

South Africa Lurching Toward Democracy.

The government and the ANC eye each other like prospective partners in an arranged marriage, not liking what they see, yet knowing that wedlock has much to offer.

Richard Steyn

Thinking About Nuclear Weapons After the Coup.

Recent radical reductions of nuclear weapons reveal just how tired and encrusted the arms control process had become.

David Cox

Rebirth of the Cambodian Nation.

Accords signed in Paris in October might at long last put an end to Cambodia's misery.

Gérard Hervouet

Spring 1992

Japan Ascendant. Wealth, Power, Responsibility in a Turbulent World. Roundtable.

Ruykichi Imai, Hisanori Isomura, Seizabro Sato and Akihiko Tanaka.

France's Nuclear Albatross.

France is burdened with thirty years of defence doctrines and nuclear hardware that are irrelevant in the new Europe.

Frédéric Bozo

A Clear Gathering of Miraculous Success.

Winning the Nobel Peace Prize drew world attention to Aung San Suu Kyi's political struggle, and to Myanmar's brutal authorities.

John Badgley

Operation Zero -- Fidel's Last Hurrah?

For the first time since the 1959 revolution Fidel Castro's charisma might not be enough to keep the old regime alive.

Edgar J. Dosman and John M. Kirk

Fighting God, Maghreb's Political Turmoil.

The successes achieved by Islamic fundamentalists in Algeria's first democratic elections are a serious threat to peace and stability throughout the region.

Abdelhamid Gmati

Moving Mountains in Rio.

We should probably not expect very much from June's UN "Earth Summit" in Rio de Janeiro - then again, maybe we'll be surprised.

David Runnalls

Letter from Prague.
