They do not even insinuate that any other candidate is the nominee of a clique. They did not seek the nomination, and it was only after much urging, and because they felt that the commission plan should be inaugurated by its friends, that they agreed to become candidates. Who are the friends of the plan? They are the citizens who by an enormous majority voted a year ago for its adoption. Logically the same people should vote for the four men who represent the control of the same people should vote for the four men who represent the control of fact, courties that any other candidate is the nomination. As a matter of fact, courties that a single nationality. The Turk, the Hindoo and the Jap face death with as much fortitude as any European or American. The splendid fact in connection with the wreck of the Titanic is the chivalry of the men, who gladly reliminguished their chance of life that the women and the children might be saved. There is as true heroism in that as in any act of sacrifice recorded in the long. the same people should vote for the four men who represent the commission idea—Messrs. Schofield, Agar, Allan and Allingham. These candidates have not introduced personal issues in the campaign, nor have those who are supporting them. There is no doubt about their ability to conduct the affairs of the city under the new charter. They ought to be elected tomorrow and given a fair opportunity to prove that the new system is all that has been claimed for it by its friends. The most determined efforts have been made and will be made tomorrow to switch here and there a vote.

The new or the dold methods at City was a true heroism in that as in any act of sacrifice recorded in the long roll of heroic deeds the centuries have handed down in human history. We may admire the man who meets his fate with unconquerable fortitude, but we are thrilled with a feeling more profound when there is in his act the element of unselfish sacrifice. If that same spirit, manifested in the moment of supreme peril, were made to permeate the affairs of common life, this sad old world would be transformed.

The new or the dold methods at City was ALL PITY HIM. efforts have been made and will be made tomorrow to switch here and there a vote to some other candidate, but the friends of the four men named should stand firm.

The best interests of the city will be served by having commissioners who believe in and have been supporters of the lieve in and have been supporters of the augurated by its friends. commission plan. Mr. Neville contends that there is no more excuse for a muddy road in the well settled rural parts of the country than for unpaved streets in cities. It is a question of proper drainage and construction. He says that in twenty years the townships of Ontario have spent $19,000,000 in cash and constructed value of state. and $22,000,000 in estimated value of stat-ute labor upon the roads, and most of inflict injustice on the Portestant minthem are no better than before, the reason being that the money has been ignorsubmitted appear to Canadians to be ample

The average country road n fall and spring prevents the farmer from rading loads without risk to his team. If our weekly paper says he's great; his province had a fine system of good roads, there would be much less difficulty in securing settlers for the land. A radical change in road policy is needed, and had could be so good.

GOOD ROADS

In last week's issue of the Canadian Courier, Mr. R. S. Neville, K. C., presents the first of a series of three articles on Good Roads. There are some very striking statements in this article which are worthy of being quoted. Mr. Neville presents figures to show that it costs the Canadian farmers about $$50,000,000 for teaming their field crops over the roads and declares that if we had first class roads this cost could be reduced to $$00,000.000 . Such an enormous difference between the present cost and the cost with a system of good roads ought to arouse the people of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country to a determination to secure the better system; for the crop production of the country will increase, and, unless the roads are improved, there will continue a heavy loss in transportation. Mr. Neville says:—
