Ordering of United States Warships to Turkish Waters Causes Complications.

Sayville, L. I., Aug. 29.—Alarmed at the critical condition of American-Turkish relations, Chubbick, the Port's envoy to the United States, is hastening to Washington for a conference with Secretary Hay.

The despatch of the American warships to Turkish waters is a source of the greatest anxiety to the minister.

Although confident himself that the Washington government's only motive in taking this action was to protect American citizens, he fears it may have the effect of rendering more difficult the efforts of the Port to afford protection to foreigners.

EXCITEMENT AT COLORED WEDDING

An Unusual Interruption at A Select Affair in A Toronto Church.

From Our Own Correspondent.

London, Aug. 29.—(Special.)—An unusual interruption disturbed a wedding in full progress at Parliament Street Methodist church last night, much to the excitement of the people who had assembled to witness the ceremony.

The groom was a colored man named Scott, employed by the Kemp Manufacturing Company, and he was in the act of taking for richer or poorer the girl of his choice, when the sound of sobbing was heard, and a young lady came slowly up the aisle in apparent great distress.

So much attention was attracted to this unexpected denouement that the officiating minister, the Rev. Dr. Chambers, was compelled to stop and enquire into the cause of the trouble.

"He ought to be marrying me," wailed the intruder, endeavoring to get between the bride and groom; but her pathetic appeals were useless. The minister found to just cause why Mr. Scott should not marry whom he pleased, and the disturber the person being removed, the ceremony was completed.

Coast Fruit For Northwest

Well Known Victoria Firm's Experimental Shipments are Successful.

Splendid Opportunity is now Offered to Provincial Farmers And Fruit Growers.

When a representative of the Colonist called upon Messrs. F. K. Stewart & Co., wholesale fruit merchants, yesterday afternoon to enquire how the fruit trade between British Columbia and the Northwest Territories, in which Messrs. Stewart & Co. have taken so prominent and energetic a part, was developing, Mr. Brechey, manager for the first shipment of four carloads of fruit to Winnipeg to the effect that the latest shipment of fruit carloads had given perfect satisfaction, and in reply to the query as to whether British Columbia apples could be placed in front of the new bulk fruit market, he handled almost an unlimited quantity of fruit.

Mr. Brechey, in reply to further questions, said his firm had made a most careful study of the art of fruit packing for long-distance shipment, and they were extremely pleased to note that the magnificent quality of the provincial fruit was bringing its own reward in the Northwest market, and was steadily increasing demand.

"There cannot be the slightest doubt," said Mr. Brechey, "that the new market opening up there for British Columbia fruit is going to make this one of the main fruit-growing provinces of the continent, and the incentive is now supplied in a package which has practically no limit. As we all know, marvellous changes have been taking place in the Northwest for some years past, and the population is now there that can take all the fruit we can send, and much more. But one thing is certain, and that is, that the province should have improved upon them all due earnestness, is that the important thing is to get on with scientific packing. Given these two requisites, British Columbia fruit can hold its own against anything in Canada or from across the line."

"Probably you are well aware that every fruit-growing export which has visited this province has expressed the emphatic opinion that we have here a local climate and soil well adapted to the production of fruit of the highest quality. The art of packing to stand long transportation is a science, and to learn at a considerable expenditure of time and money, the history of the art has been the same in California and Ontario. In fact wherever fruit is grown and intended for export, British Columbia growers need not go through that painful and wearisome experience, but profit at once by the experience of others. Any horticulturist or farmer who is really anxious to learn the way to pack his fruit, will find our firm always perfectly willing to give him all the necessary directions. We make a speciality of this part of the business, and we can now point to the results which have already accrued, and we firmly believe that the fruit-grower's issue with our farmers, who have hitherto looked upon it as somewhat a dull and unprofitable money-making proposition at all, will develop in a way to astonish the most sanguine."

"It is not only in Winnipeg that we ship our fruit, but it is distributed in almost all the fruit-growing provinces of the Territories and Manitoba. This is a sample of the kind of letters we have received from the fruit-growers of that quarter," said Mr. Brechey, showing the Colonist man a letter from a prominent grower in the Northwest Territory, the British Columbia fruit in no measure inferior to that of the Northwest Territory.

"I would like to see letter transportation facilities," continued Mr. Brechey, "and we feel quite sure that the C. P. R. are perfectly well aware of the importance to themselves of the development of the fruit trade, and that they will do what they can to foster it as rapidly as possible. Yes, we ship the only fruit-growing province in Canada with plenty of ice, and so far we have had no complaints of fruit arriving in bad condition. There is one American fruit grower who holds his own, even now, with about anything grown on the Pacific coast. The fruit is so admirably adapted to the growing of first quality apples, pears, plums and other staple fruits, that it is exceedingly gratifying to observe that the attention of the C. P. R. is being turned to this way, and that orchards laid out on approved methods are being planted in the Northwest Territory, and already open for trade under the inland sea navigation rules. The correspondent contends that an amicable arrangement between Japan and Russia is impossible, and it is highly improbable that Japan will remain peaceable. If she is not content to sink to the position of an inferior power, she is compelled to seek advantages in Korea."

Whatever happens, Corea's existence as an independent empire is doomed," continues the correspondent. "I recently visited the coast of the Gulf of Port Arthur, and everything at both places indicate a marked increase of military energy. Dally is becoming a garrison city; there is absolutely no trade."

"British residents only number three in the Northwest Territory, and are represented by a Russian agent, while the American Trading Society has closed its agency."
