A PROFITLESS LESSON.

A Commanding Officer's Orderly Who Had Ideas of His Own.

In one of our infantry regiments quartered at Aldershot some time ago, one of the men was detailed for commanding officer's orderly. It was a miserable day, rain coming down in torrents, and one of the far end of the camp, our son of Mars, thought it was hard lines, as, being a wet day, his comrades would have no parade.

Thus it was in no good humor that he repaired to the orderly room. Walking straight to the colonel he said, in an abrupt and surly tone:—

"I'm your orderly."

The colonel was too astonished to reply, and the man repeated:—

"I'm your orderly."

The colonel rose from his chair and said:—

"Come here, my man Sit down in my place and fancy you are the colonel and I the orderly, and I will show you what you ought to do and how to do it"

He went outside, and knocking at the door, he opened it, and walking straight to the man, saluted and said:—

"I've come to report myself as your orderly, sir"

The man, equal to the occasion, said:—

"Very well, remain outside I will call you when I want you"

He did so, and, waiting a few minutes, he heard the man call "Orderly"

What was his astonishment on going in to see the man leaning back in the chair with his feet on the table, smoking a cigarette, and to hear him say in a drawling voice:—

"I won't want you any more, orderly You may go to Halifax for the rest of the day"

It is needless to say the colonel did not avail himself of the permission—Spare Moments

Helpful Hints.

Moths have no fondness for walnut leaves

Wool underwear is cheaper than sickness, and many times more agreeable

Beat eggs thoroughly for cake and incorporate them with the other ingredients

As a cure for ringworm, try yellow dock root steeped in vinegar

The convenience of a moistened sponge when sealing letters and affixing stamps should not be ignored

Finely clipped paper, pine needles, clover heads and deer's hair are some of the substitutes recommended for feathers in pillows

A teacupful of salt in the bath water in the morning will be found beneficial to some delicate children

A weak solution of oxalic, citric or tartaric acid may be applied to paper and prints to remove stains of ink without much fear of damage When the stain is removed, wash in pure water

Fashion and convenience have agreed to the engraving of the address at the head of all stationery

For a convalescent, a drink that is both palatable and nourishing is obtained by adding a beaten egg to a glass of lemonade

An egg beaten up lightly, with or without a little sugar, is also a good remedy in cases of dysentery and diarrhœa; it tends by its emollient qualities to lessen the inflammation.

Frequently the autumn finds a number of broken dishes awaiting a healing hand. A sure cure is said to be effected by this application: Turn upon a half pint of milk the same quantity of vinegar; when a curd has formed, mix the whey with the whites of four eggs, beating the whole thoroughly, then stir in sifted quicklime until the mass has acquired the consistency of thick paste. This cement dries quickly and is impervious to water.

Sweeping caps may still be classed among useful trifles, if not with elegant adornments. They protect the hair from dust and are easily donned. One that costs but a few cents is cut from cambric, a circular piece twenty inches in diameter. Hem the edge deep enough to admit a narrow elastic band, made, when drawn in, just the size of the head. Cut two bias strips respectively two and two and a half inches wide, pink the edges, lay one within the other, and pleat in double box pleats; sew this around the edge and the cap is ready for wear. These caps are more dressy made in two colors of cambric, as pink and blue, light gray and pink, or any two harmonizing colors, the cap being in one color and the ruching of the two combined.

When a woman returns home very weary, The Pacific Journal recommends taking off the bodice and brushing the hair up to the top of the head, then squeezing spongeful after spongeful of water, as hot as can be borne, on the back of the neck and base of the brain. After five minutes of this the face should be bathed with hot water and a rest of five minutes taken on the bed or in an armchair. If possible, a glass of warm milk or some gentle stimulant like beef tea should be taken.

Of a Domestic Nature.

A colored witness in a Southern court recently stated that he was unable to testify as to a certain occurrence, because he had a "domestic trouble" just about that time "What was this domestic trouble?" asked the examining attorney "Well, to tell the truth, boss," said the witness, "I was in the penitentiary for stealin' a cow"—Argonaut

Mild Request.

"Do not tell my folks," he faltered, "how I died." Even the hard-hearted sheriff, who was adjusting the noose, stopped to brush away a tear "They are very nice people," sobbed the doomed man, "and they would be dreadfully mortified to know I ever wore a necktie I had not tied myself"

What She Would Do.

