ST. MARYS LOOP COMPLETED

WESTERN ONTARIO POWER LINE HAS NOW A DOUBLE CIRCUIT.

London, Jan. 13.—A long step toward the elimination of hydro-electric troubles in Western Ontario was taken this afternoon in the completion of the "loop" in the transmission line between St. Marys and London. Hon. Adam Beck announced last night that power was turned on over what is known as the loop between St. Marys and London which gives a double circuit line through all the municipal ties north and west of Dundas. This should obviate any further trouble in getting a continuous service to the municipalities in this district. The line from Niagara Falls to Dundas has a double circuit and this completes the whole line.

THE OLD RIVALS IN FAST GAME

Home-Brews Show Fine Form and Defeat Woodstock by a Score of 8 to 4.

(From Tuesday's Daily.) The prophecy of the staunch supporters of the junior home-brews that they would take the measure of the Woodstock seven on Ingersoll ice was fulfilled last night in an exciting contest that was replete with dazzling bursts of speed, hard checking and all the tricks of scientific hockey. At the expiration of the one hour's play the home-brews were the victors by a score of 8 to 4.

Decorated with yards of ribbons and as noisy as a fourth of July celebration across the border, Woodstock followed to the number of several hundred were on hand early. They were "hired" of confidence as to the outcome of the game and had considerable of the "necessary" to substantiate their belief. They are wiser to-day. A great battle was predicted and such it proved to be. The Ingersoll players and their followers were not inclined to be discouraged because of the defeat at Woodstock on heavy ice Friday night. The Ingersoll team is considerably lighter than their Woodstock opponents and the feeling was general here that they would be more at home on the keen ice, such as existed last night.

AN IMMENSE CROWD.

To see the hundreds of excited "fans" clamoring for admission to the rink shortly before seven o'clock reminded one of the old rivalry that has existed between Ingersoll and Woodstock since these two towns engaged in sport, and especially since the early days of hockey. Everyone susceptible to the hockey fever turned out early last night and in a remarkably short time there was a big crush at the doors of the rink. The reserved seats were all taken in the morning and those who were not fortunate enough to get a seat in the gallery turned out to take a fighting chance for the other places of vantage.

Before seven-thirty the rink seemed to be filled to capacity. But the crowds still surged in, and one by one the spectators were "packed" away here and there. There were rival bunches here, there and everywhere and above the din of the ear-splitting horns and other noise-producing instruments with which the youngsters were equipped could be heard rousing cheers of encouragement for the players of both teams. There was no end to the excitement. The players had a short preliminary workout, after which the crowd made themselves as comfortable as possible and waited for the teams to get under motion.

THE FIRST HALF.

One thing is certain, that the spectators of a hockey game in Ingersoll never got more for their money. The contest was one of those nip and tuck affairs, which one moment had the excited fan waving his hat and shouting at the top of his voice and the next instant grinding his teeth as the enemy appeared to have the upper hand. There was a fight to a finish in every second. It was hockey, hockey, hockey and nothing else.

THE PUCK IS DROPPED.

When the players finally responded to the referee's bell and gathered around that official in the centre of the ice there was a momentary hush. The referee gave the players their instructions and the next instant they were in their playing positions. There they go! shouted one fan as the rubber was dropped and the players were at it hammer and tongs. There was no mistaking the fact that the players were "going." There was no freight train speed, they moved at "express" rate and eyes were put to the test to follow the rubber.

Ingersoll rushed from the outset, but after making a few wild shots, the forwards had to return to the defence of their own citadel. Woodstock started a bombardment, but this was soon nipped in the bud, and once more the home-brews were on the attack. Honors now were fairly even. Kelly received the plaudits of Ingersoll supporters for his fire and dash, and he was certainly working like an old "war-horse." Not one of the fourteen players had any idle time. Both goal-keepers had to keep their weather eyes open every second, and the way the puck bounced about first one and then the other kept the spectators on the anxious seat. Something was due to happen at any minute. After about ten minutes play Woodstock pulled off a rush and the rubber was placed in the Ingersoll net. The rejoicing of the earlier stages of the contest were resumed by the Woodstock enthusiasts. After the face-off the players were again at it hammer and tongs. Ingersoll rushed on the enemy's goal, indulged in some shooting, but were unsuccessful. For five minutes or more the play was close, then Woodstock again broke away with a dangerous rush, and a little combination. The rubber was carried to the corner near Ingersoll's goal, and a hasty shot did the trick. Score, Woodstock 2; Ingersoll 0.

