JESSAMINE.

Then silence abode between them for awhile. The music of the band had ceased, and whatever were the concluding exercises of the celebration in the church they were inaudible in the great parlor, where cool shadows slept in the corners, and the scent of pond-likes and jessamine steeped the air "Don't you believe it!" said Jessie, with a saucy flash of her great eyes the table at the guest. "I have imaginative man, and the glory of the place and hour been the figure among the pillows on the couch, her dark cheeks stained red as with rich wine; the sultry yellow of the blossoms in her hair and upon her bosom making more black her wealth of hair, more clear her olive skin, the whole, forgetful that she was not alone, she watched with parted lips and eager, love-full eyes, for the coming of her lord. We shall have abundant proof hereafter that Mr. Wyllys was the reverse of romantic, and that his imagination never misled his judgment, but aestheties was a favorite study with him, and his taste being good, he decided within his patronizing self that the hour spent in the "best room" of the Dundee parsonage was not utterly wasted. He had had a study in color—and of more kinds than that which met the eye-if nothing else.

CHAPTER II. The stillness which had continued even after Mr. Wyllys had withdrawn his gaze from the picture, and Jessie had ceased to scrutinize the visitor, was broken at last by the latter, who raised herself slightly on her elbow, as she sad:

"Here they are!" The low exclaimation, fraught with delight and ill-suppressed impatiencegenuine and artless as a child's—drew Mr. Wyllys to join sessie at the win-

The road and churchyard were full of the retiring crowd, and a group of three persons was at the wicket gate. A white-haired man, of dignified and benign presence, bowed somewhat under the weight of his threescore years and ten, walked with his arm about the anoulders of one youthful and erect, who retarded the measured tread of his companion. "Stand back! don't let him see you until he comes in!" ordered Jessie; and Mr. Wyllys retreated without having made other observation of the lady at Mr. Kirke's side, save that she was of medium height and neatly dressed. Mr. Fordham's face brightened with pleasure and amazement at sight of the figure standing at the head of of Roy Fordham's features and bearing "manly." The broad brow, the hazel eyes, rather deeply set, that looked straight into those of the person with whom he talked; the resolute mouth and square chin; the upright carriage, stalwart frame and firm step-all deserved it. His height did not equal that of his cousin, but he seemed taller until they stood side by side. Without relinquishing the visitor's hand, he turned, with courtesy that became him well, to the lady who had entered with

"Miss Kirke, allow me to present my relative, Mr. Wyllys." It was a formally worded introduction, for Miss Kirke was punctifious in these matters. She bent her head graclously, but with no effusive cordiality such as had gushed forth in her sister's welcome to one with whose name she was pleasantly familiar.

"We are happy to see any friend of Mr. Fordham in our home," she said, In a clear monotone that accorded perfectly with her calm face and reposedemeanor. "Mr. Wyllys, my father.

The back of the latter was to the lounge when Miss Kirke had committed him to the host's care, and betaken herself to some other part of the house; but he knew that Roy was bending over his betrothed, smiling tender reproach into eyes that filled with happy, foolish tears at his query:

"Have you been very lonely?" her
"Not at all. I have enjoyed myself of very plainly, and hear much that was said. It was almost "I said you would be reconciled to the disappointment by noon.' 'But not in the way you meant."

The willful ring was in the voice, loving as it was. Wyllys' visage was a model of bland deference, and his answers to

Mr. Kirke's remarks pertinent, the while re was reflecting: "You are likely to have lively work on your hands, rny good cousin, with your Kate. I should hardly have cast the part of Petruchio for you, either."

"I think I will have mine brought to me here, today!" he heard Jessie say, softly, when dinner was announced. Roy's reply was to lift her in his arms and carry her across the hall to the dining-room, where one side of the table was taken up by a settee heaped with cushions. She pouted and laughed as he laid her down among these.

"I believe that you imagine that I am losing moral volition as well as bodily strength! I have taken my meals in this a la fairy princess style for seven days," she added, to Mr. Wyllys, when they were all seated— "have personated Cleopatra and Mrs. Skewton to my own content and my friends' amusement. I find it so comfortable that I shall regret the recovery which will doom me to straightbacked chairs, drawn up in a line of battle against the table. If you want to know the fullness and delight of the term, dolce far niente, practise clumsy elimbing among our steep hills, and the fates may send you a sprained ankle—a not intolerable prejude to a month of most luxurious indolence and infinitude of spoiling as I am now en-across the table at the guest. "I have a notion that both would be altogether to his liking. Unless I am mistaken, he has had Benjamin's share of these luxuries already.'

"You have been telling tales out of school, Roy!" said his cousin, threateningly, as Mr. Fordham laughed. Jessie anticipated the reply.

You are wrong, and the accusation is unflattering to my perceptive powers. You betray your ease-loving propensities in every motion and accent. Don't frown at me, Eura! I am complimenting him, although he may not suspect it. Indolence—not laziness, mind! but the graceful laissez-faire which sometimes approximates the sublime-is the least appreciated of the social arts.

