THREE WOMEN ON THE JURY

Trial of Madeline Oberchain, Charged With Murder, is Begun in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Feb. 10.—Madeline Oberchain, charged with the murder of her sweetheart, J. Belmont Kennedy, yesterday heard the first testimony and saw the first evidence against her. The testimony came from Dr. A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon, and J. D. Kennedy, father of the slain man, both of whom testify as to his death from a gunshot wound inflicted as he walked up the street on the night of Aug. 5 last.

LIQUOR INSPECTOR HAS EXCITING TIME

An incident which resembles the old days of feuds between revenue officers and those engaged in illicit liquor business was said to have occurred on Wednesday about noon when one of the inspectors made a seizure of a club bag containing four bottles of liquor. He was proceeding along Paradise Row, the story goes, when he noticed two men carrying a value and a club bag. He stopped them and asked to see what was in them, explaining that he was a liquor inspector. The man carrying the bag turned it over to be opened, and it was found to contain three bottles of whiskey and one of brandy. The other man in the meantime kept right on his way, but was caught by the inspector, and his bag taken from him. At this point a third man rushed up and grabbed the big bag, claiming that it belonged to him, and when the inspector refused to let it go, struck him in the chest, calling in the second man for help. The inspector called to a man across the street, but he refused to come to his aid. The man who is said to have owned the liquor escaped with the larger bag. Charges have been laid against the men said to be implicated.

Mrs. Howard Cameron.
The death of Mrs. Howard Cameron, aged seventy-one, occurred at her home in St. John on Monday. The funeral services were conducted on Wednesday by Rev. R. W. Hopkins. Among those surviving are three daughters living in St. John, Mrs. William Foster, Mrs. Campbell and Mrs. F. G. Carleton.

Busy King George.
When at Sandringham his majesty leads a busy life. Several hours daily are spent over his correspondence; for he opens practically every letter himself, and to most of them dictates the answers, while scores of messages fly daily over the telephone wires which link him with London.

Naturally, however, his chief work and interest lie in his estate. He loves to ramble over it, to look in at stables or kennels, chat with his groom or tenants, or drop in casually for a friendly gossip with a cottager. He likes, too, to have the house full of kindred spirits with whom he can drop ceremonial and play the hospitable squirrel. Motor excursions, billiards, cards, and in summer time, tennis and croquet fill the day happily for a man of his simple tastes. But above all, his fun gives him the most pleasure at Sandringham. Here he has one of the finest sporting estates in the country. Over ten thousand pheasants are reared annually and, with wild duck, teal, and widgeon in addition, the game-room, though it holds 7,000 head, is often full. When he sallies forth, one of ten guns and with an army of beaters in their Royal blue blouses, low-crowned hats and brown gaiters, for a day among the pheasants, King George is at his happiest, except, perhaps, when, on his birthday, he is dispensing hospitality to hundreds of poor children and himself helping to wait upon his little guests.

LADIES' AID TEA IN THE PARSONAGE

The Ladies' Aid of the Portland Methodist church held a successful tea yesterday at the parsonage in Paradise Row. From 3 o'clock until 9 o'clock the ladies in charge were busy receiving the patrons and serving tea. The home was attractively arranged, and the cheerful fires in the open grates gave an added charm. The occasion was a very pleasant social event as well as a financial success. Mrs. James Stephenson was the general convener, and the members of the reception committee were Mrs. H. B. Clark, Mrs. E. N. Rowley and Mrs. R. H. Folkins. The tea was served in the dining-room. Pink carnations in a large silver vase were the central ornament of the tea table, and smaller vases with pink sweet peas were prettily arranged at the four corners. Mrs. M. E. Grass and Mrs. Duncan Lingley presided at the tea table, and the replenishers were Mrs. Herbert Ring and Mrs. Charles McConnell. Those who served were Mrs. Blanchard Harris, Mrs. Allan Lingley, Mrs. R. Thomas, Mrs. John Kennedy, Mrs. H. Bromfield and Mrs. L. Munro. Among those who assisted were Mrs. McKeith, Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. H. Cunningham, Miss Sarah Armstrong, Mrs. A. C. Powers, Miss C. Powers, Miss C. McIntyre and Mrs. Irons. The tickets were in charge of Mrs. A. J. Myles. Mrs. William McIntosh attended the door, and Mrs. Herbert Brown acted as usher. A substantial amount was raised for the funds of the aid.
