

THE HERALD

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1898

After eighty-two weary days spent in discussing the Home Rule Bill the measure had finally passed the Commons. To some this result was entirely unexpected, while to others the news came as of a plucking cock of whose occurrence they were fully conscious. The question has now been debated before the public for seven years. In Ireland people have fought and died for it; in America and Australia her sons and daughters have freely and generously given dollars upon dollars of their hard earned money to aid in its settlement, but never before has the dearest aspiration of their hearts come so near being a reality. But although so far successful we cannot yet hope for its ultimate accomplishment.

The measure has now been placed in most unfriendly hands. Much speculation has been indulged in as to what would be the fate of the bill when sent to the House of Lords; but this jarring useless cog in the wheel of progress has been discarded. The bill will be advanced through another stage in the next few days. It will be met by a more powerful opposition than it has met before. It will be met by a more powerful opposition than it has met before. It will be met by a more powerful opposition than it has met before.

The Patriotic Club Mr. Peters "a true reformer." The information is not new; it was known months ago. The man who "reformed" the constitution of the Province making it impossible for the most intelligent people to have a voice in the country's affairs, who gave the young men but one vote, while others enjoy the privilege of registering two; who attempts to legislate himself into power by mutilating constituencies, and whose sole energies are bent upon resurrecting the old Tory principles and family compact long since departed, and who is now a reformer—but one of the meanest and most contemptible kind.

The vacancy in the Senate of Canada, caused by the death of Hon. Senator Montgomery, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Donald Ferguson. Senator Ferguson has long been considered as one of the ablest men in the Liberal-Conservative party, and while others had no doubt claimed upon the position, it will be pretty generally conceded that the best man won. Irish ranks, and even went as far as to hope for the speedy dissolution of Mr. Gladstone. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons. They built their hopes upon a discussion in the Liberal and Irish ranks, and even went as far as to hope for the speedy dissolution of Mr. Gladstone. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons.

The fight in the Commons was a most bitter one, the time expended in discussing the measure being without precedent. This was mainly due to the obstructive tactics of Balfour, Chamberlain and their satellites, who with their dreary, hackneyed platitudes and verbose amendments, hoped to give the bill its quietus. The success attending their efforts must be a source of much gratification to them!

The Gladstonian programme after the defeat of the bill by the Lords will probably consist in a re-iteration of the resolutions in the Commons, condemning the action of the upper house, and most earnestly reaffirming the principles of the bill. Such a resolution could be passed in about a fortnight, and would be just as effective as a fresh discussion of the measure, which would take up an entire session.

In view of the proposed series of political meetings to be held in Ontario and Quebec we may reasonably expect, as the St. John Sun remarks, reports of an impending dissolution. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons. They built their hopes upon a discussion in the Liberal and Irish ranks, and even went as far as to hope for the speedy dissolution of Mr. Gladstone. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons.

The statement is now made that the Victoria disaster was caused by a surcharge of intoxicating liquor. The statement is made by the "Globe of Amherst, N. S., which says it has private information that Sir George Trigon was under the influence of strong drink when he gave the fatal order. The last previous report attributed it to a volcanic outbreak of lava. If the guessing continues along these lines Admiral Tryon will soon be labeled with all the crimes in the calendar.

In the death of Brother Azarias the Catholic Church has lost one of her ablest sons, and most devoted children. A polished writer and a close reasoner, he was cut off in the zenith of his intellectual powers, and at a time when his labors were calculated to do the most good. He was the foremost estimator of America; and he leaves behind him monuments more enduring than brass. Catholic literature has lost one of its brightest lights, and the loss is an almost irreparable one.

There is a possibility of a vacancy occurring in the representation of Ottawa city, by the appointment of Mr. Mackintosh, M. P., to the governorship of the Northwest. Should the appointment be made, the crisis will be not without the constituency. This announcement serves to illustrate the good effect of the recent big Ottawa convention. At the very place where one would expect to find Laurier's followers offering with enthusiasm, the article appears to be away below the boiling point.

early closing classes of the present Liquor Regulation Act so much interfere that they are compelled to "set 'em up" in the dark.

The Maritime Province side show of the first party, of which aggregation Mr. L. H. Davies is the great force, and having rested for some weeks from his arduous labors in New Brunswick is again about to start on its propaganda of enlightenment through Nova Scotia. No doubt that deceptively "when I was in Washington" will be again made to do duty by the versatile leader, minus the portion wherein Mr. Baine likened him to a confounded ass. Would it not be well for the aggregation to visit Ottawa and acquaint their admirers there a small shade.

The Patriotic Club Mr. Peters "a true reformer." The information is not new; it was known months ago. The man who "reformed" the constitution of the Province making it impossible for the most intelligent people to have a voice in the country's affairs, who gave the young men but one vote, while others enjoy the privilege of registering two; who attempts to legislate himself into power by mutilating constituencies, and whose sole energies are bent upon resurrecting the old Tory principles and family compact long since departed, and who is now a reformer—but one of the meanest and most contemptible kind.

The vacancy in the Senate of Canada, caused by the death of Hon. Senator Montgomery, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Donald Ferguson. Senator Ferguson has long been considered as one of the ablest men in the Liberal-Conservative party, and while others had no doubt claimed upon the position, it will be pretty generally conceded that the best man won. Irish ranks, and even went as far as to hope for the speedy dissolution of Mr. Gladstone. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons.

