Poultry—The supply of poultry was the rgest we ever saw on the market in 14 pers, and the prices the best all round ring that time: they ranged as follows:

The new Grand Trunk Pacific eleva-tor at Tiffin, Ont. (near Midland), which has a total storage capacity of furkeys, 20c to 25c per 1b.; geese, 12c to 2,000,000 bushels of grain, has been Be; ducks, 14c to 16c; chickens, 14c to 16c; making a great record during the past making a great record during the past 20 months, when it was opened for business. It has handled during that period—without serious delay to ves-sels or cars—13,304,000 bushels of grainfoul, flor to 12c. Butter-There was a good supply, and a good demand, at firm prices, ranging from 23c to 30c per 1b, and some of poorer quality sold at 25c to 27c. Eggs-Supplies of new-laid were large for this season of the year. Prices ranged from 40c to 45c per dozen, the bulk selling at the former figure, altho some farmers were asking 50c per dozen. a Market Notes. I L Paterson of Swap Bros, was back J. L. Paterson of Swan Bros. was back as buyer-for that firm. Mr. Paterson was heartily welcomed by his many friends on the market, who were pleased to see him, as he is regarded as a straight deal-

This sets a high-water record for handling of grain in Canada by mod-ern fireproof elevators, in the con-struction of which the Grand Trunk has been the pioneer—and it was the pioneer in erecting the old style of elevators at the various Georgian Bay for handling grain. The elevator yet, Tiffin is a duplicate of the new large elevator at the head of the lakes at Fort William—planned by the same architect—and which was recently Miss Etty Beamish of Etobicoke topped the market for 18 turkeys, 221 lbs., all away together, at 24c per lb.; but they were extra quality, and were bought by John Barron. Miss Beamish, it will be seen, got hearly 33 each for her turkeys. Public Amusements

Nothing could have been in better Nothing could have been in better taste for a popular of the second by Frank Weisman on Saturday night at Asso-clation Hall, for the second popular concert of the Toronto Symphony Or-chestra. The music was all of the best class, while its popularity was un-doubted and the cordiality of the audi-ence was unbounded.

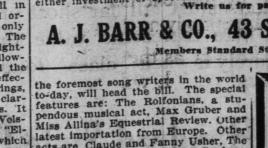

doubted and the cordiality of the audi-ence was unbounded. Herold's ever welcome overture to "Zampa" opened the concert, and showed the orchestra to be well in hand. The crescendoes were well or-ganized, and the full tone was only conditioned by the small hall. The strings had great delicacy and spright-liness, especially in the passage follow-ing the lovely diationet solo, and the punctual brass was artistically effec-tive. Greig's tone poem for the strings. "Spring," was given with superb clar-ity, and a truly lyric consciousness. It by and a truly lyric consciousness. It was highly applauded, but Mr. Wels-man reserved the encore for the "El-fenreigen," by Helimesberger, which followed. Two movements of Goldmark's "Rusthe Wedding" symphony, the "Sere-nade" and "In the Garden." proved that this work will grow more popular by repetition. The former received most applause, but the exquisitely heautiful passages of the garden move beautiful passages of the garden movebeautiful passages of the garden move-ment, closing with the lovely scoring for reeds, cellos and double basses, was equally meritorious. A fantasy on Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" proved to be a great success, and the "Tannhauser" overture was done with sufficient contrast between the Sensu-ous strings and the austerity of the brass. The final climax was wrought up with a majestic body of tone. In-

Frederic Nicolai is well-known as a 'cellist for his purity of tone and his sympathetic renderings and he exhi-bited his best qualities in David Pop-per's "Im Walde." There is a passage in this with a descending scale which seems to be a perfect rendering of a conception of sunset and it was done with vibrant color. An insistent en-core gave the bow an opportunity to put himself right in the orchestral ac-companiment. troducing the Pilgrim's Chorus for the
