THE EUROPEAN WAR

Another Unsuccessful Attack on Verdun

PARIS, March 19-The German forces in the Verdun region have resumed their activities to the northeast of the fortress, delivering an attack late yesterday against the French front opposite Vaux and Damloup, the War Office announced this afternoon. The attack was without success, being stopped by the French curtain of fire.

Russians Resume March Against the Turks

PETROGRAD; via London, March 19-After three weeks of suspended activity the main Russian forces beyond Ezerum, which have been waiting for the developments of operations on the Black Sea and in the Lake Van region to make their position service against possible flank attacks by the Turks, have again resumed their westward march toward Sivas.

Make Another Attack on England

LONDON, March 10-Nine persons were killed and thirtyone injured in an air raid of four Germany seaplances over the east coast of Kent today, it was announced officially tonight. A British airman brought down one raider over the sea, the German observer being killed.

Allied Air Raid on German Naval Bases

LONDON, March 20 England was thrilled today by the successful outcome of the greatest air raid in the history of aerial warfare, which took place this morning, when sixty-five Allied machines raided the German naval air bases at the Belgian coast town of Zebrugge. From what observers reported, it is evident that a tremendous mount of damage was done without any loss of life by the raiders. It is believed that this raid, coming within a few hours after four German seaplanes had attacked the east coast of England, marks the beginning of a new policy on the part of the British aeronautical authorities. The air wise now look for all subsequent attacks by the Germans to be followed promptly by retaliatory action on a huge scale by the Allies.

An unusual feature of the Zebrugge affair was the presence in the raiding air fleet of fifteen fighting machines heavily armed and ironclad. These monsters were used to prote t the bomb-dropping craft, in case resistance was encountered.

OBITUARY FREDERICK C. HARRIS

At seven o'clock on Friday morning. March 17th, after several months' illness, Frederick Church Harris entered into rest, having just passed the sixty-third year of his age. Mr. Harris had been in failing health for some years, but not until recently had he been confined to his bed. In early life he was head clerk for Vaux Bros. of Halifax. After his marriage to Mary, third daughter of the late Hon. John Aldous of Charlottetown, P. E. I., he removed to Bridgetown, and for a number of years conducted a general mercantile business here. He was a man of a retired yet genial disposition. His family of five children all pre-deceased him. He is survived by a widow, two sisters, Mrs. Halles of Wolfville and Mrs. Seamen of Kentville, and one brother, Joseph Harris of Wolfville.

The funeral service was held in St James Church Sunday afternoon, the Rector, Rev. E. Underwood, officiating. The pall bearers were: W. R. Longmire, Fred McCormick, A. F. Hiltz, and Thos. Kelly. Interment was in the Church of England Cemetery. -----

BRIDGETOWN SCHOOL EXHIBI-TION. 1916.

During the fall of 1915 there were more than one hundred School Exhibitions in the Province.

The idea of School Exhibitions is to introduce a more practical education in the school and consequently make it more useful and interesting to those who most need it, the boys and girls of 14 to 16 years of age. This is an age of progress. In thé industrial world men are finding new ways of doing things. In all branches of our complex commercial life this is true. Farmers are only in rare cases farming as their father's did. Is it not strange that our schools which should be the pioneers of all progress, are still following the methods of half a century ago? Our aim is to make Bridgetown school one of the progressive schools. We want our education to be useful rather than ornamental, and linked up with the affairs of real life. In doing this we need the assistance of the people of Bridgetown.

Anticipating the hearty co-operation of the citizens, a committee of the School Board met recently and took the liberty to appoint the following committees:

I have not been able to call on the members of each committee individually, but have seen the chairman of each, and without a single exception Chas. Bent of Beaconsfield, passed to they have promised to do all in their the great beyond, after a brief illness. power to make our first School Exhi-

Germans Have Again Shifted Point of Attack

LONDON, March 20-The German attack has again shifted to the west to F. Baudson, 12th Belgian Regiment, bank of the Meuse. Their ranks replenished after the failure of five other night assaults on Vaux, like alternate blows on the Verdun anvil, the Germans have once more turned their attention to Le Mort Homme.

This time, however, instead of attacking from the Corbeaux wood, the Generals of the Crown Prince are attempting to flank the hill. Today violent attacks, accompanied by the use of liquid fire, were delivered in the Malancourt I hope you also will like to help Avoncourt sector to the south and east instead of to the north of the hill. In the Malancourt wood Paris admits a partial success, but does not detail the extent of the German gain.
