STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.

ASIATIC CHOLERA IN NEW YORK CITY. NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Board of Health announced this morning that from a health announced this morning that from a bateriological examination made by Prof. Herman Higgs on bodies of several sus-pected cholera patients, there have been five deaths from Asiatic cholera in the city of New York.

THE NEWS AT QUARANTINE, NEW YORK.
QUARANTINE, N. Y., Sept. 14.—The greatest excitement in the station down here to-night was caused by the report of five cases of cholera which had taken place in New York. Intense surprise was expressed at the news by the officials, and Dr. Jenkins expressed himself as confident that it had not passed Quarantine. He said the best authorities in the world stated that a stringent and complete quarantine could only claim to prevent 70 per cent. of the possibilities of the introduction of cholera into a place. The other 30 per cent. of possibilities of cholera invading a port were open to other means, over which quarantine had no control.

Dr. Jenkins has telegraphed that he will probably release the Normannia's passengers to morrow. The steamers Majestic, Rhynland and Amalfi were released from quarantine this afternoon, and the steamer La Champagne was released from quarantine this afternoon, and the steamer La Champagne was released from quarantine to-day and arrived at her dock.

The doctors will examine the tenants every day and night and keep sharp watch for cases of sickness. They will also disinfect and fumigate the premises daily and take all measures necessary to prevent infection. Health Commissioner Briant said that while cholera existed in this city it did not originate here. How the dead persons contracted the plaque is not known as yet, but no pains would be spared in the endeavor to trace it to its source. One thing is certain, Dr. Briant added, that it came from some outside source, whether through Quarantine or some other direction is yet a mystery.

London, Sept. 14.—Scotland is seething with indignation in consequence of a series of letters in the London newspapers contending the conduct of Scotch soldiers in the last Boer war. All the writers charge the Highlander griment with gross cowardice. One writer, who was at the Majuba Hill deteat of the British troops, declares the Highlanders to be the worst cowards with ever wore uniforms. They acted like a herd of calves. He says many threw away their arms and ran for dear life. They did most towards losing the battle for the British troops, and lastingly beamirched the honor of the British army. Several writers go so far as to demand a parliamentary inquiry into the conduct of the Highlander in the Boer war. The defenders of the Highlander griments centend that few Scotchmen have joined these regiments in the last 30 years, and call for a reform which will regiments centend that few Scotchmen have joined these regiments in the last 30 years, and call for a reform which will realize the plan of picking the Scotch soldiers carefully, paying them well, and making them what they are supposed to be —the clite of the British army. of bustling activity. Exhibitors' carts are pouring in through the King street gate, and every department is a beehive of industry.

The spacious main building resounds with the blow of the carpenter's hammer, the buzz of the hand saw, the clatter of voices and the hum of general industry. Every inch of the big building has been taken, and it is fast filling up with things useful and ornamental that will shortly delight the thousands who will surge through the corridors day and night. In the gallery on the west side the ladies are at work arranging for the artistic display which the fair sex will make, while to the left the costly and beautiful art exhibit is being placed in position. "Everything is lovely," said Chairman George M. Reid, of the main building committee. "This place will he a palace before many hours have passed. It will be chock tull, high and low." The arc lights now illuminate the building nightly.

It's the same story everywhere. Machinery hall is already pretty well stocked and agricultural implements and other exhibits appertaining to this department are coming in bythe cartload.

The big turnips are rolling into the agricultural hall, in which the display is rapidly assuming shape. The special and collective exhibits from Manitoba, the Guelph Agricultural College, the Ottawa Experimental Farm and the Indians of Ontario are expected to be ready for inspection to-day. Horticultural hall is being transformed into a bower of flowers will find everything to delight the eye and gratify the senses in the floral charms of the place. The farmer will be specially entertained and instructed in the dairy department, where processes of cheese and butter making will be exemplified with electricity as the motor power.

"I don't know where we will find room for all the carriages," said an official. "The display will be immense. The entries are so numerous that we have had to refuse applications because of lack of space." The live stock has already commenced to arrive and there will be a grand showing. All the stock will be admitted through the King, Campbell and Dundas street east entrances until 10 a.m. Monday; after that by the King street entrance only.

A wonderful improvement has been made in the poultry shed. There are 600 coops, fresh painted, light and roomy, and provided with every convenience, making altogether the finest poultry building in the country. And the exhibit will be in keeping. The attractiveness here will be added to by a handsome floral display under the capable supervision of caretaker Grant of Victoria Park, who will be deck the interior with flowers and foliage.

Interesting Athletic Sports at the Asylum.

A Day of Recreation for Patients and Speciators—The Asylum Men De-icat the "Ds." in a Tug-of-War.

The occasion of the annual athletic sports of the London Asylum is always one of rare enjoyment for the patients and attendants of the institution, and for many from the city who always attend. The fifth of these events was held yesterday on the beautiful Asylum grounds and was undoubtedly the most successful of them all, which is saying a good deal. Wet weather the day previous cast a slight damper on those interested in the annual sports, as the patients look forward to them with a great deal of pleasurable anticipation; but Pluvius was kind, and although old Sol's smile was hidden behind the clouds, the grounds and the atmosphere were dry, and smile was hidden behind the clouds, the grounds and the atmosphere were dry, and everything went off right merrily. A good crowd from the city was present and entered heartily into the spirit of the affair. The athletic programme, under splendid management, was pushed through with neatness and dispatch. Competition was keen and competitors numerous, and there were over 30 events, many hearts were made happy by useful and valuable prizes.

The most interesting and remarkable feature was the tug-of-war between teams from the Asylum and "P" School of Infantry, eight men of muscle on each side. The first pull lasted twenty minutes, and was won by the Asylum men. Then came the tug for life. The teams changed sides and for 47½ minutes—just think of it!—those sixteen men of bone and sinew tugged and strained like modern Sampsons, and so equal was the division of strength that the handkerchief in the center of the rope hovered all that time about the mark in the middle. The excitement was intense, and the opposing sides were cheered on by their respective backers, who mopped the perspiring faces of the manly athictes as they clung like grim death to the unresponsive rope. At last the kerchief began to flicker in the Asylum's direction, and by a long pull, a streng pull and a pull altogether the soldiers were dragged over the line amid deafening applause. The vanquished, as well as the victors, were congratulated for their pluck and endurance.
