A Sweater Adds Zest

Occasion Like This

It's glorious, of course, to paddle when the sun is high in the heavens and you are basking in its rays; but when the sun has dipped below the horizon's rim and the surrounding air grows cool the Summer Girl slips her arms into a cosy, jaunty sweater-and contentedly keeps on paddling. There's nothing just as comfy as a sweater at such times;—so much better than a coat,

It has no lining, no padding,

It is next to nothing in weight.

It is easy and natural.

It will retain its shape even under most adverse oonditions.

—It is washable. -It is the ideal garment for the out-of-doors.

There are new ones here to look at. A dashing burnt orange in close ribbed knit; a deep purple, a natty cornflower blue, a slate, a tobacco, a sand

-all these come with a jaunty cap to match. The set, $5. A combination of stripes—Saxe and white, black and white, etc. with trimmings of plain color; crochet buttons. Jaegars, in white and colors, with and without collars, $5, $6, $7, $8

A fancy knit-navy, cardinal, white; d.b., with trimmings of plain color, comes at $3.25. A real Sports Coat, with detachable hood, is ticketed $5.75. Grey and tan are the colors. Some of these have high necks, some low necks, some turn-down collars; single and double breasted; medium and long lengths.

Prices begin as low as $2.25. Colors, styles and prices to please every taste and purse.

THE FRESH WATER WOLF. The Muskallonge is Built For Swift-

The Muskallonge is Built For Swiftness and Offensive Warferes.
The muskallonge has been called the bugganeer of the fresh water. He loves deep, cool lakes or swift, clear running waters. He is built for swiftness and offensive warfare. He is the natural enemy of all fishes, a ferce and dauntless marander. He is as a tiger in cunning and ferocity, and as ravenous as a wolf. He feeds on his own kind as readily as on any other spedies.

nous as a wolf. He feeds on his own kind as readily as on any other species.

Just why the muskallonge should strike at the nondescript troll of the fisherman no man knows, any more than he knows why the trout or salmon rises to a fly that looks not at all like a fly. It has been argued by muskallonge wise persons that he attacks it in a fit of anger, a spell of uncontrollable temper aroused by the intrusion of the object upon his sight while he is lying in wait for prey to come that way.

According to this belief the muskallonge, thus intent, is attracted by the shadow of the fisherman's boat as it steals along on the surface over his lurking place, and he cocks his eye up at it disapprovingly. Soon the glitter of the spoon on the fisherman's line comes along. That is too much. It is like the waving of a red flag at a bull. Instantly he rushes up and strikes it. Whatever may prompt this dash of the muskallonge on the fisherman's troll, when he strikes it and turns to dash back to his lair with the big hooks in his jaw it is as with the temper of Satan, and the resulting grapple with him by the fisherman is something to write epics about.

The Great Lakes are the natural home of this mighty game fish, and there are traditions of muskallonge weighing 100 pounds having been taken from those waters. The greatest targe of angling muskallonge waters is in the wonderful chain of lakes through Oanada.

Along toward the middle of July a propose the proper starge of the proper of the muskallonge waters in the wonderful chain of lakes through Oanada.

is in the wonderful chain of lakes through Canada.

Along toward the middle of July a curtious thing happens to the muskallonge. His teeth fall out. A sort of piscatorial Riggs disease seems to attack him. Naturally he loses flesh in the toothless season, and his inability to enjoy any of the good things that swim about him increase the savagery of his temper.

With the coming of September he has cut an entire new set of teeth, has cut an entire new set of teeth, and they are like knife blades set up and they are like kinter blades set up on edge in his jaws. Then he takes on new vigor, voraciousness and aggressiveness, with the memory of weeks of pent up fury and unappeased appetite to avenge. And then comes the angler's best opportunity with him.

Galt's G. O. M.

Galt's G. O. M.

The clotest male resident of Galt, Ont., is Nicholas Grenfell Kinsman. He was born in St. Day, Grunnuk Parish, Cornwall, England, on January 25th, 1819, so at the present time is in his 96th year.

Early in life he responded to the call within him for adventure and in 1844 went to Mexico where he engaged in work as an engineer at the Mineral Del Monte and other silver mines of that troublous and unhappy country. Here he led an exciting life and a story of the adventures and dangers he met with would read like a romance. Bandits and robbers roamed the country, and human life was safe, in many cases, only behind the shining muzale of a revolver or gun, In those days in Mexico men carried their lives in their hands.

