The Giants' Victory.

(New York Times)

The world's series of 1922 has passed into history and John J. McGraw, leader of the Giants, has achieved the greatest triumph of his brilliant managerial career.

Seldom before has a team gained so decisive a victory in the annual classic of the diamond. Conceded only a slim chance of defeating the Yankees before the series opened, the Giants not only retained their title as world's champions, but in doing so scored an overwhelming victory. They outplayed the champions of the American League in every department of the game. They demonstrated their superiority in a most convincing fashion. They proved themselves worthy of their title of champions of the world.

They have earned the right to a place among the greatest teams of baseball history. When the Giants were staggering through the late stages of the pennant race handicapped by a wavering staff of pitchers, the majority of baseball critics declared that they would prove easy victims for the Yankees, whose pitching staff was considered the strongest in the two major leagues. It was said that even the great hitting ability of the Giants would not be able to set the wide difference in the pitching strength of the two clubs. As soon as the Giants had clinched the pennant McGraw started the task of grooming his team for the battle with the Yankees. So successful was he in bringing his pitchers into shape that they outplayed the vaunted staff of the Yankees by a wide margin. They held the Yankee battersmen well in check in four victories in five games. The Giants erred on several occasions, but on the whole their teamwork was remarkable. They functioned like a well-oiled machine. They took advantage of every opportunity and limited the Yankees to a meagre score.

Behind these latest triumphs of the Giants the directing genius of McGraw shone more brilliantly than ever before. There is none to dispute his right to the title of the greatest manager in baseball history. New York can well be interested in the re-organization of a city bowling league was held at Black's last evening. Seven teams were represented. It was decided to go ahead and form a league, and a committee was formed to interview owners of bowling alleys having four or more alleys with a view to inducing them to enter a team. The teams will roll alternately on the different alleys. It is hoped that a view to inducing them to enter a team. The teams will roll alternately on the different alleys. GENERAL BOOTH AROUSED FILM MEN

English Theatre Proprietors Do Not Like Alleged Statement.

London, Sept. 28.—(By Mail). A statement attributed to General Booth, head of the Salvation Army, that the cinema was "spreading moral pestilence and was incurably infecting multitudes of young people with the virus of immorality and lust," was referred to at a meeting of the Northern branch of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association in Newcastle.

J. Snell, of Gateshead, the chairman, announced that the matter had been taken up by the Council of the Association, which had requested an explanation and a withdrawal of the statement.

Ultimately a reply was received from Major Tucker, of the Salvation Army, stating that referring to changes taking place in the moral feelings and outlook of the country, it was "clear that the general's statement referred to the countries he had just visited."
