It was announced shortly afterwards that complaints of piracy were made by the captain of the vessel against Labrador fishermen. An inquiry was brador fishermen. An inquiry was brador fishermen. Smith of Cart Smith of brador fishermen. An inquiry was accordingly held by Capt. Smith of Halifax, whose report was received at the department to-day. The investigation appears to exonerate the master of the Mexico from blame in connection with the loss of his steamer. That he overran his course 15 miles is attributed to influence of an unknown easterly current. The charge of piracy against fishermen of the Belle Isle coast is unfortunately only too clearly proven. Had the marauders contented themselves with tigation appears to exonerate the maraugers contented themselves with looting the ship's stores and such of her cargo as consisted of provisions they could not be severely blamed. The report says that immediately after the steamer went ashore she was boarded by scores of fishermen, who plundered the vessel of everything they could carry away. They came in such numbers as to terrify the crew, and the captain could thus do nothing to save his ship from depredation, and besides carrying away quantities of butter, cheese and flour, they stripped the vessel of her sails, carried off the captain's and officers' personal effects and even the nautical instruments, which, with the exception of the compasses, could be of no use to them, but to sell. Worse still, they set fire to the wreck for the purpose, it is believed, of gaining access to the more valuable cargo stowed in the lower. valuable cargo stowed in the lower

Dear Sir,—In connection with the death of Mr. James Chambers and his wife, Lillie Chambers, whose death occurred nine days before his own, and both of whom were insured in your company. We feel like publicly ex-

ily of small children, who are left fatherless and motherless, that the parents by wise foresight took out poli-cies in the P.P.I. for their protection. The cost of the insurance was very low, and coming in small amounts, payable at different times throughout the year, it gave them no trouble to keep them in force, and now the $2000 insurance which they left is a boon to the orphans. We appreciate your business-like methods and thank you for your promptness in paving these to the orphans. We appreciate your business-like methods and thank you for your promptness in paying these claims before due.
