

shall, (except as above described) be excluded from the Society, and shall not be re-admitted without the usual ceremony of election. That during the meeting, the business of the Club only shall be discussed; every Member while addressing the Chairman must stand up, and all motions shall be made in writing, which shall be decided by the majority of the Members then present.

VII.

That in the election of new Members, a majority of the Club shall be present; that five black Balls shall exclude; and no person be balloted for unless proposed, by his request, at a previous meeting. On admission, he shall be required to sign the By-Laws within three days from his election, which only constitutes him a Member, even though the votes should be unanimous. He shall within ten days provide himself with utensils, and pay the sum of five Shillings to the Secretary for the use of the Club.

VIII.

That for the purpose of maintaining a good understanding, and orderly transacting the business of the Club at its several meetings, it shall be the President's duty to give all directions, and attend generally to matters relating to the Club--attend to all motions made and seconded, and put the same to vote.

IX.

The President's duty shall, in all respects during his absence, devolve upon the Vice-President, or Secretary; or in the absence of those, on such Member as a majority of the Club shall immediately appoint.

X.

That when from age or other infirmity, a Member is rendered incapable of taking an active part, he shall be continued as an honorary Member, be excused from attending at fires, and, unless agreeable to him, the meetings also; and in the event of the removal of any Member from Fredericton, he may at his request, with the consent of the Club, be annexed to the list of Honorary Members.
