A Value Unexpressed

There are things of sentiment that cannot be set down in dollars and cents—that evade every effort to place a crude valuation upon them.

Such is the great Russian painting, Makoffsky's "Wedding Feast," now being shown in the Store.

That the owner has and does refuse almost unbelievable sums for it adds, no doubt, to its interest.

But each person who looks at it adds just so much to its value to the world of art and intellect.

Its money value is over $50,000.00.
