

NOTICE.

But few prefatory remarks are necessary in presenting the Seventh Edition of the CANADIAN PARLIAMENTARY COMPANION to its friends and patrons. Since its last issue there have been many changes, both at Ottawa and in the several Provinces of the Dominion. Manitoba and British Columbia have entered the Canadian Union, and in each of these a Government has been formed, and members have been elected by the people to the House of Commons and the Local Assembly. In Ontario, Quebec, and Nova Scotia, general elections have taken place; and, whilst in the first named Province a complete change has been effected, in Nova Scotia a reconstruction
