Heathe Gregory

SANG BEFORE QUEEN VICTORIA AND KING EDWARD.

Star of the Boston and Metropolitan Opera Companies to Sing Here With the Grand Opera Festival Organization.

Heathe Gregory is the leading basso who will be heard here during the Grand Opera Festival by noted stars of the Boston Opera Co. when they come to the Casino, on September 5th, for a stay of three days. Heathe Gregory has been famous as a soloist ever since he was six years old, and the story of his success reads like a fairy tale. When but six, he was found to have a very good soprano voice, and entered the famous boys' choir of St. Mary's Church, Brooklyn, New York. His fame immediately became quite general, and at the age of seven, he was secured by the Cathedral in Exeter, England. There he had his first "command" performance, and appeared before her late Majesty Queen Victoria, when but eight years old, at Sandringham Palace. He stayed in England for another year, and then returned to the United States, becoming soloist of the Church of the Advent, in Boston. From that time on, he devoted much of his time to concert work, and one of his most remarkable feats was the creation of the role of Marguerite in "Faust" at an operatic season in the old Boston Theatre. This is the only time recorded in musical history when this part has been sung by a boy. Shortly after this occurrence he became the star soloist of Trinity Church, in New York City, where, except for his summer tours, he remained until the changing of his voice at the age of seventeen. His range when at his prime, when of soprano voice, was three octaves, and he actually was able to sustain F above high C with perfect ease. In his concert work he sang such arias as the Polonaise, "Je suis Titania," from the opera, "Mignon," the "Romeo and Juliet" waltz song, and the mad scene from "Lucia di Lammermoor."

After the change in his voice, he was a basso, and immediately won recognition. He was a member of the celebrated Maurice Grau Opera Company when but twenty years old, and when that organization was amalgamated with the Metropolitan Opera Company he stayed and made a great triumph in New York City. When he made his first public appearance as a basso it was with Mme. Schumann-Heine, with whom he toured until signing with Grau as his leading basso for a term of years. After the expiration of this contract he gave up opera work.

He sang just enough in opera on both sides of the water to maintain his reputation, and he won distinct favor in Berlin, Dresden, Munich and Paris.

In 1902 he sang at a musicale in honor of his late Majesty King Edward, given by Mrs. George Cornwallis-West (Lady Randolph Churchill). Three months later, by special command of King Edward, he sang at a dinner, given by His Majesty to the officers of the Queen's Own Oxfordshire Hussars, and was personally commended by the King. His third appearance before the King was at Buckingham Palace, and Miss Fritz Scheff was the assisting artist.

With Miss Alice Neilson he shared the honors of a command performance given for Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall, with the famous composer, Tosti, as accompanist. To honor the composer, Mr. Gregory bought and learned his "Good-bye," and Tosti played it for him—and with that acerbity for which he is noted, refused to accompany Mr. Gregory in any numbers, written by other composers. Miss Neilson, after singing several Tosti numbers, sat down and played her own accompaniment to other songs, and Mr. Gregory was finally relieved from the awkward situation in which he was placed by the offer of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, wife of the American Ambassador at Belgium, to play for him.

Mr. Gregory is sure to be one of the big hits of the Grand Opera Festival here. His voice has a sweetness quite unusual in a basso, and many critics attribute this to his early experience as a soprano. In which, with Earle Glick, he shared the honors of the world.

C. P. EAGAN,

Duckworth St. and Queen's Road.

Address to Capt. Parsons.

Yesterday forenoon, on the s.s. Kyle, the following address was presented to Capt. Parsons, by the round trip passengers. It was read by Rev. Dr. Whelan:—

August 25th, 1913.
Captain Wm. Parsons,
S.S. Kyle.

Dear Sir,—The passengers of the round trip from St. John's to Hopeville, August 14th-25th, 1913, desire to offer their heartfelt thanks for their safe, pleasant and enjoyable journey.

The voyage, with its alluring scenes, wonders of iceberg and rockbound coast, would have been robbed of the pleasure it gave had it not been for the confidence we had in you and your officers' untiring vigilance, that was ever noticeable.

Whilst many of us may be unable to fully appreciate your skilful seamanship, there are amongst us those who have had experience in navigating the waters of the North Atlantic and Pacific, and they are foremost in their expressions of praise.

Every member of your crew reflected yourself and we would ask you to convey our thanks to them for their part in making the trip enjoyable.

Long may you be spared to fill the responsible position you now hold, for whilst under your guidance, we have no hesitation in recommending the trip to our friends.

