be delayed.

Welding Lord Dufferin Together.
What is said to be the largest welding job ever attempted, that of welding a new stern on the freighter Lord Dufferin, sixty feet of the hull having been cut off when she was in collision with the Aquitania in the harbor nearly a month ago, was begun a few days ago at the Robins Dry Dock, Brooklyn. Among the spectators who took a keen interest in the way the workmen handled the oxy-acetylene torches was a group of Japanese representing the leading shipbuilders and engineering experts of Japan.

When the Lord Dufferin was virtually cut in two by the Aquitania she sank just off Liberty Island. The harbor strike prevented her being raised until a few days ago, when she was towed to the dry dock in Brooklyn. Officers of the Robins Company are confident that the work on the freighter will be completed in record time.