May—I wouldn't marry the best man in the world

Agatha—Nor I I would marry the bridegroom, and let the best man have one of the bridesmaids—if I ever got the chance

ABOUT THE TEETH.

Their Enamel Covering is the Hardest Tissue of the System.

A tooth in its normal condition consists of four different substances—enamel, cement, dentine and pulp Enamel is the outer covering of the crown or exposed portion of the tooth, and by a wise provision of nature it is thickest where most subject to use and wear.

It is the hardest tissue of the human system, possesses of itself no sensibility, and contains not over four per cent. of animal matter Yet it is an important fact, and one that should not be lost sight of in caring for the teeth, that this indispensable coat is almost entirely soluble in acids

Cement is the bone-like covering of the roots and neck of the tooth, corresponding for the covered portion to the enamel, with which it blends and unites about the edge of the gums, for the exposed part Dentine forms the body of the tooth It is not so hard as bone, consisting of parallel tubes about 4,500 to an inch in diameter, and more than a quarter of its composition consists of animal matter. It is somewhat sensitive, but the sensation is probably due to the nerves of the pulp.

The latter, commonly called "the nerve," is a mass of nerves and blood vessels, almost infinitesimal in size, connected and enwrapped by a very delicate tissue These nerves and blood vessels connect with the general system through a minute opening at the extremity of the root, with which exception the pulp is entirely surrounded by a wall of dentine

In fact, the pulp is the germ of the body of the tooth, the dentine is formed from it and nourished by it; when the pulp—which is extremely sensitive, as most readers know—dies, the dentine loses its apparent sensitiveness, gradually changes color, and itself becomes dead

WORTH KNOWING.

How a Silver Spoon May Become a Very Serviceable Laryngoscope.

Do you require, say for the examination of a case of sore throat, a means of brilliantly illuminating the interior of the mouth? If so; here is a method of procuring in a moment a very brilliant light just suited for that purpose Hold a tablespoon behind a candle, the concave side towards the flame, and you will find that you have an excellent reflector, enabling you not only to concentrate the luminous rays, but to direct these with ease and precision to the part of the throat you desire to examine.

A silver spoon will also enable you to study the very spurious properties of curved mirrors. Hold the hollow side before your face, and in the concave mirror thus extemporized you will see your features, upside down Turn the spoon round, and its opposite, constituting a convex mirror, will show your face, this time right side uppermost, but lengthened to abnormal proportions, narrow at top, but broad at bottom, and more of a caricature than a portrait By turning the spoon horizontally, still with the convex side toward you, your features will be reproduced in a squat and swollen form, giving you a notion how you might look if you were hanged The surface of a well-polished silver dish cover is a still better medium wherein to study these distorted reflections, many of which are irresistibly funny

A Great London Store.

The greatest English departmental store is Whitely's, of London There is practically nothing that he does not furnish The story is told that a foreigner made a bet that Whitely could not furnish anything asked for The wager was accepted The foreigner gave the order: "An elephant, to be sent to my hotel before evening" Whitely sent out to a circus that was exhibiting in the city, bought the elephant and delivered it as requested Whitely has an immense farm, provides his own dairy products for customers, puts up preserves and jellies, runs a great meat market, conducts a number of omnibus lines and has a dozen enterprises which converge into the store and augment his great retail trade He makes a specialty of providing houses and furnishing them complete The customer merely informs him of the locality in which he would like to live, and how much total investment he desires to make, and Whitely buys the house, furnishes it in every detail—even to stocking the cellar and pantry with things to eat—and presents his bill

A FAMOUS MAN!

What His Researches Have Done for the World.

DR. CHASE

All successful and distinguished men have imitators, and Dr. Chase, the well-known author of Chase's Recipe Book, proved no exception to the rule. Dr. Chase's discoveries have many pretended rivals, but no equals.

Long scientific researches produced Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and Chase's Ointment, the first a certain cure for all kidney, liver, stomach, bladder and rheumatic troubles: the latter an absolute specific for chronic and offensive skin diseases. Among his other discoveries were Chase's Catarrh Cure and Chase's Linseed and Turpentine for colds and bronchitis.

During 1895 the Canadian manufacturers, Edmanson, Bates & Co., 45 Lombard street, Toronto, gave away free 500,000 samples of Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and 100,000 samples of Chase's Ointment. The return they brought proved how much they were appreciated. The same free distribution of samples will be continued during 1896. Those at a distance should enclose a 5-cent stamp and also receive a sheet of the latest music in return.
