E. & D. BICYCLES

The great reason for the goodness of E. & D. bearings is in their four-point design. The load passes directly through the balls, and there is no opportunity for the balls to jam. In E. & D. four-point bearings the weight on any one ball is the weight of the rider. In ordinary bicycles, the immense leverage between cup and cone bearings and cone balls and bearings breaks on the balls. To show how little the wear on E. & D. four-point bearings is, we first guarantee them for three years, and secondly, we oil them at the beginning of the season, and at the end, upon examination, the oil will be found clear.

E. & D. bearings are excellent. In all parts, the four-point system is employed. In 1900 E. & D. models, even the head bearings are equipped with four-point bearings.

The E. & D. models are found in Road, Ladies' and Men's $60 Special, Ladies' and Men's with gear case $70. Racer, Men's only $70.

and the local guarantee privilege that goes with them is worth the cost of the wheel. And we will be very glad to show you the new E. & D. with its excellent equipments. Catalogue sent free upon application. You run the risk in buying this wheel. The thirty-seventh wheel made by this firm four years ago is in daily use in this city. The owner would not exchange it for a new wheel of any other make, as he says it is in perfect order up to date, and the easiest running wheel in the city. We cannot say anything that is a higher recommendation.

It costs $550,000,000 every week to run the world's railways.

The average man takes seventy-five steps a minute. Nearly all pure carbon exists in three distinct forms, the diamond, graphite and charcoal.

Market gardeners around Paris cultivate the dandelion on a large scale and sell it for good prices in the market.

In the canton of Zurich, with a population of 245,000, the average annual number of deaths is 6,154, 4,043 of which refer to people over twenty-five years of age. Of this latter number 70.9 per cent, or 442 per year, are due to cancer.

The oldest love-letter in the world is a proposal of marriage for the hand of an Egyptian princess, made 3,500 years ago. It is in the form of an inscribed brick, and is therefore not only the oldest, but the most substantial love-letter that has ever been written.

It is estimated that there are 11,000,000 cows in the United States devoted to butter-making, and that their average yield is 125 pounds of butter a year, or a total of 1,375,000,000 pounds, or about eighteen pounds for each one of the population of the country.

It is said that President McKinley in conversation has expressed himself in favor of the selection of young men for places of responsibility in Porto Rico and the Philippines, reasoning that elderly men would not be able so easily to adapt themselves to the new conditions and would not be able to give long service after they had acquired experience. It is said that the President expressed himself in favor of men under forty for these missions.

There is a church in Boston which is popularly known as the "Church of the Holy Beano-blowers," in allusion to the fact that on its tower are angels with trumpets at their mouths. Another goes by the name of the "Church of the Holy Thermometer," because there is a big thermometer on its front; and still another is called the "Church of the Kindergarten Steeples," because it has one tall spire surrounded by several small ones. —New York Tribune.

A very interesting experiment may be performed with a block of ice by anyone when the ice is near the melting point, says a well known scientist. If a wire is put around the ice and a sufficient weight is suspended to it, the pressure of the wire on the ice will gradually liquefy that portion immediately under the wire, which allows it to sink into the ice slowly, and as this process goes on the ice freezes together again behind the wire, so that in time the wire will pass straight through the block and leave it a solid block, as it was before the experiment began.

The residents of Germantown have long labored under the delusion that the English sparrow, which is to be found in every nook and corner of that historic suburb, was introduced into the United States by the late John W. Bardsley, a native of England, who was familiarly known as "Sparrow Jack" Bardsley, and who lived in the little two-story house still standing at the Main and Upal streets, Germantown. From an authoritative source it now appears that the responsibility for the introduction of these pestiferous little birds must be laid upon Nicholas Pich, of Brooklyn, N. Y. It is stated, brought over with him from England in the fall of 1850 about eight pairs of sparrows, but they did not thrive and soon died. Two years later he repeated the experiment, having purchased a number of sparrows while on his way to Portugal as its consul-general of the United States. These later arrivals did thrive and multiplied amazingly, spreading from Brooklyn to all parts of the country. —Philadelphia Record.

Took a Costly Nap. To begin with, he was a "good fellow." That's a phrase easier understood by men than by women. It generally means, well, it means he's an all-round good sort in the male line.

Saturday afternoon he was feeling pretty good. He had been out for a walk, and he had taken with him a thoroughly good humor, and he felt at peace with the world.

In this delightful mental and physical state he betought him of a friend in Providence, R. I. And he further thought that he would call up that particular friend on the telephone.

So he went to a Broad street hotel, told the young woman there who had charge of the phone that he wanted to speak to Mr. So-and-so in Providence, and wouldn't she kindly call up the party.

The girl did as she was bade. "Party's on the phone," she said, and the man went into the telephone box, sat down and put the receiver to his ear.

And then he calmly and sweetly dropped off to sleep. When he woke up he owed the telephone company $25.00. He said he wouldn't pay it—but he did.

It has been said that greater calamities are inflicted on mankind by intemperance than by the three great historical scourges—war, pestilence and famine. This is true for us, and it is the measure of our discredit and disgrace. —W. E. Gladstone.