OUTLOOK WAS DARK.

The outlook from an Ingersoll standpoint was particularly dark but the players were undaunted. A slight change was noticed in their tactics. Combination, the old-time style, the short, three-men passes were pulled off. Down on the Woodstock goal raced the skaters in the black and white uniforms. A shot, a hand up, and a mighty cheer, Ingersoll had scored. Score, Woodstock 2; Ingersoll 1.

THE SECOND COUNTER.

The counter gave the Ingersoll players a new lease of life. They were into the game with the do or die determination. At every turn they were calling upon the greatest speed, their endurance, and every trick that is known to a finished hockey player. There was a ready response. They outskated their opponents, puzzled them with their combination, and broke through the defence, when another shot placed the disc in the net. Again the deafening cheer. Score 2-2. Seized with the realization that they were once more battling on even ground the Woodstock players rallied. They fought desperately. They used their weight—and they have plenty of it—to good advantage. Gradually they worked the rubber down to Ingersoll territory. It was returned, only to be "grabbed" by a Woodstock player, who seized the opportunity for a rush. He got near the Ingersoll goal, and made a "flying" shot. The rubber went straight for the net, but Manzer had his eyes on it, and made a splendid try. The rubber struck him near the shin pads and simply "slid" into the net. It was a goal of the "fluke" variety.

Once more in the lead, Woodstock made every effort to hold it, but the home-brews were not to be denied. They made repeated attacks, and finally the rubber was placed in the net. The spectators were almost carried off their feet. Score 3-3.

Both teams were hard at it when the half-time whistle sounded.

THE SECOND HALF.

Both teams seemed fresh after the rest. Play was resumed without any "sparring for an opening." Ingersoll rushed the moment the puck was dropped and in a few seconds scored. Score 4-3.

The play continued fast, neither team showing signs of weakening, and after about five minutes' strenuous work, Ingersoll once more found the net. Score 5-3.

"Keep up the good work" someone shouted and as if heeding the order, the home-brews commenced another attack. They were repulsed however, and Woodstock tried hard to find the net. Another rush by Ingersoll and some beautiful combination netted them another goal. Score 6 to 3.

Woodstock made another grand rally and after keeping the rubber in Ingersoll territory for a short time, found the net for their fourth and final counter. Score 6-4.

The remainder of the game was particularly brilliant. Exceptionally fine hockey was played on both sides with combination greatly to the advantage of the home-brews. After some saw work, during which the puck travelled from end to end, Ingersoll again made an attack and once more the mighty cheer. Score 7 to 4.

When only about four minutes remained to play, Bears, who had been in the limelight throughout the game, made a beautiful rush, and breaking through the opposing forwards and defence placed the rubber in the net for Ingersoll's eighth counter. Score 8 to 4. Both teams were fighting hard when the bell sounded.

Although a number of players of both teams were penalized the game was clean, considering the close checking. It was undoubtedly one of the best junior games ever played in Ingersoll. Every player of the Ingersoll team played a great game. To-day every one is cheering for the home-brews.

THE WHITE PLAGUE

INTERESTING ADDRESS ON TUBERCULOSIS AND METHODS FOR PREVENTION AND CURE.

