea for the use of Canadian ports for Canadian trade and told of the bright prospects for New Brunswick in its hydro development, saying that 180,000 horsepower would be developed at Grand Falls and that 200,000 potential horsepower was found in the tidal waters of the Pettaquamscutt River, which had just been surveyed.

He spoke also of his election to office by an English-speaking majority as being typical of the harmony in which the two races worked together in New Brunswick and urged that similar harmony prevail throughout the Dominion. The Premier considered the organization in the Dominion able to overcome the sectionalism which was only too marked today and he asked the delegates to take back, especially to central Canada, the message of the east.

Greetings From U.S.
Mrs. J. H. Huddleston, of Orono, Me., brought the greetings of President Coolidge and of Governor Baxter of the State of Maine and a resolution of appreciation for these greetings was moved by Major Fred J. Ney, of Winnipeg, and seconded by Mrs. McLachlan, of Toronto.

In his address at the association banquet, which closed the convention, Horace A. Porter, retiring president, expressed the hope that the visiting delegates would take back to their homes greater knowledge of eastern Canada and greater sympathy and friendship for the people. He asked them to recall that the Loyalist founders were very stubborn people with decided opinions, unpopular in the country they left. Something of their temper was found in their descendants. Of those of British descent but not Loyalist, he said they had lived by the sea or near the sea and were possessed of an independence, self-reliance and freedom of speech and thought which was characteristic of those who breathed the ocean's freshness.

"We have our own aspirations," he said, "and we want to be an integral part of Canada, known and loved."

He asked the visitors to take that message back with them and then he introduced Premier Veniot as being of an older race, Acadian, a race which Power Possibilities.

Premier Veniot said the province was still young and only starting its manufacture, but the number already in existence in St. John, had been a surprise even to the citizens. Possibly the province was soon to take on a new era. It had adopted the principle of hydro development and already eleven miles from St. John was a hydro plant supplying 110 miles of territory. At Grand Falls 180,000 horsepower had been developed and the engineers had just finished a survey of the tidal power at the Pettaquamscutt River, which was found would develop 200,000 horsepower.

When these developments were completed the province would have sufficient hydro power to encourage the investment of all the capital that could possibly be brought to the province and then would begin the real development of New Brunswick. It was a province large in territory, small in population but tremendous in its possibilities. There was cause for great optimism with regard to New Brunswick and Canada as a whole. If there were fewer knockers and more boosters the prospects would be brighter.

Reassures Premier.
C. R. MacIntosh, of North Battleford, Sask., said Premier Veniot need not give much thought to the newspaper clipping he quoted as it did not represent the feeling of Canada. The question of caring for Canadian exports and the question of tariff, Mr. MacIntosh said were stirring problems at the present time. He spoke of the had lived here before even the Loyalists.

Premier Veniot was given such an ovation as had not been accorded to any other speaker. Ringing cheers greeted him and then the whole assemblage rose and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

There were cries of "No, no" from the audience when Premier Veniot said it seemed to the east that central Canada held this part of the country to be of very little importance to the Dominion as a whole. Premier Veniot said surely there was not this feeling in the hearts of those who had visited these provinces, but he wished to read from a clipping from the Ottawa Journal which would bear out his statement.

Thanks Clubs Can Help.
He read the clipping to the effect that the taxpayers of the Dominion were not to be burdened for the sake of people in the west and the Maritime Provinces who wanted to be nursed along no matter what the cost.

This article, he said, had been written in connection with the discussion of the suggestion that some of the Canadian National Railway property in the United States should be sold. The sentiment expressed in that clipping he did not believe to be broad, but he wished the Canadian Club delegates to take back the word that the people of the Maritime Provinces were not beggars.

He asked if it was any wonder that the people of the Maritimes felt that they were not properly looked after or properly understood by central Canada. Canadian Clubs were the one organization that could cure that feeling, he believed.

The Maritime Provinces required not only sympathy but help if they were to play the part he believed they were destined to play. They possessed the two harbors on British territory in the east which were open the season round and they did blame Canadians who allowed trade to go through United States ports. It was claimed the routing of freight was the action of Governments but it depended to a large extent on importers and exporters and unless the people got busy and interested themselves the ports of the Maritime Provinces were going to go down.

