SOMETHING EXPECTED OF THORPE

Jim Thorpe, the Sac and Fox Indian, of Olympic games and football fame, who has spent the summer learning professional baseball under the tutelage of John J. McGraw, is beginning to show signs of developing into a big league player. Although he has done little toward aiding the Giants in winning the National League pennant of 1913 since he signed a New York club contract, Thorpe has not wasted his time upon the players' bench. According to other members of the club, the Indian will be ready to break into last company before the middle of the 1914 season. He continues to improve next spring at the pace he has been maintaining in the past few months.

Thorpe proved absolutely green, so far as his league baseball was concerned, when he joined the giants' training squad at Marlboro Springs, Texas, early in the spring. Aside from his national athletic prowess and the ability to drive out tremendous hits when he could hit the ball, he was the veriest kind of a "rookie." He showed McGraw, however, that he was willing and eager to learn, and he has been one of the hardest workers during all the practice sessions of the Giants. He developed surprising speed on the bases and field, and his weakness in inability to wait for a good ball when at bat. Thorpe is yet to come out of the fault of swinging at everything.

One of the veterans of the team, in discussing Thorpe, said recently: "The Indian is a wonderful natural athlete; a fine, companionable teammate, and has the making of a great ball player. He has learned a lot during the season on the bench, and has shown more improvement than any of the green recruits. Just soon as he learns to make the pitcher put the ball in the groove before hitting at it he will be ready for the big game. It wouldn't surprise me if he got into the regular line-up before midseason next year. When McGraw thinks he is ready the Indian will get his chance, and it's a hundred to one that he proves a sensation. Mac isn't noted for holding out youngsters who haven't got something."

THIS DATE IN RING ANNALS

1897—Kid McCoy and Jim Hall, the famous Australian, boxed six rounds draw at Philadelphia. Neither man made any effort to extend himself, and the Quaker City fans, who had expected a battle royal, hooted and howled and cried "fake" McCoy was then on the topmost rung of his career as a middleweight, and undoubtedly, had easily defeated the Australian. A little later McCoy went to Dayton, O., and whipped "Marine" Ruble in the same night. The "Marine" was the fighter who had knocked out Jack Dempsey at San Francisco, using the pivot blow.

1912—Billy Papke defeated Georges Carpentier in 17 rounds, stopped, at Paris.

YACHT FINISHES 37,000 MILE TRIP.

THE STEAM YACHT COLUMBIA

With her spars and brass work shining and showing few weather stains and with her machinery working like her well regulated chronometer, Mr. J. Henry Lade's yacht Columbia, after an absence of nearly one year, arrived in New York Harbor after steaming approximately 37,000 miles. During the entire journey the Columbia encountered exceptionally good weather.

The most exciting adventure was encountered on the arrival of the Columbia at Kobe, Japan, at the time of the agitation in California against Japanese holding land possessions. While there the Columbia was visited by Japanese officials, who asked questions, but their treatment, according to the party aboard the yacht, was of a courteous character. It was the visit of the Japanese authorities that gave rise to the report that the yacht had been seized.

NOVEL AEROPLANE DESIGNED BY DOCTOR

DESIGN OF AEROPLANE INVENTED BY DR. H. L. E. JOHNSON

Application of the principle of the arch to the structure of an aeroplane is the chief feature of a United States patent obtained recently by Henry L. E. Johnson, of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Johnson uses the arch in an inverted form beneath the lower wings of a biplane or flying machine of more than two superposed planes, his object being to provide an aeroplane which shall be "safe, light and at the same time of maximum strength; shall have a low centre of gravity, and which shall, when in the air, and particularly when descending with the power of the engine cut off, possess great stability and parachute efficiency."

BASEBALL SEASON CLOSED MAJOR AND MINOR WINNERS

New York, Oct. 22.—Another baseball season has closed and only the records remain to proclaim the prowess of player and club in America's national sport. Considered broadly, 1913 produced play fully up to the standard of previous years, but no appreciable step forward could be detected. The game appeared to hold its own in popularity, speed and technique, but did not surpass the record of recent seasons in this respect.

The world's series, with its attendant ticket scandals, scrambling and hickering, created the usual interest, but did little or nothing to advance professional baseball or elevate the plan of the sport. In fact many of the club owners and league officials are beginning to doubt the wisdom of the post-season climax in its present form. The play-off for the world's championship under the present system is felt to hold a menace of more or less gravity to the future of baseball by some of the best informed men connected with the game.

The idea of a sportsmanlike series of contests to decide the title honors of the year is apparently lost in the wild scramble for the enormous gate receipts and the attendant side emoluments that accrue to players and club owners. These stockholders whose teams do not share in the distribution of the prize money view with chagrin the division of many thousands of dollars among the more fortunate. Fans who are unable to secure seats for the games rail at the coupon dis-tributing policies of the competing clubs, and in all there is more dissatisfaction at the close of the season than usual.

All this has been brought home vividly to the National Commission and the magnates of both the National and American Leagues, and there is a movement on foot to discover a substitute season climax that will leave less jealousy and heartburning than at present. What is particularly desired is a form of inter-league series that will permit all clubs and players to participate in the financial benefits and the fans of many cities to enjoy the spectacle without being obliged to stand in line twenty-four hours for two dollar seat coupon.

SPORTOGRAPHY BY "GRAVY"

Wood and Bedient to Celebrate Birthdays.

