Fashion Notes.

Some brilliant red directoire long coats are seen upon the fashionable promenades at the various resorts, these elaborately decorated with cape collars, bands and special ornaments in black passementerie, length of the garment on the side seams, and points on the front of the skirt porlilac, pearl, ecra, sea green or primrose china silk. The contrast of the brilliant color of the redingots with the soft deli-cate shade of the dress is striking, and, in a way, picturesque, but is not admirable on the street even at a very fashionable watering place. Some of the autumn dress skirts are arranged so as to give the appearance of a edingote or polonaise, though in reality the bodice is separate from the basques, which fall below the waist, the division being concealed beneath some sort of gir dle. This style is much more easy to make than a fitted coat. Other models show a front like a spencer jacket, and this cut away over a waisteoat finished with deep pocket flags at the side that are as wide and deep as many of the French basque pieces. At the back the drapery falls straight, with wide bands of rich passementerie down each side matching those on the spencer jacket.
