

NEW UNITED STATES DESTROYER LAUNCHED.

The picture shows the Tucker, the newest, largest and fastest torpedo boat destroyer of the U. S. Navy, sliding down the ways of the Fore River Ship Yards, at Quincy, Mass. The Tucker is 315 feet long, 30 feet beam, and with her 17,000 horse power can make 30 knots an hour.

WAR SUMMARY FROM NIGHT CABLES

London, June 6.—The Allies, in their offensive on the Gallipoli peninsula on June 4, captured and held two lines of Turkish trenches along a front of nearly three miles. In Mesopotamia the British forces have received from the Turks the surrender of Amara and taken more than 2,000 prisoners, thirteen guns, a gunboat, barges and steamers. The pursuit of the Turks, who were dispersed into the marshes, continues.

As in all trench warfare, which characterizes the fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula, the Allies found their general advance hindered through the inability of part of their force to penetrate the wire entanglements, which the enemy had not sufficiently destroyed. This left other sections of the force open to an enfilading fire, and therefore part of the ground gained had to be given up. Some also was lost when the Turks counter-attacked.

A gain of 500 yards on a front of three miles in this sort of fighting, however, is considered satisfactory by the British, particularly as it induced the Turks to counter attack, in which they suffered very heavy losses.

Two battles are in progress in Galicia. The Russians have made a considerable advance on the lower reaches of the San and have driven the Austro-Germans back to the Lenz river, while to the southwest of Lemberg the Austro-Germans are advancing, although the Russians are contesting every inch of the roads to the Galician capital, which is the objective of the Germanic allies.

The region north of Aras remains the interesting point on the western front. Here the French claim to have gained more ground, and, according to their report, have repulsed very violent German counter attacks. The Germans, on the other hand, assert that they have repulsed French attacks.

ITALIANS IN FIRST IMPORTANT BATTLE

The first important battle of the Italian campaign is raging for possession of Tolmino, where the Italians have met the first serious opposition in their advance across the Austrian frontier.

Italian warships have been busy destroying cables and lightships in the Adriatic, and have again bombarded Montenegro. There has also been some naval activity in the Baltic, Russian and German squadrons exchanging shots in the vicinity of the Gulf of Riga.

Roumania is going through a crisis similar to that experienced by Italy before the latter country entered the war. Those who favor neutrality and those who favor war held counter demonstrations at Bucharest today and the parties are getting into shape to put forward their views. The general opinion held in London is that Roumania will join the Allies when Italy gives the word, and that Bulgaria will follow her lead.

With the King of Greece suffering a relapse and in a serious condition, no change in the attitude of that country is expected immediately.

Stirring Speech By Winston Churchill

Dundee, Scotland, June 5.—Winston Spencer Churchill, formerly first lord of the admiralty, who is chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in the coalition government, arrived today at Dundee, which he represents in the house of commons. He was received enthusiastically at a meeting of his constituents. He told them he did not come to make explanations or indulge in reproaches or recriminations, for the only thing he cared about was the waging of a successful war on the enemies of Great Britain.

"For four years I have borne heavy responsibility, being, according to the time-honored language of my patent, responsible to the crown and parliament for all business of the admiralty," Mr. Churchill said. "When I say responsible, I was responsible in the sense that I would have to bear the blame for everything that occurred. Three years have comprised the most important period of our naval history, a period of preparation for war, a period of vigilance, and mobilization.

"I have done my best. The archives at the admiralty will show the part I played in all the great transactions that have taken place. To them I look for my defence."

"I look also to the general naval situation. The terrible dangers at the beginning of the war are over. The sea has been kept clear. Everything is in perfect order. Nearly everything has been foreseen. We have taken the measure of our foe, and have only to go forward with confidence."

Declaring that if it is not possible to win the war without taking men by compulsion, he would support such a measure, Mr. Churchill said:

"I do not believe it will be found necessary, and I am sure it is not necessary now. On the contrary, the only places which will never lack soldiers are the bloody trenches in France and Flanders. No nation has ever, at any time in history, found such a spirit of sacrifice; it is widespread, almost universal, in the masses of the people."

"We are confronted with a foe who would, without the slightest scruple, exterminate every man, woman and child by any method open to him, with as little scruple as a gardener would have in smoking out a wasp's nest," said Mr. Churchill. "The whole nation must be organized and mobilized to secure a victory which will bring lasting peace."

FRENCH ENGINEERS DOING GREAT WORK

"Cause Us to Lead Life of Infernal Damnation," Wrote German Soldier

Paris, June 5.—The part played by the engineering corps in the fighting in the region of Arras is described in a narrative from an official observer attached to the French army, given out here today.

"In the vicinity of Carney the battle has been conducted by use of mines since January," the observer writes. "The calm courage shown by our men in the face of great dangers is especially worthy of mention. In this region the galleries and subterranean connecting trenches are more than a mile and a half in length and the quantity of explosives used from March 6 until May 15 more than 28 tons.

"On May 9 an attack was begun on Carney. Early in the morning the attack was prepared by artillery and simultaneously by the explosion of seventeen mine fields, which destroyed completely a majority of the enemy's barbed wire fortifications and breastworks, and demolished the enemy's subterranean passages. German sappers and miners were killed outright, only seventy being captured.

"This gave great courage to our infantry in charging, owing to the knowledge that the ground beneath was not mined and that they need not fear that any minute they might be blown up.

"Many other places also were captured, owing to the splendid work and long preparation of the engineers. Their work was particularly valuable at Lorette and Decaerville. The work of the sappers, in the construction of trenches bomb-proof, platforms for guns and super-imposed galleries, also has been excellent. As soon as ground has been gained engineers are brought up to organize it against counter-attack.

"A letter taken from the body of a German says: 'The French engineers cause us to lead a life of infernal damnation.'"
