Roman Intelligence

"Vox Urbis," writing from Rome to the New York Freeman's Journal, among other things, has the following: The Holy Father, continuing his plan of reform, has just laid down very rigorous rules for the foreign clergy of Rome. Some of these affect American priests who have established their residence in the Eternal City, or who may think of doing so, and it is well that they should be clearly understood.

1. Priests from other dioceses who desire to take up their residence in Rome must first send an application to the Cardinal Vicar, accompanied by the necessary papers, and especially by the formal consent of their bishops, who are also asked to express their opinion on the reasons upon which the application is grounded. The giving or refusing of consent to the application is reserved to the Holy Father himself.

2. Priests who come to Rome to immediately present themselves at the office of the Vicariate, with the Decree granted by their bishop; and this Decree must expressly declare the motive they have in coming to Rome, and limit the time for which the permission is granted. For Italian priests permission is to be granted for only three months, for others six months. In case a prolongation is necessary the formal permission of the bishop will be required.

3. All such priests must have the approval of the Vicariate for the residence they select.

4. Those who do not comply with these regulations will not be allowed to say Mass in the Eternal City, and their bishops will be informed to that effect.

5. To avoid the danger of priests residing temporarily in Rome, assuming offices which imply a permanent or long residence, it is ordained that they shall not be admitted to qualify for or to hold offices, benefices or any other occupation without the explicit consent of the Vicariate.

6. When this consent is not obtained all such appointments are to be considered as null and void.

7. These provisions are to hold good in all cases; and no influence, ecclesiastical or other, no matter how powerful, shall suffice to render them inoperative.

8. With regard to priests of other dioceses, now residing in Rome, those who will be permitted to remain who possess a benefice or ecclesiastical occupation, or who have been here at least ten years without counting the years during which they studied for the priesthood, with the consent of their ordinaries, and whose conduct has never been blamable. The others must return to their dioceses or find occupation elsewhere with the consent of their bishops.

These rules have been unfortunately rendered necessary by the presence in Rome of a considerable number of priests who have no business here. A few years ago there were some hundreds of priests and students living in private houses and practically free from all control. Leo XIII, during the closing years of his Pontificate, made some stringent rules to remove the evil, but even these were found not to be drastic enough, and hence the present regulations.

Ex-President Cleveland on Woman Suffrage.

Grover Cleveland, ex-president of the United States, is at one with Cardinal Gibbons in believing that woman suffrage—the introduction of women into the arena of politics—would not be a good thing either for the women or politics. Mr. Cleveland has an article in the Ladies' Home Journal for October in which he discusses the question: "Would Woman Suffrage be Unwise?" and arrives at the conclusion which Cardinal Gibbons and many others of the most influential men in Ohio and State have already reached, namely, that general woman suffrage is inexpedient. Mr. Cleveland believes that man and woman have each a separate and distinct, but an equally important, place in the world. Man has his work. Woman has hers. But neither should invade the other's province, and this because Almighty God has created them to serve Him in different ways. "It is a mistake to suppose," says Mr. Cleveland, "that any human reason or argument is needful or adequate to the assignment of the relative positions to be assumed by man and woman in working out the problems of civilization. This was done long ago by a higher intelligence than ours. I believe that trust in Divine wisdom, and unflinching submission to Divine provide, will enable dutiful men and women to know the places assigned to them, and will induce them to accept well their parts in the sight of God."

Woman Suffrage Does Not Elevate Politics.

It is indeed very gratifying to all people who believe in religion to find, in these days when there is a tendency to ignore God and our relation to Him, such a man as President Cleveland writing in this way, and acknowledging so frankly and naturally the place of God in the affairs of the world. These sentences of his are thoroughly Catholic, and are in accord with right reason. A close reasoner is Mr. Cleveland also when he proceeds to discuss the question even on a lower plane; and he proves logically and clearly that the claim made for woman suffrage, to wit, that if granted it would elevate politics, is erroneous. "It is sometimes claimed," he says, "that woman suffrage would have the effect of elevating and refining politics. Neither its short trial in four States containing in the aggregate a population very slightly in excess of one-third the population of the city of New York, nor our political experience or observation, supports this claim. The States in which full female suffrage prevails are Colorado, Utah, Idaho, and Wyoming. In the first two of these States the proportion of female voters is considerably greater than in others; and yet the voters of Utah have lately elected through their legislature to the United States Senate a man whose fitness is now the subject of a pending senatorial investigation, and not long they elected to Congress another man whom that body rejected." (Secret Heart Review.)

In The Home Circle.

IT IS NOT THE CORRECT THING.

To think that only the rich can have happy homes.

To lay aside good manners with one's best clothes, to be used only in society.

For a chivalrous admirer to develop into a boorish and indifferent husband.

For a beautiful, fascinating girl to unmask as a commonplace, ugly wife.

To imagine that little quarrels never develop into big ones.

For a man to dote out money to his wife as if it were war-time rations.

For a man who spends money for cigars, expensive luncheons, clubs, newspapers, suppers and base ball, to find fault if his wife indulges in candy, concerts, flowers, magazines, pretty clothes, and insists on entertaining his friends.

For a woman to plan her house-keeping on a scale beyond her income.

To sacrifice comfort for the sake of keeping up appearances.

For a woman to imagine that her neighbors care particularly whether she keeps one servant or a dozen.

To forget that it is an utter impossibility to please everybody, and that if one pleases one's self and one's household there is a certainty of pleasing somebody.

For a woman to neglect her personal appearance at home, reserving all her taste and trouble for society.

To imagine that children raised in an atmosphere of wrangling, temper, selfishness and coldness are not going to develop traits in keeping with their surroundings.

To be discourteous, overbearing, selfish, blunt, and cold in the home circle.