He was there married to his present wife, the eldest daughter of Captain Joel Whitburn, in 1850, and consequently they have been man and wife for the long period of 64 years.

It was in the apping of 1858 that he came to Canada with his wife and two children and took up a home in Galt when the now prosperous town was nothing more than a straggling villegs. In Mexico he had gained a competence which assured him a good income for the remainder of his life, and during the years that passed he has enjoyed his well-earned prosperity.

Both Mr. Kinsman and his wife pos-and during the years that passed he has enjoyed his well-earned prosperity.

Both Mr. Kinsman and his wife possess exceptionally good health. He attributes his long health to plain living, and observance of the good old rule "early to bed and early to rise," and prohibiting smoking and drinking of any sort.

The Duke of Connaught is quick to nail a lie. The other day a Canadian paper received a letter which tells its own story.

"The attention of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaugh has been called to a peragraph in The Daily Blank of June 25, headed, Prince Arthur is Unlucky, at Cards."

"His Royal Highness desires me to give an absolute denial to the statements contained in the said paragraph. Neither His Royal Highness himself nor Prince Arthur of Connaught were at Windsor Castle, or near it, during Ascot races, and Their Royal Highnesses never play cards for money except an occasion game of bridge for very modest stakes."

Wife number three was a widow when he met her by chance one morning in Oxford Street, but she was his wife by the afternoon of the day following. They never had a tiff or a cross word. His fourth wife, who only died last October, was courted and wed at similar express speed, and with like happy results.

The late George Gissing, the novelist tiring of his lonely life in his "digs" in Islington, strolled out into the Marlebone Road, having previously made up his mind to propose to the first passable-looking woman he met. He carried out his resolution, and was accepted, but the resultant union was far from being a happy one. Better luck attended a somewhat similar venture on the part of a well-known author said journalist now living. Disgusted with a spoilt breakfast served one morning by a slatternly landlady, he sailled forth into the London streets in search of a girl who would marry him and "do" for him.

First of all he made a trip right round the underground" railway, stepping off at every station, and silently appraising the physical charms of the young ladies who dispensed cigars and eigarettes at the little klocks on the various platforms. He proposed to two of them, one at Charing Gross, the other at Earl's Court. Both of them laughingly declined. Probably they thought he was joking.

Nearly a Nursemaid.

Next he tried a nursemaid whom he scraped acquaintance with in Hyde Park. She seemed inclined to accept, but her mistress appeared unexpectedly upon the seene and the interview had to terminate prematurely.

Eventually he proposed to a barmaid whom he found disengaged during the slack hours of the afternoon behind the seloon bar of a well-known city tavern. She accepted him after some slight demur.

They were married two days later, and it is satisfactory to be able to add that their joint venture has turned out an unqualified success. In fact, although more than seven years have elapsed since then, their friends, and they are many, unite in agreeing that they are as happy and as well-matched a couple as any in England.

Quite recently a man who was temporarily deprived of his eyesight through an accident proposed to the nurse who was engaged to look after him. He had not seen her at the time, for the bandages had not been removed, but what he admired about her, he explained, was not her face or her figure, but the sweet, gentle tones of her voice. He was accepted, and the wedding took place as soon as he was sufficiently recovered to leave the hospital.

Beetle Tramps Vagabondage is not restricted to the human species. Insects, it has been discovered, can compete with the best in its members of the "derelict" class.

For instance, a kind of water-beetle, who, by all the laws of bestledom, should dwell in our own island, has crossed the "foaming main"—by what means is not known—and is now to crossed the "foaming main"—by what means, is not known—and is now to be found perfectly at home in the beautiful isle of Japan. It was also discovered, about two years ago, that a certain beetle, becoming, it is supposed, disgusted with the south-east coast of England, had removed its patronage to the Isle of Man—for what reason none width determine.

In a similarly inscrutable and mys In a similarly inscritable and mysterious manner, a mountain-beetle has, of recent years, descended to the plains, and was a little while ago uncarthed at Deal. It would, therefore, appear that even beetles indulge in seaside holidays.

