A LEADER OF MEN

By Lieut. R. S. M. Sturges
We always used to call him "Daddy" from the first—not to his face, of course, for he was an officer, our platoon commander in fact, and "we" were the men of his platoon. But I have an idea that he knew of his name, and was secretly rather proud of it. The name suited him; he was always something of a father to us, ready at any time to talk things over and give advice. He never tired of seeing to our comfort, no matter at what cost to his own. In the old days of training in England, after a long and wearying march in the blazing sun, while we would push for range and target, he was always to be seen in the cook-house, still wearing his pack, superintending the preparations of our dinners. I never saw him tired. He was a big man, strong as a horse. Before the war he had owned a big sheep farm in New Zealand, and he had all the blue gentility of the man from overseas. He knew little of soldiering before he came to England to take a commission in "Kitchener's Army." He was one of those people who seemed literally to enjoy the war. When we were out of the trenches taking a brief rest behind the line he was never happy; he was always impatient to get back. He had come all the way from New Zealand to fight the Boche, he said, not to idle his time away doing nothing. He looked upon the trenches as a second home. He was for ever worrying the "boffin" officer for bombs and arranging little raids. "Let's have a little raid," was his favorite expression. "Are the Boches quiet to-night?" he asked me one night when I was sentry. "Yes, sir, quite quiet, all asleep, I think," I answered. "Then I'll wake them up a bit," he said, and produced a box of rifle grenades, whereupon he proceeded to create no small disturbance in the Boches' nocturnal slumbers. There was no malice in him. He sang no hymns of hate and swore no oaths. He had a perfect passion for patrolling, and used to walk about No Man's Land at night as though it were a parade ground. One day it

HURRAH! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.
Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store and is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.
You simply apply a few drops of freezone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out root and all, without pain.
This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue.
If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

Another story of the regeneration of a goddess named "Selma" takes place in which William S. Hart is seen at the Brant the first of this week. The Western star is seen once more in the role of a rough and rugged westerner, led to a better life by the love of a woman the woman played by Jane Novak. The McNutt has a cycling offering of unusual merit and interest, a genuine big-time novelty performance. Another episode in the popular cartoon series "Dixie You Know" by James Montgomery Flagg, and the nineteenth chapter of "The Eagle's Eye" featuring King Baggott and Marguerite Show, are added attractions. The last of the week Mary Pickford's latest picture "How Could You, Jean" will be shown.

Many Very Novel Games

THE British soldier has some novelties in athletic diversions. Wrestling on mules, for instance, is a spectacular sport. It is a team event. Four stout men from the transport section, stripped to the waist and mounted on bareback mules represent each battalion, and the team which has the "last survivor" wins.
Beginning, each man singles out an opponent from the other side and makes for him. Four desperate struggles ensue, and it is easy to see that whichever side gains the first victory is pretty sure to win. Thus, it is Warwick unhorse — or more strictly unman — a Bedford, there are four Warwick left to three Bedfords, so that, of the three battalions still in progress, two is a two-to-one advantage. The last of the four-to-one, and an unhappy business for the one.
Perhaps the most surprising thing about it is the final result, which is that the Bedford is the victor. The opportunities for biting suitably placed bodies are unlimited, but they seem more or less indifferent as to which side they favor.
Hill fighting in gas masks, seated astride a pole, affords plenty of sport for the spectators. The pole may not be touched with the hands, and decisive battles for Germany's future contestants on it but balance. As often as not the first blow finishes the contest. If soldier No. 1 lands a blow on his opponent's head, even if it is not fatal, the other soldier No. 2 is not there to take the blow, the swing of the pole is quite likely to dispose of soldier No. 1. Alternatively, both contestants may hit, both miss, and both disappear together.
Non-fighting, in which the contestant is mounted on the back of another man, also affords some sport. The-of-war is always popular, and there is a good deal of horse-racing and jumping. A popular form of horse-racing is known as "the race on horse-back," where the contestants are on horse-back, but it is said to be much more difficult to be deliberate second.
It is a race which demands from the winner a good deal of judgment, a certain amount of luck, and probably a certain amount of speed. The same battalion, who is prepared to imitate himself on behalf of the regiment, the horses, brought up to the old-style racing, never get to see the horses under the tape which is difficult enough in an ordinary race on horse-back, to be first past the post, but it is said to be much more difficult to be deliberate second.

MISS' OR SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

This simple little jacket is an excellent style for young girls, because it hangs loose and consequently is flattering to the slim girlish figure. As illustrated in No. 8828, the coat hangs straight, with but one fastening near the neck. The wide roll collar is of white satin. The edges may be bound with wide Hercules braid, or if preferred three rows of narrow soutache braid may be used for trimming. The long coat sleeves are in regular style, with two seams. The coat looks exceptionally well with one of the new gathered skirts having a deep circle.

LEAGUE TO BATTLE SOCIAL DEMOCRACY

By Courier Leased Wire
Amsterdam, Aug. 18.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The "Imperial League for Battling Social Democracy" has issued a manifesto forecasting serious war troubles in Germany after the very dissolution of the Reichstag and the collapse of the middle classes. It warns against a rising of the proletariat and asks for funds to strengthen the defensive war against Social Democratic aggression.
The Socialist Vorwaerts of Berlin declares the appeal "opportune" and declares that after the war the social and economic conditions of the workers begins. It urges that all workers to prepare to "fight manumism" so that at the end of the war we are not overpowered by the unscrupulous commission of capitalism.
The paper points out that the signatories to the manifesto are rich land, owners and industrial magnates.

GERMAN EFFICIENCY
I hope this country of the free will never know efficiency, as German efficiency is a thing of a different order and of a different kind. Efficiency that doesn't mean the steady, the written down, the solemn pledge and promise, may be a great and useful thing as viewed by all uninitiated king, but I'm doubting Thomas. # POLAND MUST BE FREE.

By Courier Leased Wire
The Janiero, Aug. 18.—Brazil has been invited by the Allies to outline his position on the restoration of independence to Poland as one of the conditions of peace. Nilo Peçanha, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has stated that he would not consider any compromise on the part of the Allies on the question of Poland's freedom. Brazil has no choice of roads which may be followed in this matter, he says, having already chosen the right path.

CHANCELLOR IS FOR HOME RULE

FOR HOME RULE
Sir James H. Campbell Declares for Self Government for Ireland
By Courier Leased Wire
London, Aug. 19.—Political circles have been given quite a sensation by the declaration by Sir James H. Campbell, lord chancellor of Ireland, that he is in favor of self-government for Ireland. This statement was made by him at a luncheon at Dublin on Saturday. When Sir James was appointed lord chancellor in succession to Sir John O'Brien in June, it was believed the action of the Government meant a complete reversal of its Irish policy. His speech, however, proves that he is a convert to home rule, according to liberal commentators. Sir James is quoted as follows:
"From the day the war broke out I determined, regardless of my commitments in the past and the views of my old political colleagues, that I should endeavor to the best of my ability to bring about a solution, by consent of the Irish problem on the only lines which it seemed to me held any promise of success—a media self-government for united Ireland."