Nature has just one pigment on her palette with which she produces all shell-like pink beneath the finger nails, the delicate rose of the cheek, the marvellous tints of beauty, and that one pigment is the blood. The cherry ripeness of the lips, the iridescent brilliancy of the eyes are all produced by the blood. Just as the permanence of a beautiful painting will depend upon the purity of the colors with which it is painted, so the permanence of beauty depends on the purity of the blood. Paint, powder and cosmetics won't avail to preserve beauty. Beauty begins in the blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a true beautifier, because it provides for nature that pure blood with which alone she can paint. The use of this medicine will cleanse the skin, heighten the complexion, brighten the eyes, and give to face and form that radiance of health which is the greatest charm of beauty. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are very effective in ridding the system of clogging residuum, which accumulates with constipated habit.

MAYOR T. A. SMITH, CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE IN KENT.

Why Wool is Cheap.

"Why is wool so cheap?" the Planet asked a Chatham buyer.

"Simply because the government won't put a duty on it," was the reply. "The Americans tax our wool. We let them in free."

"Do we import American wool?" "Any amount of it, and it all comes in free. They can ship it into Canada at 12 cents and 14 cents a pound, hence we cannot pay our own farmers any more for it."

"Now," continued the wool man, "let me make this wool business clear to you. Formerly wool went both ways free. That was fair enough and gave us a good market at a good price for our combing wool. Then President McKinley slapped on a duty of from 12 to 20 cents a pound. Laur should have retaliated with a similar duty, but he didn't. The Americans have ever since had the run of our market, while we have to pay to get into theirs. You see they use our combing wool, and we use their clothing wool. Combings are worth there 12 to 15 cents a pound higher than here. That difference is simply due to their tariff. If there were no duty in the States coming wool in Canada would bring as much as on the other side."

"Well, we want their clothing wool. If there were a duty on it it would just in crease the value of our dian clothing wool by the amount of that duty. Instead of the farmers getting 14 cents a pound for their wool they would be getting 24 or more."

"When we can bring clothing wool from the States at from 14 cents we cannot afford to pay the farmers here any more. But if in addition to that 14 cents we had to pay ten cents a pound duty that would make the imported article worth from 24 cents and we would pay our own farmers the same amount. It's no difference to us who we get wool from as long as we get it at the same price. Prices being equal we would rather give our own farmers the benefit."

"No, aside altogether from politics, but just as a matter of business, the neglect of the government at Ottawa is wholly responsible for the low state of the wool market."

What Free Corn Means.

Canadian corn going into the United States is taxed 15c. a bushel. "American corn coming into Canada is free."

Canada sends no corn to the United States as a result. The United States sends nearly $9,000,000 worth of corn into Canada every year.

If there were a duty on American corn it would increase the demand and consequently the price for Canadian corn.

The breeders of the east must have corn, and if the American article were out of the farmers of Essex and Kent would be forced to buy it from the United States. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said at Amherstburg that they could not legislate in the matter of corn for two countries, when the interests of all the rest of

of the Dominion lay the other way. But they tax coal oil heavily for the benefit of only a couple of townships when the interests of the whole of Canada lies in the opposite direction. Is that consistent?

The reason is this. The coal oil men are organized and contribute to the election fund. The corn raisers do not.

If the same duty were put on American corn that the Americans impose on us, it would increase the price of the Kent and Essex product by 15 cents a bushel and quadruple the demand.

Free corn means cheap corn. If the Americans are to have our market free for nine million dollars' worth of corn a year we should have their market for our barley, which they now tax, 30 cents a bushel.

bank's funds, is imparted by race track habits. A well-known bookmaker has had this to say of the missing man's acts at Saratoga:

"Alford was a regular frequenter of the tracks. He was always accompanied by a woman with blond hair, who wore a thin, filmy veil, which she did not throw off to hide her features, so that if I saw her to-day on Broadway I would not recognize her."

He generally bet on the English system. That is, to say, he knew all the bookmakers by sight, and at a race he would go to a bookie and say: 'Bet me $500 on this horse.' He would go to the bookies, putting a bet with each one. Then every Monday the bookmakers would go to the United States Hotel, and there he would settle up in spot cash. Never any checks, and every Monday regularly, because of this peculiarity the bookmakers used to call him 'the prince.'"

At Davis, another turfman, made the statement that Alford was invariably accompanied at the tracks by a woman.

Alford, according to a despatch to the Times from Saratoga, was born in that city, and belongs to a family of bankers. His father was Cornelius L. Alford, Sr., brother of the late Thos. F. Alford, formerly lieutenant-governor of the state.

"Nobody knew of this, not even the officers of the bank at the time. When the bank was closed Alford went home as usual. Then a few of us who knew about the clerk's discovery, started an investigation of the books. We found that, by making false entries, Alford had been stealing out of the profits. Nobody knew of the investigation, and Alford could not have had the least suspicion of it."

"He did not return to work next morning and has not been seen since. The only explanation for his flight, to my mind, is a guilty conscience. Ever since last Thursday we have had despatches on his trail, and I think that he will be landed soon. He is in New York city, I believe at the present time. He could not conceal himself anywhere as he is a very large man and of striking appearance."

MISER HAD A FORTUNE

Valuables Found in the Room of the Dead Man.

New York, Oct. 24.—Ferdinand Herber, known as "the hermit" in Hoboken, was found dead in his little second-story back room in a tenement house on Park avenue. Among the stores and refuse in the room there were found $163 in specie, three bank books showing deposits of $1,800, two life insurance policies of $2,000 each on his own life, his estates the beneficiary, and a soap box full of deeds and mortgages that may be or may not be valuable. Neighbors had fed the old man and supplied him with clothing because they pitied him in his abject penury and very often wondered how he managed to pay the rent of the desolate room in which he lived.
