the powdered-headed old gentleman, who street, on the character and beople who inhabit it; and being as we have the appearance of the house he afford a beautiful and internat there is something in the street-door knockers almost c and nearly as infallible, isits man for the first time the features of his knocker it curiosity, for we well know e man and his knocker there was an and sylvanian and get the other party to see the but the population of our street fapprehension, as to be quite a of the drollery of this proceed-consequence was, that our next if was obliged to tell the single it unless he gave up entertain-twist i uil up up for that his as home, he really must be part with him. The single ceived the remonstrance with humour, and promised from that ottle. In the dook of a small attorney or he dook of what to spend his even which he afforded he part with him. The single ceived the remonstrance with humour, and promised from that to spend his even determination which afforded humour, and promised from that to spend his even with the change; but ou the next, the humour, and promised from that to spend his even with the change; applicant for the vacant first a very different character from ome single gentleman who had it. He was a tall, slim, young with a profusion of brown bair, kers, and very slightly developed He wore a braided surtout with light cray trousers, and wash. le we ge share we have some the ory to the length of asserting iteration in a man's disposition ce a visible effect on the leatures gr. Our position merely is, that asse the magnetism which must have a man and his knocker would have a list of the different local charities, as he congenial to his allered feel a ever find a man changing his lithout any reasonable pretext, det, that although he may not be fact himself, it is because he and are at variance.

He wore a braided surrout with light gray trousers, and washoves, and had altogether a rather objects ing single gentleman! Such insinuating manners, and such a delightful address? So seriously disposed, too! When he first came to look at the lodgings, he enquired most particularly whether he was sure to be able to get a seat in the parish church, and when he had agreed to take them, he requested to have a list of the different local charities, as he intended to subscribe his mite to the most deserving among them. Our next door neighbout was perfectly happy. He had got a lodger at last of just his own way of thinking—a serious, well-disposed man, who abhorred gaiety and loved retirement. He took down the bill with a light heart, and pictured in imagination a long series of quiet Sundays in imagination a long series of quiet Sundays in imagination a long series of quiet Sundays.

requesting that he might be called at ten o'cock next morning—no he was much fatigued. He was did not answer; he was called he was much fatigued. He was called there was no reply. Our nexthour became alarmed, and burst fast becoming the rule, and knockeption! Our theory trembled beshock. We hastened home; and had we foresaw in the swift procents, its entire abolition, resolved day forward to vent our speculaur next door neighbours in personadjoining ours, on the left hand, abited, and we had therefore plenre to observe our next-door neighhe other side.

se without the knocker was in the nof a city olerk, and there was a itten bill in the parlour window, inhat lodgings for a single gentleman a left with se, on harry on the left hand, and had been side of a city olerk, and there was a itten bill in the parlour window, inhat lodgings for a single gentleman a left with se, on harry on the left hand, and he had been so it in the parlour window, inhat lodgings for a single gentleman a left with se, on harry on the left hand, and his mother, a lady of about fifty, or it might be less. The mother wore a weeds, and the hoy was also clothed hourning. They were poor very there only means of support areas pittance the boy earned by copying.

intereen, and as mother, a lary of the work as leet with see, on marron he par and the part of the mean in translating for the booksellers, removed from some country place in London; partly because it after chances of employment for the partly, perhaps, with the natural leave a place where they had been reversible, and three peacock's feathers arranged above, them, completed rative furniture of the apartment, the room destined for the reception age gentleman during the day, and take the or one of the apartment, the room of the asast floor was as his sleeping apartment by night, had not been long in the window four good-bumoured flooking gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his real character came out.

all he disultation is a day or two de gentleman came in, and shortly is his plaintive fice which is the beacon of his labours were unexampled to procure or the complaint or murmur.

The mother attempted by a transmitted the labour strength of the short were all she real character came out.

The mother attempted to procure or the complaint or murmur.

The mother attempted to procure or the complaint or murmur.

The mother attempted to procure or the complaint or murmur.

The mother attempted to procure or the strength of the mother attempted to procure or the complaint or murmur. fast. Through a part of the winter whole of the following spring and his labours were unecasingly proThe mother attempted to procure work, embroidery—anything for breadhillings now and then were all she are, and the boy worked attendity on; minutes; but never once giving uito complaint or murmur.

a a beautiful autumn evening when we have all she or customary visit to the in-the neight of another single gentleman over Now, this was bad enough, occurring the open window, gasing at the setting and the open window, gasing at the setting another had been reading the like to him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as we entered him, for she closed the book as the open window, gasing at the setting and the open window.

THE MONNEY COUNTRY, NAT. 19, 100.

THE STATE OF THE STATE

4 5 6 7