CARL EVANS WAS DROWNED OFF McLAREN'S BEACH LAST EVENING

Became Exhausted About 6.30 o'clock and Drowned in View of Friends—Edward O'Toole of Fairville Made Gallant Attempt at Rescue—Unfortunate Young Man Was Resident of Fredericton—For Three Months Was Assisting Purchasing Agent at Sugar Refinery.

The drowning of Carl Evans, and the thrilling attempt at rescue by Edward O'Toole of Fairville, off the McLaren's Beach, on the Bay Shore last evening about 6.30 o'clock will linger long in the memory of those who were on the shore to witness the lamentable occurrence.

The victim, Carl Evans, was a young man of only twenty-three years of age, a former resident of Fredericton, a young man who was prevented from going overseas to fight for King and country. He was in the Halifax office under the command of Lieut. Col. B. R. Armstrong for a long time as a popular and trusted soldier, and his death last evening was indeed a very sad one; he fought hard for his life, and Edward O'Toole, of Fairville, who has saved lives before made a gallant attempt in this case, but without success.

The unfortunate victim of the seas boarded with Mrs. Frank Campbell, at 46 Sydney street. He was the assistant purchasing agent for the Atlantic Sugar Refinery.

Went For A Walk

Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock Carl Evans accompanied by Charles Campbell, aged thirteen, a son of the lady who conducts the boarding house on Sydney street, and William Darbison, a fellow boarder, left their home and started out for a walk. Evans who had only been in the city for about three weeks made the suggestion that the trio walk to Rockwood Park, but Mr. Darbison thought that the best place would be to Duck Cove and see that part of the country. This was agreed to and the trio proceeded, passed Duck Cove and went to the beach off the Sand Cove Road near Sheldon's Point, or Salt's Rest.

At the time, about six o'clock, there was quite a heavy swell and the heavy combers were breaking high on the beach. Carl Evans suggested that they go for a swim. Darbison, who could not swim, would not go in and advised his fellow boarder that the heavy swell was too high and advised that he (Evans) should not try it. Evans would not listen to the advice as the heavy combers were breaking high on the beach, but went behind a rock and removed his clothing. Mr. Darbison then walked or climbed up a nearby cliff, while young Carl Campbell remained on the shore to guard Mr. Evans' clothing. Mr. Darbison had only got a short way up the cliff when he heard young Campbell shouting and turning round he saw Mr. Evans in the water waving his hands and apparently in great difficulty. Two other men who were near by also heard the cries of young Campbell and with Darbison rushed as quickly as possible to the shore. The three men hastened to the end of a ledge of rock which was about one hundred feet from the shore and at that time Evans was about twenty feet from the ledge and apparently in great difficulty. It is reported that the unfortunate man called out "God help me!" Those on the extreme edge of the ledge of rock called for Evans to try and make the ledge, but they heard nothing from him. It was seen that he was going down and was fighting hard for his life.

Rescue Attempted.

Edward O'Toole of Fairville displayed his outside clothing as quickly as possible and plunged into the sea, but when he got within about five feet Evans sank. Shortly after Evans came to the surface, only the top of his head showing, but he was then farther away and he again sank and did not reappear. O'Toole dove under the water with the hopes of finding the drowning man but did not see him and reported that there was quite an undertow. O'Toole swam around for a short time afterwards, but not seeing the unfortunate young fellow, he turned to the ledge, not without considerable difficulty owing to the heavy swell.

Crowd Collects.

The word that a young man had been drowned quickly spread and in a very short time a crowd of people gathered on the shore and a few boats were rowed about. Eager eyes watched every roller that dashed on the shore, hoping that one would wash the body up, but their hopes were in vain as there was no sign.

An Anxious Lookout

It was with anxious eyes that those who gathered on the shore watched for some reappearance of the unfortunate man but the last that had been seen of him before he sank to his death was the top of his head. Those on the shore were silent with sadness when they realized that nothing at that time could be done, for O'Toole had done all possible in plunging into the sea with his clothing just too late, to risk his own life in an attempt to save a drowning man. When seen struggling in the water the call had been made to Evans to try and make the ledge but he appeared exhausted and even if he did try it is thought that the undertow from the shore was too much for him and battle as hard as he did he sank to his death. In fact Edward O'Toole had a hard time in reaching the shore after his gallant attempt at rescue.

