THE HOODLUM METHOD.

More than once we have had occasion to notice the peculiar line of defence pur sued by the government and its organs, all under the dominating influence of the premier. Soon after the opening of the session, when it became apparent that the government was in for a hard time, Mr. Davie deliberately adopted the plan of abusing his opponents and callenough to apply to the opposition memernment have wasted the time of the house and so prolonged the session, the World proceeds to belabor the obmoxious members with an energy and There was no other object in view, ap be the people whose interests to a large parently, than the gratification of the extent are at the mercy of these negliorgan's malignity and its recommendation to the czar as a faitful servant and an efficient instrument for the performance of dirty work. Of course nobody pays much attention to the World's outbreaks, but they have at least this significance. that they serve to show the government's complete lack of other means of defence. One cannot imagine men of some intelligence resorting to the methods of the hoodlum and the tough if they had more dignified ways of defending themselves; and it seems quite in order to call publie attention to the fact that the government and its organs in this way furnish the most damning evidence of the weakness of their own case.

THE GOVERNMENT TICKET.

The Victoria Political Associationname broad enough and general enough to mean anything or nothing-last night placed in nomination Messrs. J. H. Turner, R. P. Rithet, H. D. Helmcken and John Braden as the government ticket for the city at the general provincial election. The meeting was numerously attended, and although there was considerable divergence of opinion in respect to the qualifications of the rival aspirants, and not a little bitter feeling over the rejection of two gentlemen who had a right to be considered, the gathering was far from being a failure, either in respect to the enthusiasm displayed or the result attained. The government has mall supply of bananas is about as usual. The small supply of bananas is about excepted from the done as well as it might, but it has done better than was expected. The tick-south on the Warrimoo found ready sale. There are some good apples in the mar-supply and 5 seconds. It embraces the ket which sell well. best and the worst-or perhaps it would be found below, virtually uncharged be more correct to say the strongest and the weakest-to be found in the ranks of the party. It is therefore, according to the law of general averages, neithe a very good ticket nor a very bad one and may be expected to present a fairly strong front to the enemy, especially if the weaker side be kept in the back ground. Mr. Rithet is the Atlas of the quartette, and upon his shoulders the other three expect to be carried to victory. It would be useless-were we inclined-to underrate the strength of the governmen ticket, which we are not-to say tha Mr. Rithet is a weak man. He is one of the strongest personalities in Victoria. and as the head of the largest commercial house in the city-as a clear-headed, enterprising, public-spirited citizen—the Times may be permitted to congratulate the government on its good fortune in securing his consent to a nomination. His name will rescue an otherwise weak and inconsequent ticket from general public condemnation and total defeat. Bu Mr. Rithet cannot give brains to his colleagues; he cannot make of them anything but what they are. Mr. Turner will re main the same personally respectable, but politically unstable, vacillating and incapable. Mr. Helmoken, careless and light-hearted, will not be any better fitted for a legislator because Mr. Rithet is a candidate, any more than Mr. Braden can hope to attain to respectable mediocrity by the aid of borrowed strength and influence. There is a danger, indeed, that the weaker may destroy the stronger, and that Mr. Rithet will lose instead of the others gaining by the alliance, The strength of the chain, in this in stance, may prove to be the strength of the strongest link, but we are inclined t think that the reverse is more likely t prove true. A good many in both parties and a good many in neither party will regret that the wire-pilling of a few of the "bosses" was the means of defeating Captain Irving and Mr. Ellis. The former, no doubt, was left of the ticket the departure from Montevideo of Peixbecause Mr. Rithet, withniwhom he is roto's vessels. associated in business, was considered a stronger man; but no such reasonable excuse can be offered for the rejection of Mr. Ellis, who was undoubtedly defeated because he had been put forward by his friends as the representative of place in July. the Canadian party and of the younger element in the government ranks. "Knownothingism" does not prevail among native-born Canadians anywhere; we should like to believe that its spirit is not still abroad among the other and

I point this out to prove that these men are most objectionable to the Asiatics in their own countries. Missionary organizations, owing to quick and cheap transport, have increased in number and strength rapidly in the last forty years. They have spread over Asia like an epidemic, more disastrous in some places to the natives than the plague. It can easily be proved that these organizations, taken as a whole, is the greatest scheme of the nineteenth century to impose on benevolence and cheat the credulous out of their money. The late Col. F. A. Bee, of California, was hired by the Chinese (are not some of this combine?) After some years, during which he lived amongst them, he became vice-consul (but by whom appointed?) flew a China flag over his house and screened them when possible. "Where did H. J. R. get his money? With this money he bought about 4,500 acres of land." Is this argument or insult? I expended very many thousands of dollars in China, not one cent of which came from the Chinese; some of my works there are proof of this. Foreigners do not make money out of Chinese; that is utterly impossible unless you steal, that is, get in debt for tea, silk or straw braid, their only commodities, and then run away. That has been done many times, I regret to say. It is true, and a pity it is true, that I mer owners their price, who from all accounts never paid any taxes. I also wrong, then the land held by the church of them twenty acres of land on Pender island. They will then be quite as anxious to stop Asiatic immigration as myand city, but many other values will be destroyed. It is against this I am fighting. It would be as easy to lift the San Pedra off Brotchie ledge with soap bubbles as expect improvement in our province until Asiatic immigration is stopp-
