HAS GOOD RESULTS.

The Star has several times referred to the fact that the benefits derived from attracting wealthy tourists and apartments to a locality are not confined to the mere expense account connected with their annual or occasional visits. These people sometimes become investors, and sometimes their benevolence leads them to take a kindly personal interest in the welfare of those among whom they sojourn for a brief period. An instance of the latter is chronicled by the Bay of Islands, Nfld. Star. Near a remote settlement on the coast, a New York millionaire has a fishing lodge. The settlement is a new one, and thus far the people have had no educational facilities. These the New York man will provide. He has informed these lonely people that he will have a school house erected, and will pay the salary of a teacher. As there are 42 children under ten years of age in the place (Port Saunders) the gift is the most valuable that this generous man could present to the people.

He went there in search of pleasure and sport, the condition of the people appealed to his heart, and he has nobly responded. Occurrences of this sort are of course exceptional, and it is not for a moment suggested that the mendicant attitude is the one in which communities should regard the coming of wealthy strangers. We in these provinces claim to be able to give the visitors value for their money, whether they seek health and pleasure or sport. If in addition they manifest a personal or commercial interest in any locality, the benefit is none the less mutual.

FAITH CURES.

The press of late has contained many stories of wonderful cures effected at the shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, in Quebec, and at the shrine of St. Anne in St. Jean Baptiste church, in New York. These manifestations are not confined to shrines of the Roman Catholic church. Faith cures are not even confined to those who accept the Christian belief. We are accustomed to speak of faith as a beautiful attribute, and certainly the chronic doubter and cynic is not a lovable character, but there is a possibility of going to extremes in both directions. A writer in the New York Sun tells of some things he witnessed in front of the church of St. Jean Baptiste, which seem to prove that the faith of ignorant parents, however beautiful it may be in the abstract, is the practical cause of terrible suffering to their children. He stood for four hours in front of the church and watched the "cures" come out. And this is what he says of it:

I doubt if any man, not a religious enthusiast, could stand before that church door, looking into the faces of "the cures," whose crutches and supports had been laid upon the altar of St. Anne without having his heart wrung by the horrible misery of it all. I saw a little girl with the muscles of her left leg so contracted that the toes of her shoe barely reached the ground, and with her little greatly deformed, standing beside her father on the sidewalk. His eyes were filled with tears of joy. He was receiving the congratulations of scores of bystanders for the "cure" of his child, and was assuring them that his wife was wrung by the church offering prayers of thanksgiving. Now, then, the crowding of the curious forced the two to move. At every step the child took her face was convulsed with pain. Once or twice she cried out. She could not have moved at all had she not swung on her father's sleeve. She had left at the shrine the crutches which had supported her for ten years.

Another "cure" which greatly excited the multitude was that of a child who had been brought to the shrine with a convulsion about his head which relieved all strain on the neck and spine. After the babe had been touched by the relic its mother was so convinced of the efficacy of the "cure" that she removed the brace and support and put the child on its feet. It fell over into her arms. She said "the poor dear was overcome by excitement" and took it home in her arms. The support was left on the pile of discarded aids for the crippled. Another mother broke away the heavy plaster of Paris from her baby's body in her confidence that the child had been made whole.

In all the four hours I did not see a child whose artificial aids and comforts had been thrown away who was not, to my eyes, the worse without them. Some of them were plainly in agony. The devotion, the faith and the fatherly and mother love which underlie the belief that these poor little ones were cured was inexpressibly beautiful. The cruelty of it all, the unconscious cruelty, made one long to invoke the law to stop it.

Would it not be possible for the authorities of the church, with their infinite tact and their power over their people, to establish a system of medical inspection which should protect the little ones from the ignorance and the over-hopefulness of their own parents? By far the greater number of those who approach the shrine were poor, miserably poor. A great number showed but little intelligence in their faces. They should be protected from the results of their own limitations.

DEATH OF WILLIAM PUGSELY.

The death of William Pugsley occurred late last evening at the residence of his son-in-law, Dr. J. M. Smith. Mr.

Mr. Pugsley had been ill only about six weeks. He leaves two sons, Attorney General William Pugsley and Dr. Daniel Pugsley, and three daughters, Mrs. J. M. Smith, Mrs. G. L. Tapley and Mrs. R. B. Humphrey.

FAREWELL, MRS. NATION.

(Worcester Spy.)
Mrs. Carrie Nation's martyrdom, following her attempt to reform Kansas with a hatchet, now has the lame and impotent conclusion of her acceptance of a pardon and the opportunity kindly given her by the courts to pay her fines on the installment plan, at the rate of five dollars a month. Though Mrs. Nation has declined prodigiously as an object of interest, she will probably be able to write enough stories for the papers to enable her to lay by five dollars a month over and above her modest living expenses; and as she evinces no present disposition to start out with the hatchet again, the double-column head and the police court will probably know her no more. This curious episode in American history, it is to be hoped, is over.

