A Grain Tank that is Built Right

Strength—tightness of seams—smoothness of joints—capacity, and good material—these are the things to look for in a grain tank. See the illustrations here of the inside and outside of the U.G.G. Grain Tank. Note the tongue-and-groove siding. Count the stays and half-inch iron rod braces. In the bottom where the sides join it, a strip of angle iron runs down each side, absolutely locking the joint and making it grain and flax tight. The handy door is of good size and when shut, or open, is locked into position—no chance for leakage. It takes less than eight of these tank loads to fill a car. Built in one size only—to fit the regular farm truck with 38 inch bolsters. Read the specifications and prices. We can ship your tank immediately.