Smoky Joseph Wood and Hugh Bedient, the famous slab artists of the Boston Red Sox, came mighty near celebrating their 24th birthday today and "Joby" will have a similar anniversary on Saturday. To add to the coincidence, Catcher Nunamaker arrived in the world on the same day as Wood.

Internal dissension prevented the 1912 world's champions from making much of a den tith year, and Wood and Bedient are not the heroes they were a year ago. Smoky Joe is still able to win twice as many games as he loses, however, and with capable leadership and good support he will again shine as one of the brilliant stars of baseball. Bedient is there with the speed, has a good cure and a motion that is as deceptive as the heathen Chinee.

Joseph Wood is a native of Kansas City and was reared and educated in the metropolis at the mouth of the Kaw. He played semi-pro ball in his home town in 1906 and in the next year was pitcher and second baseman for the Hutchinson, Kan., club in the Western Association. He returned to his native city in 1908 and his showing with the Kay See aggregation in the American Association won him a chance with the Boston in 1909. Ever since then he has been one of the star players of the New England metropolis, honored and respected by all who know him.

At twenty-four Wood is still a youth, measured even by baseball standards. For the next six years, at least, he should improve rather than go back. The method of delivery involves less strain than that of most pitchers. His terrific speed dwells principally in his right wing, and he does not rely upon his back muscles, which involves a continual wrenching.

Wood has a lot of admirers, but none more enthusiastic than those of Hutchinson, Kan., where he started his professional career. The fans of the Salt City of the Sunflower State are a unit in the belief that Joe is the greatest twirler in the history of the game. Joe went to Hutchinson as a fielder, on a club that had a pitching staff composed of old timers. The veterans failed to deliver the goods, and Manager Andrews, in despair, decided to send young Wood to the mound. A star pitcher was created that afternoon, and for the remainder of the season Joe had the Western Association's best batters eating out of his hand.

Clean Within!

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills
Purify the Blood and Prolong Life

If as much intelligent care were given to keeping the body clean and pure within as well as without we would see more healthy, vigorous old men and women. The daily bath does its partly keeping the pores of the skin open so that they throw off much of the body's impurities, but it is even more important that the bowels and kidneys should be kept regular and active.

If the bowels fail, as they often do in life, to move regularly at least once a day, the waste matter from the food accumulates, decays, poisons the system and upsets the stomach.

If the kidneys are sluggish the impurities which they should filter from the blood remain and cause rheumatism.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills regulate the bowels, stimulate the kidneys and open up the pores of the skin. The result is a body clean within—pure, red blood—good digestion—and a hale and hearty old age.

Three generations have proved the value of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and their sale is steadily increasing all over the world.

Greater than Panama's Bridge of Water

The Panama Canal is the logical outcome of the trend of modern commerce—it is monumental evidence of the present-day need for shortening distance—for lessening time and for reducing cost of distribution between maker and consumer.

In point of distance, the Panama will bring the Pacific nearer to the Atlantic by 1,000 miles. In point of time, the sea voyage between Halifax and Vancouver will be shortened by 24 days. In point of cost, the canal will very materially lessen the expense of carrying freight between these places. But there is a stronger factor than even the Panama in shortening distances, lessening cost and saving time between manufacturer and user.

It is Advertising—

It is the quickest—
It is the most direct—
And it is the cheapest—means of communication between the maker and user of goods.

For instance, Advertising enabled a manufacturer in Nova Scotia to carry a demand for his product from his factory to the Pacific Coast

— in a few days
— at an insignificant cost compared with slower and more laborious selling methods.

In one week, thousands learned of his product where it would have taken years for the news to get around without advertising.

To the Manufacturers of Canada:

You will be alert to take advantage of the Panama route for the physical transportation of your goods. Have you considered how quickly, how far, and at what small cost the Advertising Trade Route will carry demand for those goods?

If you are doing a local business, talk over your advertising problems with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

If you are doing a provincial or national business it would be well for you to have the counsel and assistance of a good advertising agency. A list of these will be furnished, without cost or obligation, by the Secretary of Canadian Press Association, Room 503, Lumsden Building, Toronto.

THE BACONS MAKE HIT AT IMPERIAL

Miss Boreck and Mary Pictures also Pleasing.

If you are fond of the novel of the day you will be actually carried away by the new adventure in which Mary Fuller figures in the "Mary" series of photo-novel pictures which the Imperial presents today for the last time.

This chapter—second to the last—entitled "The Race to New York," depicts the manner in which Mary eluded her villainous relatives when she escaped from the friendly school.

This is not the only good thing the big house is putting on this change of bill, for the Pathe Weekly is especially interesting. The renowned "Hornet" Baker of the Philadelphia Athletics is shown in the first game of the late championship series awaiting another of his famous brand of four bag score-getters. There are several other features in this reel. The comedienne is sweet and pure, "Winsome Winnie Ways" and there is a marvellous fine scene, "Across the Great Divide in Colorado."

The Bacons—Fred and Cassie—have been making banjo-lovers sit up and take notice of their wonderful technique, pleased crowds again yesterday. They give a fifteen-minute banjo feast that pleases all kinds of likes—the classical music "likes," the popular "likes," and the oldtime "likes." Bacons' imitations of the speaking person and the little girl are fine. Next week the attraction is to be Veron Verd and Brother, an exquisite stringed instrumental act, something on the lines of Miss Rae Ellmore Ball's performances.

A bite of this and a taste of that, all day long, dulls the appetite and weakens the digestion.