But there is one—and only one, it is true—steadfastly patriotic beetle still left in England; it is the silver-beetle, and is only to be seen on the south-east Why Postmen Are Thin. Has it ever struck you why a stout postman is such a rarity? The question s worth attention

A postman who in a busy London re-sidental district walks from fourteen to A postman who in a busy London residental district walks from fourteen to sixteen miles a day, starts out in the morning with mails weighing something like eighty pounds. As his letters and packages are distributed, the weight of his bag, of course, grows less, so that the average weight he carries during his trip is forty pounds. A pint of water weighs a pound. A ten-quart pail weighs about twenty pounds, and the average weight the postman carries is equal to two of these. If you want to know why postmen are thin, try a fifteen-mile walk with a ten-quart pail of water in each hand.

The driver of a brewery wagon, on the other hand, is the start on the seat of his dray most of the day, and often consumes large quantities of liquid. Policemen, too, often grow fat through standing about on their beats.

Fifty-five thousand infants were treated at the schools, while the seniors were conveyed to thirty-three parks, and later amused by Punch and Judy and other shows and sports.

CURING BAD HABITS.

Try a Little Self Hypnotism on You In a large eastern city is a professional hypnotist who has a wide reputation for curing the habit of intemperance. His method is dirt simple. "There is no real hypnotism about it "There is no real hypnorism about it—unless it is a matter of self hypno-tism," this professor once said. "I simply observe the mind process of the man that drinks and advise him how to reverse it. The subconscious solil-oquy in the mind of the man that drinks runs something like this:
"When did I have my last ball?
Whew! Long as that! I don't see how I stood it so long. Wouldn't have thought it possible.' And so on the victim repeats to himself on the prin-ciple that he needs this periodical stimulant just as it is necessary to heap coal on to fire to keep it from burning out. In a word, that man self hypnotizes himself into the belief that he needs a drink.

"My advice to cure this craving is not to fight the appetite, but to fight down the cause that leads to the appetite. Let a man repeat to himsel over and over again: "I really don't need this drink. If I take it, it's simply a matter of pouring so much down my throat superfucusly, for I could get along without. Before long he will be surprised how instead of hyp-notizing himself into drink he will hypnotize himself out of it." Simple, isn't it? But if this sell hypnotism or whatever you choose to call it is a cure for intemperance why is it not equally a recipe for curing other bad habits?—Chicago Tribune.

Looking out of his window in a ho-tel one bleak wintry morning in the good old times, Dupre saw an old beggar sitting barefooted on the stone steps below. His heart was moved with compassion, and he began to search for a pair of shoes. He found two pairs, one of them new. "Do not give the new pair away; ou will need them yourself," urged

The fool said one day in the king's presence, "I am the king!" And the king laughed, for he knew that his fool was wrong.

A week later the king was angry because of an error he had committed and exclaimed, "I am a fool!" And the fool laughed, for he knew that his king was right.

Not Much. Howell—Reading maketh a full man, Powell—But if you get arrested for drunkenness the judge isn't inclined to accept as an excuse your statement that you have been reading.—New York

The Only Time. Thomas—Dad, when is the freedom of the city given to a man? Dad-When his wife goes to the country for the summer.—Harper's Bazar.

Every age has its problem, by solv ing which humanity is helped forward -Heinrich Heine. Any weakness in your back?

Sometimes you experience pain and weakness without much suffering. Later weakness without much suffering. Later on the pain will surely come. The trouble can be stopped now by rubbing on Nerviline—rub it in deeply over the spine, and then put on a Nerviline Porous Plaster. In these remedies you will find wonderful and quick relief. They will spars you from an attack of Lumbago, which is the outcome of neglected pair in the back or aide. For all muscular pains, strains, and weakness, Poison's Nerviline and Nerviline Plasters have no equal. Befuse substitutes.

Safe Investment

ONE of the safest invest ments of to-day is to place your spare cash in building lots. It will in a short time yield for you a large return. No fear of land depreciating in value. Purchase a lot as an investmentif you do not want it for your self, secure one for your wife o children as a sensible present and watch it grow in value. Do not buy it for cash, pay for it by instalments. The easy payments you will never miss. Call and see us, and we will explain the plan more fully.
