Before the Chancellor. Macdonald v. Walkerton, R.R. G. H. Kilmer, K.C. and J. A. Mc-Andrew for plaintiff, I. F. Hellmuth, K.C. and G. A. Walker for defendants. The action was to recover $5,655.45, balance alleged to be due, on a contract to build a railway for defendants. Defendants set up that under agreement of plaintiff's it became and was their duty to fill with standard wooden blocks the narrow places between rails at frogs, guard rails and switches on defendants' line of railway, and that by reason of their neglect so to do one Clark, a conductor of defendants', had his foot caught in a frog and was run over and killed, by reason whereof defendants in J. Judgment: At the trial I characterized the plaintiff and his wife as persons utterly unworthy to be believed. They were foolishly unverseions in that they did not confine be believed. They were foolishly unveracions in that they did not confine their statements to matters as to which there might be some room for difference of recollection, but they affirmed some things and denied others when it ought to have been manifest to the common and ordinary intelligence that the exact opposite was proved beyond possibility of doubt. Therefore, I find the facts to be as stated by defendants. Defendant stated by defendants. Defendants. Franklin was executor and trustee, and he ought not to have bought from plaintiff. But it is a case of gross tactics on the part of the plaintiff. The transaction is not attacked for nearly nine years—a long time in this country. The action will be dismissed, and in view of what I have said about the impropriety of Franklin's purchase without costs. In the event of a court above reaching 3 different conclusion, I find the value of the property to have been in 1899 $2,950, so that plaintiff's damages, if the transaction could not be undone
