

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS

Cannot be cured with ordinary soothing syrups. The disease must be attacked at the root to eradicate the irritation of the lungs, heal the wounds and strengthen the respiratory organs. The composition of of Tar and Cod Liver Oil and other Medicinal Extracts marks it amongst all other remedies as the true specific for the diseases of the throat, the bronchial tubes and the lungs. Here are a few conclusive proofs:

WESTERN UNION TEL. CO., Church Point, N.S., May 9, 1908. Blacking & Mercantile Coy., Ltd., Amherst, N.S. Dear Sirs—Bought one gross Mathieu's Syrup to Church Point Station. LOUIS A. MELANSON.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., July 27, 1908. Blacking & Mercantile Coy., Ltd. Dear Sirs—Yours of the 22nd inst. received re Mathieu's Syrup. I have been using the article in my home for the last seven or eight years, and know of nothing better to use when one is subject to cough or cold. In fact, we would not be without it for twice its value. I have very much pleasure in recommending this article, and in selling it over the Island I have the same report from our customers. CARVELL BROS., G. M. RITCHIE.

SYDNEY, C.B., July 20, 1908. Dear Sirs—Yours of the 22nd inst. hand asking for testimonial for Mathieu's Syrup. I have handled Mathieu's Syrup for one year, and find it one of the best sellers in a cough medicine that I have ever handled. I am ordering one gross from your traveler to-day, as I sold the last bottle in stock yesterday. DON. J. BUCKLEY, Druggist

AGAINST HEADACHE there is no remedy so active as Mathieu's Nervine Powders which contain no opium, morphine or chloral. 25 cts. per box of 13 powders.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

They sank in to my living room chairs as wearily as if they had each just completed a day's housecleaning.

"And we've only shopped about two hours, and been to less than half a dozen stores," they said in wonderment at their weariness.

"What on earth can be the matter with us?"

They are distinctly healthy young persons under ordinary conditions, so I also wondered until, after due rummaging for elusive hats, they gave their hats over to me to be borne into the hall.

And then I wondered no longer. Both were mountains of straw. One mountain was surmounted by a flower garden, the other by an aviary. Each weighed at least two or three pounds, and they were both so large that I knew it must have taken perpetual balancing to keep them on straight, and concentrated attention to steering, to get them through the crowds.

With that weight on their heads and that care on their minds, why shouldn't they have been more tired than usual?

And speaking of hats, what about yours?

Can that hat, by any chance, have anything to do with the fact that you get tired so easily lately?

Isn't that a possibility worth considering?

Not long ago a certain minister saw a ten-line notice about a young girl who tried to commit suicide by turning on the gas jet in her lodging house hall bedroom, but had been resuscitated and carried to a hospital.

A great many people beside that minister presumably also saw the notice, read it, passed on to the next item and thought no more about it.

But the minister saw, instead of just a news item, a human being who had been in such great trouble that she was even willing to go to—"The undiscovered country from whose bourne No traveller returns," and he went to the hospital named in the news item to see if there was anything he could do.

He discovered that the girl had attempted to commit suicide to escape from a life of shame into which very cruel circumstances had led her. He found her honest employment. He found her reputable friends. To-day she is an honest and happy woman.

Almost every day we read in the paper of men and women who have found life so very undesirable that they have tried to leave it, but have failed in their attempts.

Would it be so very Quixotic to suggest that some of us might do as this man did—make it our business to see if there was not something we could do to make life endurable for some of these discouraged people?

I wonder.

"We have but a few yards left. It may be gone to-morrow," said the salesman, as he gave the rose colored silk a twist that made it look even more attractive than before.

Up to that moment I hadn't been sure I wanted it, but the instant I heard of its possible unattainability my doubts flew, and in a trice the salesman's scissors were snipping through billows of roses.

Wonder if there isn't a hint in that for the lay whose sutor hesitates inconveniently long before he takes the plunge?

There's nothing makes you sure you want a thing like being a bit uncertain about being able to get it.

Isn't a vague suggestion, a delicately conveyed suspicion of unattainability just as efficacious in courtship as salesmanship?

'Marvelous Recovery'

Montreal Man So Ill With Dyspepsia Thought He Would Die.

Cured by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

No more convincing evidence was ever put on paper than the following letter from one of Montreal's well-known citizens, Mr. D. R. Larose, of 338 Joliette Street.