The fight in the Commons was a most bitter one, the time expended in discussing the measure being without precedent. This was mainly due to the obstructive tactics of Balfour, Chamberlain and their satellites, who with their dreary, hackneyed platitudes and verbose amendments, hoped to give the bill its quietus. The success attending their efforts must be a source of much gratification to them!

The Gladstonian programme after the defeat of the bill by the Lords will probably consist in a re-iteration of the resolutions in the Commons, condemning the action of the upper house, and most earnestly reaffirming the principles of the bill. Such a resolution could be passed in about a fortnight, and would be just as effective as a fresh discussion of the measure, which would take up an entire session.

In view of the proposed series of political meetings to be held in Ontario and Quebec we may reasonably expect, as the St. John Sun remarks, reports of an impending dissolution. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons. They built their hopes upon a discussion in the Liberal and Irish ranks, and even went as far as to hope for the speedy dissolution of Mr. Gladstone. The grip proved to be the most strangled before it emerged from the Commons.

The statement is now made that the Victoria disaster was caused by a surcharge of intoxicating liquor. The statement is made by the "Globe of Amherst, N. S., which says it has private information that Sir George Trigon was under the influence of strong drink when he gave the fatal order. The last previous report attributed it to a volcanic outbreak of lava. If the guessing continues along these lines Admiral Tryon will soon be labeled with all the crimes in the calendar.

In the death of Brother Azarias the Catholic Church has lost one of her ablest sons, and most devoted children. A polished writer and a close reasoner, he was cut off in the zenith of his intellectual powers, and at a time when his labors were calculated to do the most good. He was the foremost estimator of America; and he leaves behind him monuments more enduring than brass. Catholic literature has lost one of its brightest lights, and the loss is an almost irreparable one.

was therefore compelled to grin and bear it. The girl was frightened nearly out of her life, and to add to her consternation a small crowd quickly gathered round at her anxious plight.

She was willing to give anything to be released and upon her solemn agreement to visit Houston the next day, a friend was allowed to take her home, but her lover, whose devotion had been so ardently checked, was hustled back to Houston by gun, revolver and all, and lodged in jail for safe keeping.

He was brought before Trial Justice Briggs charged with larceny of the property from the show, and his Canadian Juliet was present as a witness. Probable cause was found and he was bound over to the September term of court.

The wind commenced to blow about 7 o'clock Sunday morning and at midnight a perfect hurricane. It uprooted trees, tore down telegraph poles, and unroofed houses. By midnight the wind had attained the velocity of 120 miles an hour. The waves completely submerged the island, and the storm carried the waters of the river into the centre of Charlottetown, where the streets were two feet under water.

When the storm was over in every direction details are hard to obtain. The damage was general, extending over the entire state. Much, rich, cut and stacked, was swept away, and the rice suffered serious loss. Sea island cotton plants were terribly washed up. Indefinite reports received from Port Royal and Beaufort make it appear that the storm did not spare the islands in that vicinity either.

Before Mr. Gladstone rose to move the bill, the speaker announced that he had added to the bill the instance of Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, who had been dismissed without notice. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation.

He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved. He said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

women and children and several of the crew toward Helen. I hope they landed safely. After the life raft left, the sea began to break over the vessel, and we all had to remain much longer in the rigging, we would have been drowned.

Later advice from Port Royal, South Carolina give additional details concerning the great heretofore mentioned. The people are suffering for food, and 7000 Irish are being driven to the United States by the storm from the cotton plantations, are starving. They are so destitute and badly in want of something to eat that they have resorted to fighting among themselves for food. Several were killed in a fight for provisions. The negroes are getting more and more during the struggle to keep their wives and children from starving.

The bill is now about to go to another place. We probably shall see it again. (Cheers.) But whether we see it or not, we may say the Irish people will give the policy embodied in a death blow at the present opportunity of the completion of a better settlement. The bill is now about to go to another place. We probably shall see it again. (Cheers.) But whether we see it or not, we may say the Irish people will give the policy embodied in a death blow at the present opportunity of the completion of a better settlement.

Mr. Balfour, conservative leader, said that the bill was an absolute reversal of the constitution. It involved a change of the fundamental principles of the constitution. The bill was a mockery of legislation. Every vote for it was a vote for the destruction of the constitution. It was a vote for the destruction of the constitution.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

the 12 o'clock rule to eight in order that the third reading of the Home Rule bill might be completed before adjournment.

Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, who had been dismissed without notice. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

and will lead to a sort of official record and destination as to a number of her strong points which will be practically indisputable. The bill will be practically indisputable.

Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, who had been dismissed without notice. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

track and the fact that he has heavy work before him when he returns to the New York track. He will be practically indisputable.

Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, who had been dismissed without notice. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

When the bill was read a storm of indignation broke out. Mr. Gladstone rose and said a storm of indignation. He began his speech with reference to the criticism made by various members of the Commons, and said that he was glad to see that the bill was so generally approved.

NEW ADVERTISERS. A. B. WARDMAN & CO. L. B. NORTON & CO. J. S. C. BURNETT LOCAL AND CO.

PURE BLOOD. Long Life and Good Health in Kikkapo Sagwa. Take Nature's Remedy Now. All Profound Sufferers from the Impurities of the Blood are Urged to Buy and Use the Kikkapo Indian Sagwa.

The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.

THE LIBERATOR OF THE QUEEN'S COUNTY. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County. The Liberator of the Queen's County must be published by the Liberator of the Queen's County.