State legislatures in Uncle Sum's domain exercise their unfettered rights in the full, round sphere of law-making. Their aptitude in forming rules for the government of the people enables them to discuss the rights of women and merits of the ground hog's weather tions with equal profundity. In looking over the measures presented to the various egislatures we find some amusing bills. Not oug ago an eastern legislature made the owner of a hen that trespassed on a neighbor's pro-perty hable to a fine of something like $8 says that at the police court counsel for Munof a hen that trespassed on a neighbor's properly liable to a fine of something like $8 for each offenes. Pennsylvania proposes to make man subject to criminal action if he invites his neighbor up to a bert to take a drink. New York pondered wisely over the difference between "hard," and sweet cider for a considerable time. Wisconsin has passed a law providing that all cows shall be milked three times a day. But a California legislator caps the climax of eccentricity by the introduction of a bill, the first section of which is as follows:

"Section I. It shall be unlawful for any spectator in any public place of amusement to wear a covering for the head which shall reach more than three inches above the crown of the head, or more than three inches above the crown of the lead, or more than three inches above the crown of the lead, or more than three inches above the crown of the lead, or more than three inches above the crown of the lead, or more than three inches above the crown of the lead, the latteral circumference of the head; and any person wearing such a covering for the head which shall be fined in a sum not less than $5 nor more than $10, or be imprisoned in the county fail not less than two days nor more than six days; provided, that this act shall not apply to females more than 35 years of age."

The seventeenth annual meeting of the Confederation Life Association was held at the head office in Toronto on Tuesday last. In presenting their report in so full, concise and systematic a manner, the directors are to be congratulated, not only by the shareholders and the policyholders, but by intending assurers as well, who thus have an opportunity to ers as well, who thus have an opportunity to fully study the standing of so excellent an institution. In 1888 the Confederation issued fully study the standing of so excellent an institution. In 1888 the Confederation issued 1785 policies, representing $2,627,848, the total business in force on Dec. 31, 1888, being $16,762,937, under 10,896 policies on 9586 lives. The board have been wise enough to be careful in the selection of new business, and as a result a most substantial progress has been made. The capital of the Confederation has never been imparred, has always enjoyed a surplus over all liabilities, and to-day is one of the leading loan companies.