Mr. Wyllys answered by a quota-

"The gospel of ease, of which Tennyson is the apostle," said Roy. [To be Continued.]

OUTLOOK VERY SATISFECTORY

Bradstreet's Review of the State of Trade in Canada.

Toronto, May 29.-Bradstreet's weekly review of Canadian trade says: Trade at Montreal last week was active for this season. The situation is very satisfactory to manufacturers and to traders. There has been a good business done in drygoods, and the prospects for the fall trade are very promising. Remittances are improving, but money is tight, especially for speculative purposes. The shipping business is very active.

Wholesale trade at Winnipeg has been favorably influenced the past week by finer weather. There has been an increase in the volume of trade. The opening of inland navigation in Manitoba has created more activity in lumbering, fishing and mining, and the construction of the Rainy River Lailway is stimulating business. Business at the Pacific coast continues good. The activity in building operations continues unabated, and the outlook for trade for the summer is very promising. Business has been quiet at Toronto this week. The cool, rainy weather has been keeping down the sales, but the welcome change in the temperature that came later is expected to make the coming week quite active in wholesale circles. There has been an improved demand for wheat, and the market is higher, with the offerings very light

THE CUBANS

Trying to Retain Their Army in Organization,

And Thus Dominate the Island When Independence Comes.

Washington May 29 -- Gen. Brooke has made no report to the war department upon the reported non-success of the effort to induce Cuban soldiers in Havana to lay down their arms, and accept the gratuity provided for them. The officials are greatly disappointed, but feel that they have done all that in fairness could be expected of them, and if the remaining Cuban soldiers are of the same mind as those in Havana, the government will not long delay a withdrawal of the offer. The suspicion is growing here that while the leaders of the opposition to the policy of the United States in this matter do not contemplate the foolhardy attempt at insurrection, they are trying to re-tain the Cuban army in organization and within their call, so that they may dominate the affairs of the island by force if need be, when the United States forces are withdrawn and the independence of the island is acknowledged. Another explanation offered is that the existence of a large Cuban army has been exaggerated.

WOODHAM.

Woodham, May 27.—Rev. R. T. Warner, M.A., of Alma College, St. Thomas, preached anniversary sermons in the Methodist Church, on Sunday, May 21. He preached two very clear and logical sermons in the morning, on "Ministering"; evening, on "Fighting the Fight of Faith." The school children will not soon forget his remarks on "Bearing the Yoke in Our Youth." Many are the remarks in reference to the singing services, and if Prof. Warner comes to Woodland again he will have a hearty wolland again he will have a hearty welcome. Not one so important to health. The kidneys are the filters of the blood.

I had an itching, burning sensation all over, sometimes it was almost intolerable. The urine was high-colored, and variable in quantity. I was very restless and weak, badly troubled at times with palpitation of the heart, so much so that I had to prop myself up in bed. In fact, I was a physical wreck." "I saw the Doan's Kidney Pills ad-

The committee desire to place before the ratepayers the following particulars in reference to Permanent Sidewalk construction:

In lieu of the usual construction of plank walks where new walks are necessary, the committee are in a position to make arrangements under the provisions of the Local Improvement Section of the Municipal Act for the construction of at least an equal, and probably a larger, extent of new Cement Walks, and will advertise a certain number of such walks in the manner prescribed by the act. These walks will in due course be laid during the current year, unless objected to by petitions, which in the case of any specific work must be signed by a majority in numbers of the owners of the property benefited, representing at least one-half of the assessed value of such property, and which petitions must be filed in the office of the City Clerk within the period of 30 days following the second insertion of the advertisement of such work.

By resolution of the City Council, and in conformity with the Municipal Act and amendments thereto, 50 per cent of the cost of these works, as well as the whole of the cost of street intersections and exemptions will be assumed by the city as its share of the works, and the owners of property benefited will pay a frontage rate for ten years sufficient to pay for one-half of the work constructed in front of their properties. This will amount to about 3% cents per foot per annum for a walk 4 feet wide, about 4 cents for a 5-foot walk, 4% cents for a 6-foot walk, 5% cents for a 7-foot walk, 6% cents for an 8-foot walk, etc.

On the frontage of corner lots there will be an allowance of one-third off the side measurement of the lot in all cases where a permanent walk is or has been constructed on both front-

While the committee have taken steps to commence the work under the initiative section of the act, they desire to extend such construction to other portions of the city which may not be in such urgent need of new walks as the frontages advertised, and will be prepared to consider petitions from such property-owners as may desire to have walks built (which must be signed by at least two-thirds in number of the owners of the property to be benefited, according to the last revised assessment roll, and such owners must represent at least one-half in value of such real property), and to recommend them to the council as far as they find it practicable or judicious to do so. It will, of course, take some years to thoroughly remodel the city sidewalks, and the committee desire the active and kindly co-operation of the citizens in order that the new system may be made as practically useful and acommodating to all as it is possible to be. The great improvement in the appearance of the city which will be the necessary consequence of the adoption of the system of permanent construction, will very shortly prove the best possible argument for its continued