Word Sent to City

Clarence Tower resides in a summer home on the scene of the accident and only a few minutes after the drowning he telephoned to the city and asked that some person with grappling be sent for the purpose of making an attempt to recover the body of the unfortunate young man.

Mr. Darbison's Story

When seen by a Standard reporter last night Mr. Darbison related about the same story as noted above. He also said that after seeing his companion drown, and there was nothing else but that was done to try and save his life, he went to a nearby telephone with the object of calling up the central police station in the city to get assistance. When he asked for the police station number he found that the line was being used by some other persons. He then informed those on the line telephones that it was an urgent call and that he wanted police assistance and the reply he got was "Wait Until Mid-night" so there was considerable delay in getting the police station in the city on the phone.

Police Are Summoned.

Considerable time after the young man was drowned, through the efforts of Mr. Tower or others the police station on King street East was notified and it was not long before the patrol wagon with Detectives Biddiscombe and Donahue with grappling irons left for the scene. On their arrival the tide was receding, but there was still quite a heavy sea by this morning the shore. There were many to say that there was too heavy a sea coming in on the beach, and others claimed that there was a great undertow, and finally pulling more than took on the water was done and the patrol wagon with the detectives returned to the city.

Will Watch For Body.

This morning when the tide is out, or when it comes in again, the residents in the vicinity of the drowning will watch the shore closely to see if the body is washed on to the shore. It is thought, however, that had grappling irons been used last evening the body might have been recovered, as Edward O'Toole, who tried to rescue the drowning man, was still there having his clothing dried and could have given the exact location where he saw Evans sink. There is also a possibility that the body might be washed out to sea by this morning and that its recovery then will be hard.

Was Well Thought Of.

Last night, Mrs. Campbell, with whom the unfortunate young man boarded, was interviewed by a Standard reporter and felt very sorrowful over the loss of the young man. She told about the three, including her young son, leaving the house in the afternoon, and how shocked she was on hearing of the sad death. She said that Mr. Evans was a fine young man and was beloved by every person in the house. He had said that he had been roaming around the country and she understood that his father was in the West.

Comes From Fredericton

Last night a Standard reporter got in touch with Lieut. Col. B. R. Armstrong who was very sorry when he learned of the death of Carl Evans. He said that Evans' home was in Fredericton and that for a long time during the war he had been a clerk under him (Col. Armstrong) in the District Headquarters at Halifax. Evans was unable to go over seas but while a clerk was most efficient. It was during the time that he was on military duty in Halifax that his mother died. After Evans got out of the army he returned to Fredericton where he went into business with his father. Through correspondence, Col. Armstrong learned from Evans that the business was not succeeding very well and Evans wrote the Colonel that he thought he would go west. Col. Armstrong knowing that Evans was a good body wrote in reply that if he would come to St. John he would try and get him a position. Evans came here and Col. Armstrong obtained a position in the refinery.

It is believed that the young man's father went west and it is reported that he is in Alberta.

It is further reported that the father has taken up a small ranch in the west and has written the son asking him to proceed to the west. A sister of the unfortunate young man is said to be Mrs. Spurgeon Maher of Millville, York County.

Two Important Liquor Seizures

Two Bags of Whisky, Rum and Gin Found in One Raid, Wine and Gin at Another.

Two important seizures of liquor, in all its forms and phases, were made on Saturday by Inspector Merryfield and Detectives Biddiscombe and Donahue. In one raid two bags of whisky, rum and gin were "grabbed" while in the other five one gallon jugs of wine were secured.

As a result of information received the inspector, accompanied by the two detectives, proceeded early Saturday afternoon to the domicile of Frank Hoffman, a Hebrew junk dealer, residing at 545 Main street. They were armed with search warrant and under its power searched the premises for the contraband that was supposed to be harbored within. After a diligent combing of the premises the aforesaid two bags of booze were found. As a result of the raid Mr. Hoffman received a notification to appear in court this morning and explain his reason for his having such an assortment of "wet stuff" in this raid city of St. John.

The second raid was pulled off late Saturday night when darkness had thrown its mantle on mother earth. The inspector and the detectives made a sudden visit to the dwelling of Louis Hurtwitz, 25 Long wharf, and a short raking of the establishment brought to light five one gallon jugs of the fermented juice of the grape and a half-filled square face of gin. Mr. Hurtwitz also received a notification to appear before His Honor this morning. Many complaints have been received by the Chief Inspector, Inspector and the police in regard to this particular house, but until Saturday the inspectors had been unable to get the goods.