A fair-sized audience gathered in the town hall Saturday night to hear the lecture on tuberculosis in connection with the visit to Ingersoll of the Tuberculosis Exhibit Car of the Provincial Board of Health, which was on the C. P. R. siding from Friday morning until 11:15 a.m., to-day. The lecture was one of intense interest from an educational standpoint in regard to the methods adopted for the prevention and cure of tuberculosis and was listened to with rapt attention by all in attendance. Many excellent views were shown illustrating the ravages of the white plague and modern methods for fighting it. The chair was ably occupied by Postmaster Gibson, who after referring to the ravages of the disease and the work that was being done to stamp out tuberculosis, introduced the speaker.

Among the views shown were several of sanatoriums in Canada and the United States; also methods of outdoor treatment. The danger of breathing through the mouth was emphasized by the speaker, who pointed out that the nose was the proper organ to use for breathing. He mentioned that by using the nose the atmosphere was drained, whereas by breathing through the mouth the germs in the air were taken into the lungs.

Another strong point of the lecturer was the danger of the modern duster. The way in which it is used, he said, simply brushed the dust from one place to another and any germs in the air were set in motion, rather than exterminated.

Other views showed the havoc which tuberculosis plays with the lungs. These germs thrive in impure air. They dread the pure air and consequently pure air is one of the great disinfectants of the germs. At the conclusion of the address a vote of thanks was passed to the speaker.

THE OXFORD ENQUIRY

CONTINUED AT HAMILTON YESTERDAY—EX-TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 16.—The Oxford graft enquiry was continued in this city this afternoon when David Howden, manager of the Howden Hardware Company, of London, testified concerning the sales which his firm had made to a man giving the name of M. C. McCarty, of O. Cameron represented the crown, E. F. B. Johnston being unable to be present. It was announced that the books of the company were not present.

"The goods are all entered as sold to the County of Oxford, and under the entry is marked ten per cent. to B. R. McCarty," said the judge, and the witness nodded assent.

Mr. Howden testified to the effect that in May, 1907, his firm had sold goods to the County of Oxford. The goods had been shipped to the county at retail prices and had been charged to the purchaser at wholesale prices. The witness could not remember any arrangement by which the difference in the two prices was to be paid to M. C. McCarty. The total amount given to B. R. McCarty, or at least credited to him on all sales was $55.09. The witness would not swear that it was B. R. McCarty who made the purchase, although the fact that that name appeared in the company's books would make it appear so.

That concluded the evidence but E. G. Sutherland, ex-treasurer of the Township of West Zorra, made application to be permitted to declare himself in regard to an accusation made against him by Councillor Kittmer, of Woodstock, during the hearing of evidence a month ago. On that occasion Kittmer claimed that Sutherland had given him two gold pieces when the county official had been notified that his term of office would expire on a certain date. This afternoon Mr. Sutherland explained that he had loaned Kittmer $10, and the loan had been repaid later. Mr. Sutherland said that Kittmer's statement was absolutely untrue.

The enquiry will be resumed at Woodstock on Jan. 30.

SCOUTS RECEIVE THEIR BADGES

Between Forty and Fifty Sworn in Last Night—Another Test Next Week

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

Between forty and fifty of the Boy Scouts were sworn in at a meeting held last evening at St. Paul's church. These were the Scouts who passed the Tenderfoot test a few weeks ago. The Scout oath is a threefold one and the Scout promises on his honor that he will—

1. Be loyal to God and the King.
2. Try and do a good turn to others every day.
3. Obey the Scout law.

After opening with patriotic songs, with Dr. Pearce at the piano, the boys were put through the tests by Chief Scoutmaster J. G. Gibson. Then each of the clauses of the oath were duly explained to the boys by Rev. C. J. McLean, Capt. Tanton and Rev. H. B. Christie. The boys were then escorted to the front one at a time and took the oath and were presented with the badges or buttons. Those badges are in the form of a three point arrow to suggest the threefold oath taken by the Scout. The other officers assisting in the ceremony in addition to the above were Rev. A. Bright and Scoutmasters A. N. Riley and R. Richardson.

Another test will be held next week at which all Scouts who have not as yet qualified will have an opportunity of trying the examinations. The preparatory meetings this week should be well attended by every Scout in the town. The time and place of the various troop meetings is posted on the order board in the window of The Chronicle office.