BUSY IN THE HARBOR.

These are busy times about the harbor. There were in port yesterday five steamers and eighteen square-rigged vessels, and in addition to this fleet a large number of schooners of various sizes. At the Sand Point wharves alone there were two steamers, the St. Philip's, loading hay for South Africa, and the Canuxa, taking in deals for the Association in memory of his son, who fell at Witpoort in the Transvaal. The inscription upon it: "A father's tribute in memory of an heroic son," was significant enough, he said, and needed few remarks from him. He could only say that Major Borden had done his duty gallantly and well, and laid down his life for his sovereign and country. "We are all one people," added his lordship, "and when necessity demands it England can always call upon the people of the colonies equally as if they were in the Mother Country." The trophy bears the motto, "Dulce ac decorum est pro patria mori," and a medallion portrait of the late major, and is surmounted by a mounted trooper, beautifully worked in silver. "I will not send my men to any place where I will not go myself," was a maxim often expressed by the dead hero, and these words are also engraved upon the cup.

THE BORDEN CUP.
Presented to the D. R. A. by Hon. Mr. Borden in Memory of His Son.

In its account of the garden party at Biele, the London Canadian Gazette says:—
Lord Strathcona inspected the cup which Dr. Borden has presented to the Association in memory of his son, who fell at Witpoort in the Transvaal. The inscription upon it: "A father's tribute in memory of an heroic son," was significant enough, he said, and needed few remarks from him. He could only say that Major Borden had done his duty gallantly and well, and laid down his life for his sovereign and country. "We are all one people," added his lordship, "and when necessity demands it England can always call upon the people of the colonies equally as if they were in the Mother Country." The trophy bears the motto, "Dulce ac decorum est pro patria mori," and a medallion portrait of the late major, and is surmounted by a mounted trooper, beautifully worked in silver. "I will not send my men to any place where I will not go myself," was a maxim often expressed by the dead hero, and these words are also engraved upon the cup.

A MODEST PRESSMAN.

(Hamilton Spectator.)
No newspaper men are proverbially modest. One Hamilton news gatherer was initiated into an insurance society the other night. He had been a full-fledged member just three minutes when he rose and made a motion to make a radical change in the management of the institution!

MARINE MATTERS.

Bright Boston Marine arrived yesterday from Barbados with a cargo of molasses. She will discharge on the west side. It is just seven weeks since the Boston Marine left this port for the West Indies with a general cargo. Str. Kentigern, Capt. Parker, from St. John for Cape Town with hay, reached Sydney yesterday morning to bunker. She was detained by thick fog, but will, it is expected, resume her voyage today.

HALIFAX TO YARMOUTH.
MacKenzie & Mann Get Charter to Build the South Shore Railway.

(Halifax Recorder.)
The announcement made yesterday that the provincial government had passed an order-in-council granting a charter to MacKenzie & Mann to build the South Shore railway was very pleasing intelligence. The contract has not been yet signed, and of course could not be until the negotiations had received a charter under the laws of the province. This charter contains the usual provisions, and any changes are in line with the special act passed last session. The number of directors are seven, five to be appointed by the shareholders, and two government nominees.
The contract to be signed has not been divulged, but it is understood that the new company has offered the most favorable terms. Progress in this matter will be more rapid now, and we may shortly expect to hear a pronouncement as to the exact terms on which the railway is to be constructed. When once the contract has been signed, the company will begin operations on a large scale and push the work through to an early completion. The exact location of the route has not been determined, and the surveys so far do not show the actual distances. The main points to be touched are, however, known, and the distances may be fairly well computed, though not absolutely accurate until the final survey is had.

From Halifax to Mahone Bay the distance is 60 miles; Mahone Bay to Bridgewater, 9 miles, already constructed as part of the Nova Scotia Central; Bridgewater to Liverpool, 35 miles; Liverpool to Shelburne, 42 miles; Shelburne to Barrington, 23 miles; and Barrington to Yarmouth, already built, 50 miles. This means a total distance of 219 miles, with 19 already constructed. Then it is proposed to run a branch line from New Germany to Caledonia, a distance of 60 miles, so that the total mileage of railway under contemplation is about 279.

BRITISH COMMONS.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—In the house of commons tonight Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, said that, in view of the patience with which the nation had for 21 months endured Mr. Chamberlain's policy in South Africa, he thought it opportune to secure a statement from the colonial secretary as to the war situation. He went on to point out that Cape Colony was now invaded and overrun by Boers, and he asked what prospect there was of repelling the invaders. "What the condition of Cape Colony would be after the war, and what was the prospect of famine as a result of the government's policy of devastation."

