

Bella - I heard "dear" and kisses. I more kisses. I said it that Jan Bella dear, and she said yes and ^{or} ~~was~~ glad to see her and her friend. She began to talk of the conversation when I left it with dear mother. I said dear mother understood I was called away. She said yes she does, and I said I hope she will come back & Bella said she will. Bella said I am sure she is of your countesship with you and asking mother if she approved of your friendship. Mother says that she does approve of it or it is, and ~~the~~ you is sufficient to you spiritually and physically, it is most kind and generous. She said I hope love her, she is getting. Getting married doesn't always help in the world. They cannot often find but people like Sir Winifred and Lady Laurier - Lady Laurier didn't like people to come to the house unless they were invited. Sometimes she was very upset about it. She would not allow them to thrust themselves on her and Sir Winifred, that is what they are trying to do to you. They would like you to do many things. Take your own stand and live up to it. I asked Bella how she was, and she said she was very well and very happy "with my little flock". I have a lot of children in Westminster and we are all so happy.

~~mother~~ Give you my fond love, tell her that mother and ^{with} father and meet to the end of her days. That is going to speak again fondest love. - there were most kisses -

Lady Laurier - how dear. dear. this is a beautiful day. You look so fresh and nice, I am so glad to see you again. You did wonderfully in your speech last night. Now is there anything I can do to add to your pleasure or that will help. Sir Winifred will help you in the progress of your speech. Sir Winifred is deeply depressed about conclusions or they are, he will help you as he can. We both will.

I said Lady Laurier, would you tell me about your visit concerning Laurier's house, some have the impression it was your desire to have it to the party. I am anxious to do exactly as you most desire - Lady Laurier, because you're indifferent. and spoke in a great strong voice - what party! what nonsense, who says that? That house is yours. What do you say to them.
