FURIOUS QUARRELS CAUSE OF TRAGEDY

Wife Murder and Suicide in Hotel McAlpine

DIARY TELLS THE STORY

Young Husband and Wife Found Dead After Sounds of Angry Voices Followed by Reports of Three Revolver Shots

New York, Nov. 15.—Voices rising in angry dispute, then three pistol shots, then silence, alarming, significant, drew employees of the Hotel McAlpine from their posts in a quiet hallway in the early afternoon of Monday.

As they passed for a moment in the open door, excited, a little frightened, uncertain what to do next, they saw merely that the man and the woman who had occupied the room, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carl Ruppert of Richmond, Va., were past help from any human being.

Police-Inspector Joseph Faurot who entered the room a few minutes later, saw much more than this—visible evidence of murder and suicide.

Matrimonial Misery Ruppert left a diary, curious sort of personal confessional in that it reflected his strange bent to record even the trifles and little incidents of his last life.

So it was not remarkable to Faurot therefore, that the man wrote down in his diary the episodes of his last unhappy days, entries which revealed the first keen joy with which he met his wife in Baltimore, and then the quarrels which destroyed their temporary happiness and the unbearable episode which ended in the death of both.

Diary of the Last Week Here are the entries in the diary that were made during the last few days, covering the time since they met in Baltimore a few days ago.

Monday, Nov. 8.—Got letter from Miss S., with one in it from Rosalie and Jennie. Got letter from Rosalie in Baltimore. I called her up and she promised to be at depot at 2.30. I leave Trenton 11.35 for Baltimore, arriving there 2.15 I got to Camden street depot and met Rosalie. We went to the Belmont Hotel. Have lunch there and room 106.

Baltimore, Tuesday, Nov. 9.—We get up at 10 a. m. Get lunch first at hotel and then go back to hotel and get our trunks. Then come back to hotel and leave Baltimore at 5.25 p. m. for New York. We get there 10.15 p. m. and go to four hotels before we find one to suit us. We finally stop at the Hotel McAlpine and have room 831. Rosalie begins to get dissatisfied and gets after me about the trip I had in Philadelphia. We didn't sleep at all the whole night.

New York, Wednesday, Nov. 10.—About 1 a. m. Rosalie very mad. Begins to dig her finger nails in me and fight me. One thing brings on another and I tell her about my trip and then goes to sleep. I sit around the room waiting for her to come. Rosalie gets up and beats me up some more. She writes to her mother.

In Room Thursday Until Tragedy There were more entries in the diary kept by Ruppert. What he and his wife did or said between early afternoon on Wednesday and 1.30 p. m. yesterday when he was impelled to end their lives, no person knows exactly. They were seen leaving the hotel Wednesday evening. They were observed casually when they returned rather late on Wednesday night. Next day neither left the room.

Mrs. Ruppert was a tiny slip of a woman and she was thin almost to the point of emaciation. Like her husband she had black hair, large dark eyes and a complexion of unusual paleness. There was a queer sort of alertness characteristic of nervousness which expressed itself in rapid, sudden movements. She was decidedly pretty in spite of her extraordinary thinness.

In the middle of the night one of them was dimly conscious that something was wrong. Suddenly he realized that the trouble came from a leaking gas jet.

"Wake up, Bill!" he shouted, shaking his friend violently. "The gas is escaping!"

"Well," growled Bill, "can you blame me?"