Mr. Chamberlain replied that farm burning had been entirely abandoned and replaced by the policy of concentration camps. He contended that these were humane and satisfactory, as had been shown by the fact that thousands of Boers came into them voluntarily.

He said: "A vast majority of the Boers acknowledge themselves beaten and would gladly surrender and resume peaceful pursuits but for the comparative handful of irreconcilables who are carrying on a guerrilla war that is rapidly degenerating into brigandage and absolute murder. Lord Kitchener is adequately dealing with the problem by establishing blockhouse cordons, within which the peacefully inclined can safely settle and be protected."

Mr. Chamberlain said the government had telegraphed Lord Kitchener to inform the Boer leaders that shooting natives in British employ was contrary to the laws of war, and that all guilty persons of this class if captured would be court-martialed and executed.

Mr. Chamberlain's declaration was received with loud cheering. "There seems to be an impression that we have come to some sort of an agreement with the Boers," says Chamberlain in another portion of his speech, "that natives are not to be employed in this war; but there is no such an agreement."
"Incurious into protected districts must be more severely dealt with, if there is to be 'sniping' of soldiers from behind hedges, and even of women."
"Rubbish," cried an Irish member.
Mr. Chamberlain retorted that he had met some ladies who had been assaulted in this way.

"Both Dewet and Schalkburger do not say that the war was caused by the Boers. They say they are fighting for their independence. It is nonsense to speak of offering terms to men who say it must be a fight to the finish. This is now the policy of the government."

The amendment to reduce the salary of the colonial secretary was rejected by a vote of 164 to 70.

MIND, AND NOT BEAUTY.

M. Marcel Prevost, the well known French writer, has just been preaching a sermon in a Paris boulevard journal, the text of which is the declaration of his determination to discourage the chiefs' neglect of their duties to their own subjects.
A camp is likely to be formed in Calcutta next winter, the cadets being chosen from the existing Chief Colleges, which sadly need encouragement.
The formation of an Imperial Cadet Corps is another instance of Lord Curzon's strong statesmanship. An Indian Sandhurst is a scheme which has been floating in the air for many decades.

The Duke of Connaught was in favor of it. But it has not until now been brought into the region of practical politics for fear of supplying native leaders in the event of a revolt among the military races of India.
The Cadet Corps is bound to meet with some hostilities. But Lord Curzon is not the man to carry it through unless he has been convinced that the good feeling and loyalty which it will undoubtedly engender far exceed the possible risk that might arise during a period of internal insurrection.

ILLEGAL SALMON FISHING.

(Woodstock Sentinel.)
Fishery Warden Blake made a raid on the salmon fishermen of the river below Woodstock one day last week and succeeded in scooping seven salmons, which were being used illegally.

We have been informed that illegal salmon fishing has been carried on to such an extent during the present summer along the river that not more than half of many salmon have found their way up the Tobique this summer as usual, and it should be borne in mind that unless the salmon can reach their spawning ground on the Tobique the fish will sooner or later become extinct, and we think that if the people along the river who are fishing as a commercial enterprise and not merely for their own use, would take this sensible view of the matter they would stop before it became necessary to resort to fines on the part of the proper authorities.

THAT POLICE AFFAIR.

Dr. Stockton appeared before the Safety Board yesterday and stated that he wished to appear as counsel for Officer Napier in the matter of the charges preferred against Sergt. Campbell of the police force. He said that Chief Clarke had decided to have counsel appear in the case, and he had then applied to the city council. The council had ordered an investigation, but Dr. Stockton had not been permitted to appear on behalf of his client. He now wanted to know whether the council would order them to be given a hearing. No action was taken by the board.

HONORS FOR INDIAN CHIEFS.

To Have Commissions as British Officers.

SIMLA, July 30.—The formation is announced of an Imperial Cadet Corps for the military training of Indian chiefs, with the promise in three years of a limited number of commissions as British officers with non-regimental employ.

This opens up careers for the loyal chiefs who have hitherto fretted bitterly under their exclusion from officers' rank, and it shows that Lord Curzon's desire to remove the grievance equals his determination to discourage the chiefs' neglect of their duties to their own subjects.

A camp is likely to be formed in Calcutta next winter, the cadets being chosen from the existing Chief Colleges, which sadly need encouragement.

The formation of an Imperial Cadet Corps is another instance of Lord Curzon's strong statesmanship. An Indian Sandhurst is a scheme which has been floating in the air for many decades.

The Duke of Connaught was in favor of it. But it has not until now been brought into the region of practical politics for fear of supplying native leaders in the event of a revolt among the military races of India.
