

INDEX OF FIRST LINES

A Clerk ther was of Cauntebrigge also . . .	Skeat . . .	327
A diagnosis of our hist'ry proves . . .	Newell . . .	334
A dingy donkey, formal and unchanged . . .	Frere . . .	92
Alack ! 'tis melancholy theme to think . . .	Hood . . .	229
And this reft house is that the which he built . . .	Coleridge . . .	143
Art thou beautiful, O my daughter, as the budding rose of April . . .	Calverley . . .	298
As manager of horses Mr. Merryman is . . .	H. Smith . . .	76
As o'er the hill we roam'd at will . . .	Calverley . . .	296
As sea-foam blown of the winds, as blossom of brine that is drifted . . .	Bunner . . .	365
A strange vibration from the cottage window . . .	Bayard Taylor . . .	284
A sweet, acidulous, down-reaching thrill . . .	Bayard Taylor . . .	274
At home alone, O Nomades . . .	Bunner . . .	368
Away, fond dupes ! who, smit with sacred lore . . .	H. Smith . . .	54
Back in the years when Phlagstaff, the Dane, was monarch . . .	Newell . . .	334
Balmy Zephyrs, lightly flitting . . .	H. Smith . . .	29
Beautiful Soup, so rich and green . . .	Dodgson . . .	322
Behold the flag ! Is it not a flag . . .	Newell . . .	335
Birthdays ? Yes, in a general way . . .	Stephen . . .	376
Brown o' San Juan . . .	Bret Harte . . .	367
By myself walking . . .	Lamb . . .	153
Cabbages ! bright green cabbages . . .	Thackeray . . .	242
Can there be a moon in heaven to-night . . .	Hogg . . .	120
Choose judiciously thy friends ; for to discard them is undesirable . . .	Calverley . . .	299
Come, give us more Livings and Rectors . . .	Moore . . .	155
Come hither, my heart's darling . . .	Aytoun . . .	254
Come, little Drummer Boy, lay down your knapsack here . . .	Canning and Frere . . .	63
Comrades, you may pass the rosy. With permission of the chair . . .	Martin . . .	258
Dear Jack, this white mug that with Guinness I fill . . .	Thackeray . . .	245
Fare-tinted cheeks, clear eyelids drawn . . .	Bayard Taylor . . .	278
Farewell, farewell, to my mother's own daughter . . .	Hood . . .	241
Fairshon swore a feud . . .	Aytoun . . .	250
Fill me once more the foaming pewter up . . .	Aytoun . . .	252
Fine merry franions . . .	Lamb . . .	151