To think family prayers are obsolete.

To act as if the day belonged to one's self and need not be sanctified by prayer, and that only at night is the assistance of God required.

To think that grace before meals should only be said in convents, and that worldlying, like horses, are excused.

To make the dinner table the tribunal for hearing all the family complaints.

To act as if one took an especial delight in eating.

To serve meat on Friday at a Catholic table (hotels excepted).

For children to rail their parents and the household.

For children to be able to speak "pieces" before they are able to say their prayers.

To permit a profane word or a doubtful conversation before children.

To allow children to have the immodest or coarse pictures which unfortunately are only too plentiful.

To have vulgar paintings in the parlors.

Items of Interest.

The Catholic Fortnightly Review, which cannot be accused of being intemperately temperate, in its news on the liquor question, says, commenting on the Anti-Treating League in Ireland: "We should like to see the League established and making headway also in this country. The abuse of hospitality which it is intended to suppress works havoc everywhere. Large numbers of people, who enter a saloon without any intention of indulging to excess, come out intoxicated, simply owing to this vicious custom. It is probably responsible for at least one-half of the drunkenness which is wrecking homes."

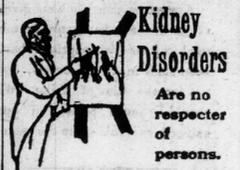

"Those horrid Spaniards are bringing their wicked bull fights to the very doors of this Christian state," says the Leader. "A troupe of picadors and matadors have been exhibiting at the Tia Juans, across the Mexican line from San Diego. Their audiences are composed chiefly of cultured Americans, men and women, who have been tempted from the paths of rectitude by these base foreigners. Oh, my dear brethren, it is positively dreadful. Our dear prize-fighters may be led astray by the unseemly conduct of the bulls. Can't we have another war with Spain? Has that effect monarchy any more islands?"

"The true physician is a well-spring of hope to the sick-room," says the Pittsburgh Catholic. "His gentle influence is a tonic, a stimulant. He cheers the timorous, encourages the despondent, and comforts the despairing. He will never stoop to dishonorable practices. No motive of sympathy, no plea to hide shame, disgrace, no sickly spirit of accommodation to friends, no adjustment or blandishment, no tempting offers of money will permit him for a moment to yield to wrong-doing or use his services to conceal wrong-doing by a still greater crime. Entreaties and solicitations he will meet with a refusal, prompt, strong and positive."

"The Catholic Congress at Strasbourg has adjourned after a brilliant session," says the Catholic Transcript. "These German Catholics are not speakers and hearers merely. They have the knack of doing things. The Pope knows their record and paid them a neat compliment when in his letter to the local committee he asked what better means he could desire for the promotion and development of the Catholic religion than the earnestness and fertile zeal of the Germans. There is hardly any sphere of activity which their zeal has not embraced. They have their mercantile associations, their teachers' societies, their social courses for men and women, and halls for almost every sort of meeting. Germany teaches. What a pity the Catholics of France do not try to keep step with their Teutonic neighbors. The Centre was instituted as a defensive and combative party. It did not rest content with playing politics. It acted its part as a member of the Church Militant."

"There is an act on the statute books of this State," says the Michigan Catholic, "which forbids exhibitions in theatres on Sundays, except for purposes of charity. And there is another law which says that any person found selling cigarettes to minors is liable to fine or imprisonment. We may be told that Sunday theatres contribute a portion of their receipts to charity. But this halfway method of giving a small portion of box-office receipts to charity is a scheme to get around the law. The spirit and true intent of the act is being audaciously violated in Detroit and in other cities and towns of the State, where theatre exhibitions are given on Sundays, and which are not exclusively for charitable purposes. The law forbidding the sale of cigarettes to minors is practically a dead letter in Michigan so far as the authorities are concerned. A boy can obtain in Detroit cigarettes, and if he desires the other adjunct of advanced civilization—intoxicants—the youth has but to step up to a saloon bar, show his money, and be drugged."

The woman who buys Dress Goods now-a-days; has yet to buy right, but buying right does not mean a matter of "How Cheap." A-how cheap dress that is old-fashioned and that will not stand the wear and tear is not the one wide awake people buy. They want a dress right up-to-date in every particular. Quality, style, we have, and good wearing-resisting qualities. This is the kind we sell. Send for sample.—Stanley Bros.

Young Lady at Counter.—I want two hundred sheets of note paper and—well, I suppose I had better get some envelopes, too.

"What sort of letters do you intend to write, miss?" asked the shopman. "Love-letters?"

The lady merely blushed, and the shopman continued, "Ah! well, I should say that twenty-five envelopes would be enough."

Sick With Worms.

Mrs. J. D. Mayo, South Stukely, P. Q., wrote the following: "One of my children took sick with worms and after trying everything without getting relief we procured Dr. Low's Worm Syrup which acted promptly and effectually."

"I wish they'd invent a new expression occasionally," said Top, as he perused the account of a recent wedding. "It's always 'the blushing' bride."

"Well," said Mrs. Top, "when you consider what sort of husbands most girls have to marry you can't wonder at them blushing."

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

After a night with "the boys" there is no better remedy to clear the head and settle the stomach than Milburn's Sterling Headache Powders. Price 10c, and 25c, at all dealers.

A Scotchman, having hired himself to a farmer, had a cheese set down before him that he might help himself. Presently his master said to him, "Sandy, you take a long time to dinner."

"In truth, master," answered he, "a cheese of this size is na sea soon eaten as ye may think."

Doctor the Horses.

Mrs. Thos. Thompson, Man., writes: "My husband would not be without Haggard's Yellow Oil in the house, as he uses it a good deal for doctoring up the horses and considers it splendid." Price 25c.