Gives Statistics.
He quoted statistics to show that Montreal, a port open only seven months of the year, had exports valued at $178,700,000 and imports of $173,900,000; while Vancouver had exports of $62,000,000 and imports of $47,000,000; St. John, the third largest shipping port of Canada in business handled had over $85,000,000 in exports and $20,600,000 in imports. The total of Canadian exports were reckoned in many millions and the total of imports was $80,000,000 and three-quarters of that trade did not go through Canadian ports. What affected St. John affected Montreal and Vancouver also. At conventions many speeches were heard but what was needed was for people to practise what they preached. There had been pleas of unity but there would never be a united Canada while these conditions existed.

Power Possibilities.
Premier Veniot said the province was still young and only starting its manufacture, but the number already in existence in St. John, had been a surprise even to the citizens. ONTARIO VISITORS TOUR MARITIMES

Canadian Club Delegates Leave For Halifax, P. E. I. and Elsewhere

A 12 days' trip through the Maritime Provinces was planned by the delegates from Ontario to the convention of the Association of Canadian Clubs which closed here last evening. The party, consisting of 20, left last night on the C. N. R. train for Halifax, from which they will proceed to Charlottetown, where they propose to spend the weekend. From there they will go to Quebec and Montreal, taking in St. Anne de Beaupre en route. They will visit Ottawa and then return to their homes.

Much pleasure was expressed by these tourists at the scenery in and around St. John. They were regretful that so much business hindered them from seeing more of the beauties of this section of the province. Several said that they were planning to make this their objective another season for the family holiday trip.

In the party going from here were Mrs. S. A. Greening, Miss Margaret Reid, Miss Shaw, Mrs. T. Stewart, Miss Bell, B. Ilsey, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. James Dunlop, Messrs. Campbell and Burden, of Hamilton; J. R. Payne, Mrs. A. W. MacLachlan, of Toronto; H. C. Nelson and Mrs. L. Dunfield, of Chapeau, Ont., and several others.

WEMBLEY COUNTS ITS 11TH MILLION

Restaurant Crowds Break Dishes at Rate of 5,000 Pieces Daily.

London, Sept. 12.—The British Empire Exhibition recently received its eleven-millionth visitor, the last million having arrived within eight days, charges of peace a head, earned its millionth sixpence a few days ago and has therefore collected for the charities in which Her Majesty is specially interested the substantial sum of $125,000.

Taking one day with another, about 70,000 people a day patronise the restaurants at Wembley, and it appears that they are somewhat better fed. Every day they consume, on the average, 1,132 cups, 4,140 saucers, 5,614 plates and 8,233 oddments. To these must be added glasses at the rate of about 40,000 a week.

On September 1 a large party arrived from Guernsey, in the Channel Islands. It brought with it banners inscribed "The Second Norman Invasion from Guernsey, first invasion 1066, second invasion 1924." The Channel Islands, owned by Duke of Normandy in the tenth century, have been united with the English Crown since William I came over; the inhabitants consider that England belongs to them rather than they to England, and are accustomed to give the royal toast as "The Duke of Normandy, His Majesty King George."

BLANDFORD BELL IS SILENT NOW

Another Age-old Legendary Custom in England is Abolished.

London, Sept. 12.—Another age-old legendary custom of the Dorset countryside, dear to the heart of Thomas Hardy, has passed, and the "Blandford Bell," which has tolled twice a day without break for centuries, will be heard no more.

Blandford, a tiny municipality in the heart of the Hardy country, is rich in ancient tradition, and one of its oldest customs was the daily ringing of a time bell in the church tower at 1 o'clock in the day and again in the evening.

The custom goes back to a period when mechanical timepieces were not found among the possessions of the humble natives, who measured time by the sun's course or were apprised of the hour by the ringing of a public bell. Tradition has it that this Blandford bell was sounded at those hours when the laborer should break or cease his daily toil.

A month or two ago a new rector came. He had no objection to the ancient custom, but church funds are not what they were, and the ringing entails an expenditure of about $25 a year. The rector argues that if the town wants to continue the practice the cost should come out of public money. The ringing has therefore stopped, but the rector is agreeable to its continuance if the town council foot the bill.

The council debated the matter long and anxiously, and by a majority of one decided to let matters stand as they are.

GIVES REWARD TO FREE MILK FUND

Little Lola Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Harris of King street east, received $1 recently as a reward for finding a bank book on the street and returning it to the owner. The little girl, instead of spending the money as many children would have done, remembered the little babies who need aid so sorely, and she decided to give the money to this worthy cause. Her welcome contribution was handed over to the milk fund yesterday, and her people should inspire others to help along this splendid work.