We would ask you to accept the accompanying gift, as a souvenir. From David Lynch, F. C. Miles, Richard J. R. Calnes, C. L. Loud, M. A. Curran, J. Rosenhol, M. McNelly, Edith S. Watson, Victoria Hayward, S. J. Whelan, James Ryan, H. J. Taylor, W. Parsons, Martha C. Miles.

Capt. Parsons was taken completely by surprise, but nevertheless heartily thanked the people for their kindness and their generous expressions as to his manner of working the vessel.

Got Barred Out.

On Sunday night two sisters and a brother, residing on Duckworth St., had an unpleasant experience. On reaching home after eleven o'clock they found the door closed against them. After waiting for some time until the midnight hour approached, patience ceased to be a virtue and they attempted to force their way through the door, but their efforts were unavailing. At last one of the sternest sex conceived a scheme. Going to the rear of the house she climbed up a ladder and managed to get through a window; needless to say the trio have vowed that they will not be caught out after the cock ticks 10 any more.

This is to certify that I have used MINARD'S Liniment in my family for years, and consider it the best liniment on the market. I have found it excellent for house flesh.

Boys Break Into House

The police are now endeavouring to hunt up a certain gang of boys, against whom a serious complaint is lodged. A few nights ago the alleged culprits forced an entrance into a private residence on East End. They cut off a portion of a lead water pipe at the rear of the house, and it is evident brought instruments with them to carry on this work. The youthful marauders must have been disturbed in their operations as they decamped without doing further damage, except that they broke open an outhouse where fowl are kept.

Cargo Valued

at $175,000.00.

The brig, Ada Pearl, Capt. Stale, will sail to-day for Glasgow with about 120,000 seal skins and 400 casks seal oil shipped by Bowring and Jobs. It is one of the most valuable cargoes of its kind to leave here for some time and its value approximately would be worth about $175,000.

A Good Officer Gone.

We are very sorry to hear that Constable P. Butler is going to leave, as he was a good and obliging officer and he will be missed by many friends in the East End. We wish him every success in the future.

MORE BONES UNEARTHED.

White Council employees were excavating on the Southside road yesterday, they discovered more bones which were placed in a box for re-interment.

The Gossip.

None can hope to hold a candle to his persistence, to the vaunt who goes peddling his wares up and down the village street, when he should be busy hoeing in the garden patch, or mowing on foul errands he is going, traveling on eager feet. "Have you heard the latest story on J. William Hunkydory?" asks the scandalmonger hoary, as you try to pass him by. "Here you heard what they are telling of Jim Rooster's sister Ellen?" And the weird and wicked felon then repeats some evil lie. Maybe when this freak was younger for good tales he had a hunger, but, become a scandalmonger, nothing suits him but the base; never a word of admiration for a soul in all the nation, not one of appreciation ever trickles from his face. Does he ever pause to wonder why in blitzen or in thunder people try to stand from under when his voice he would upraise, why the people dodge and shun him—save the ones who come to dun him from the village 'till two days? This is true, my friends, be jaspers: if you lie about your neighbors then die wages for your labors will be deathless scorn and hate; telling stories not demanded, doing actions underhand, finally will see you landed where pariahs congregate.

Quebec Has Spicy Case of Blackmail

Quebec, Aug. 22.—The Quebec police court has now under investigation a case of considerable interest. Last spring Ernest Aitell, engaged in the lumber business, sold twelve hundred ties to the Quebec Harbor Commission. Before their delivery he got into financial difficulties, and during his absence in Montreal to consult with his creditors, the ties arrived at the port of Quebec. The "phoner" captain, not finding Mr. Odell, went to J. E. E. Letellier, one of the three harbor commissioners, who purchased the ties for 42 cents each, and it is alleged, afterwards sold them to the commission for sixty cents. Mr. Odell came back to Quebec, and, learning of the transaction, approached Mr. Letellier for a share of the profits, and not receiving any satisfaction, wrote a letter to Mr. Letellier threatening him with exposure to his chief. The latter immediately applied for a warrant and had Mr. Odell arrested on a charge of blackmail, and the case has been in the police court for nearly two months. In the meantime Mr. Odell was approached for a settlement by making an apology, including the admission that he had lied. This Mr. Odell refused to do, and the case promises to go for trial, if not dismissed after investigation in the police court.

If you consider yourself a worm of the dust you must expect people to trample on you. If you make a boast of yourself, people are sure to whip their feet on you.

More men fall through ignorance of their strength than through knowledge of their weakness.

You may succeed when others do not believe in you, but never when you do not believe in yourself.

The curiosity of him who wishes to see fully for himself how the dark side of life looks is like that of the man who took a torch into a powder mill to see whether it would really blow up or not.
