Of social events proper there has been little or nothing during isst week. Even the bleycle tess have at last subsided though people have not yet thought of putting away their wheels.

There has been a small dinner or two, and a couple of tess, of which Mrs. Collard gave the largest on Friday afternoon.

On Tuesday, Dr. and Mrs. De Wolf were at home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Harrington, their daughter and son-in-law, on the occasion of their golden wedding. They had of course any number of visitors to offer them charactalistions and among them were one other couple who had also celebrated their golden wedding—Mr. and Mrs Shairs.

Admiral Sir John Hopkins, who has gone to command the Mediterrnean flagship the Ramillies has again chosen Lieut. H. G. Sandeman for his flag lieutenant. Mr. Sandeman was here for three years in the Blake with Sir John Hopkins, and with Commander Bayley was a very well-known and popular person. A flag-lieutenant's post is a very dimentione, there is so much depending on the "flag"s" tact and social abilities, and Sir John Hopkins has certainly an excellent one in Mr. Sandeman. I regret to bear by the way, that Lady Hopkins' deatness is increasing, and causes her great inconvenience.

gret to hear by the way, that Lady Hopkins' deatmess is increasing, and causes her great inconvenience.

Madame Albani's concert on Wedneaday night was a great success, though naturally all the members did not come up to the same level. Albani herself was in far better voice and singing immeasurably better than when she was last here, and gave great pleasure to her audience, especially in the Bach-Gound Ave Maria and the scenes from Faust.
Here fairly carried the latter, and made one sorget that there was anyone on the stage but Marguerite. In the prison scene the quietude of the house was intense, till the audience broke out into appliance a little to early; however it was heartfelt so perhaps the diva did not mind. Faust was apparently new to the stage, but as he did well people did not mind. The dresses too were pretty; but the extraordinary thing was the effect Albani managed to produce without orchestra and with so very few accessories, and the simplest of stage settings. In the first half of the programme Miss Beatrice Langiey scored a great success, and most deservedity, for she played extremely well. She was very prettily dressed in dull yellow and was given a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums in a way which produced a small sensation. Albani was also presented with a bouquet of enormous proportions, all made of roses. The prima donns was dressed in pale blue turned back on the shoulders with revers of white satin, and her diamonds were most lovely, besides being worn in quantities. There were a great many diamond pus in her corsage, enough to make an effect in them selves, and she had on a most wonderful necklace which looked fully an inch broad, and a small tiara as well. She was looking much better and brighter than on her last appearance here, and her manner was as sweet and pleasing as ever, She has a little way of going of the stage which is all her own; one may or may not like it, but it is evidently a very old habit and quite natural to her.
Miss Beverley Robinson acted very well gramme wore a pure white gown with a heavy black knot on one shoulder.

The audience was a very representative one, but not so pretty as an Academy audience is, owing to the absence of uniforms. After the performance there was several suppers, which meant late hours, as it was well on when the concert was over. For Madame Albani and the members of her company there was a supper given at the R. A. and R. E. Mess, but the prima donns herrelf was unable to go.

After the Albani concert came Lara; made over, revised, up-to date I twas really, excellent show of which the Hispania club may be proud. The stage setting was charming; it would be hard to find a prettier scene than the terrace in the first act, and the lighting and effects generally were admir ably throughout and accomplished. The choruses were excellent, the dresses very fresh and pretty, as they always are in anything done by the Hispanias and the whole thing bright and amusing. The two tramps were under the special protection of the house and were amusing from start to finish Mr. "Ad" Johnston was encored again and again in his "He wanted something to play with," till a last he had to sing a verse begging his admirers for a rest. Even that did not stop the applause; the house could not have too much of the tramps. The ladies in Larar looked and did exceedingly well. a rest. Even that did not stop the appliance; the house could not have too much of the tramps. The ladies in 'Lara' looked and did exceedingly well. Mrs. Hagarty in the first two acts wore a pretty pink gown, and Miss Lowrey a white and yellow one, in which she looked very tail and graceful. In the last act Mrs. Hagarty's dress was vivid cerise and white, to which Miss Lowrey's dull green costume m de an excellent contrast. Both ladies were given very pretty bouquets, and Mr. Johnston was presented with a cabbage tied with ribbons. Mr. Porter as the second tramp, could no have been improved upon. The solos of the principals were very good, and perhaps the pretitest among them were 'Come to me' and the waitz song both in the first act.

Altogether, 'Laura,' as it was put on this week, was quite equal to our old love, 'Hispania,' and now we shall all be anxious to see what the clab have in store for us m the future.

The news of the sudden death of Charles J. Annand was received in Hallfax. The sad event occurred in London, England, on the morning of the 4th inst. Mr. Annand went to England from Hallfax about four years ago, shortly after the death of his father, Charles Annand. So far as known here his health was always good until the sudden stack came early this month which terminated in his death. On the evening of the 3rd inst he complained of great pain in the chest and stomach. About seven o'clock he had a sort of fit and early the following morning he died. During his short illness there was levere internal bleeding and it is believed that the came summoned, but none reached the house until after death.

Nov. 26.—The dance given last Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilbur Douglas at Inglesside was without doubt the dance of the season. It awas given for the coming of ag. of their son, Mr. J. H. Douglas, who is certainly a very popular young gentleman. Mrs. Douglas always gives very pleasant and pretty parties and this one was especially complete in every appointment. The floor was excellent and the music furnished by the guests was unusually good and a number of new and pretty dresses graced the occasion. The whole of the house was, of course, thrown open for so large a dance, so that there was no crowding and any amount of comfortable sitting out lipses were available. A very excellent supper was served followed by toasts from the gentlemen for the future welfare of the young host who respended with a clever little speech.