"Permit me to write you a few words concerning Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I suffered from dyspepsia and indigestion for five years. I suffered so much that I could hardly attend to my work. I was weak and lost all courage. I enjoyed no rest until I decided to follow your treatment, after having read your advertisement in the paper. To my great surprise I immediately began to feel better. I am now using the second box and I feel so well that I want to tell you that I owe this great change to your famous pills. I recommend them to every person who is suffering from dyspepsia. Your grateful servant, D. R. Larose, 338 Joliette St., Montreal, P. Q.

Paulhan's Story of His Flight to Manchester.

In Paulhan's narrative in the London Mail, of his London-Manchester flight, he says:

"London is a difficult place to fly out of. It is so huge, so confusing. I know the way from Hendon to Manchester, but I do not know the way from Hendon to St. Paul's, nor could one learn it without practice. There are so many districts all alike, and such a bewildering number of railway lines running in every conceivable direction.

"Without my map, I could never have found my way out, but I had well impressed myself with all the signs of the particular railway tracks I wanted, and I was soon flying directly to the north.

"I had to fight the wind all the way from London. Not a moment's rest came to me in my battle against the gusts.

"After the start I was going north for a long time before I sighted the special train which was accompanying me, but there was no mistaking it when it caught me up, with three loud hoots of the whistle and a big white signal cloth flowing from the window of the rear coach.

"I shouted and I sang. I do not think my voice is particularly fascinating, but nobody seems to mind that in the upper air.

"A pelting rain storm lashed me for twenty minutes while I was in the neighborhood of Rugby. I kept on flying at a steady pace, although my altitude varied remarkably.

"I came down rapidly from 300 metres to 100, so that I could be more certain of my direction. Then came the most exciting moment of my flight. Darkness had fallen and before me I saw the lights of Lichfield. I decided to alight in some convenient meadow before reaching town, and to do this I sank down to 150 feet. I was immediately above what looked like a large factory with a chimney. I am now told it was a brewery. And so, to alight safely in a field with no damage done, I made a fish-hook turn and my machine was now pointing toward Manchester.

"I had an imperceptible fraction of a second in which to make up my mind, and I decided to risk the telegraph wires. As I sank I made a sharp twist right back on the line of my course, and was lucky enough to lift myself over the wires."

Murderer Discovered

By Clever Work of Paris Detective, Who Searched 800 Houses.

Paris, May 8.—M. Hamard, chief of detectives in Paris, has accomplished one of the cleverest pieces of detective work in recent criminal annals in the arrest of the murderer of a poor street girl, whose atrocious murder had baffled the police for six weeks. The girl's head was found in a sewer, and subsequently her hands, feet and other portions of her body were discovered in different places.

Hamard, with only the vaguest clue, doggedly searched 800 houses, and finally found the key to the girl's room in the bureau of an ex-convict named Ferdinand, who had recently escaped from the penal colony in French Guiana.

When confronted with the evidence of his guilt, Ferdinand broke down and confessed to cutting up and disposing of the body, but asserted that the girl had died from natural causes in his arms.

MINARD'S LINIMENT LUMBER-MAN'S FRIEND.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid rising in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Fieroe's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medicinal forest plants. HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Anything that is draped is fashionable.

Sashes are with us again in glorious array.

Tulle and Irish lace are frequently combined.

Fewer turbans are seen as the season advances.

Skirts for evening dresses are somewhat fuller.

The latest hosiery shows more elaborate patterns.

Of suede and stamped leather bags there is no end.

Jabots of net and lace are often stencilled in color.

Most of the new tailored suits have long plain sleeves.

Pendants and brooches in Empire designs are favorite ornaments.

Sleeveless coats of lace and chiffon are a feature of the season's modes.

Deep blue that is almost black is a much favored color for gowns and hats.

Sleeves of the new models of blouses and dresses show fullness at the elbow.

The fascinating striped wash silks of the season are as serviceable as pretty.

Some of the new linen frocks are embroidered in Japanese colors and designs.

Linen suits are in old blue, mustard, raisin, brown, green, catwalk and lavender.

For evening wear there is a return of colored Irish lace, dyed to match the gown.

In spite of the Chantecler vogar flowers were never more prominent millinery.

The Chantecler pump has a high heel and a decorative narrow toe. It is usually arched.

Cypress green, pewter gray and delicate fawn shade are soft tints that are popular.

"King's Blue," a new shade of the season, is merely a cold Japanese shade of blue.

One of the prettiest ornaments for the hair is a butterfly made of white and gold sequins.

White serge suits have black or green collars and cuffs. Green is also used on dark blue.

In the fashionable shops the draped Princess is the leading model for the dressy frock.

The new veils are novel and conspicuous but not becoming. Colored lace veils are still popular.
