INTERESTING REPORTS OF HIGH SECRETARY, HIGH TREASURER AND AUDITORS OF HIGH COURT I.O.F.

FREDERICTON, July 13.—The High Court, I. O. F., opened its twenty-sixth annual session at 3 o'clock this afternoon, the High Chief Ranger, George W. Mersereau, presiding and with a good attendance of officers and members. The annual address of the High Chief Ranger was as follows:

HIGH CHIEF RANGER. To the Officers and Members of the High Court of N. B., Companions and Brothers: Greeting: It gives me pleasure to greet you on this occasion, the twenty-sixth annual session of the High Court...

MEETING OF SUPREME COURT. The most important event to us in the year just past was the Supreme Court meeting in Toronto at which it was determined to advance the rates for our 1899 members...

AN APPEAL. Agreeable to the directions of the High Court I caused an appeal to be sent out for the purpose of helping the great majority of our members who are in constant demand and he is ready to serve the order at all times...

OUR REPRESENTATIVES. We sent to the Supreme Court meeting some of the cleverest men among us and instructed them to oppose the increase. Loyalty was carried out their instructions thought it must have been against their convictions...

PROPAGANDA OF EDUCATION. On the reception of this report your high standing committee decided on an educational campaign throughout the province. They were ably assisted by P. H. C. Rangers Lingley and Wood, by Supreme Court Deputies Brewster and Todd...

LOSS OF MEMBERS. In spite of our utmost exertions our losses in members were considerable—about 600, our high secretary informed me. These losses were, however, very nearly all in the rural and sparsely settled districts where court meetings are poorly attended...

CAUSES OF LOSS. This loss was not all occasioned directly by the change of rates. Some of our financial difficulties, especially our regular meetings are not held, have the habit of paying the assessments of members out of the funds...

FRATERNITY. Brothers, Companions, our order is founded on fraternity as well as on business principles. My mind misgives me that we are not laying sufficient stress on the fraternal side, that we are allowing the sordidness of the business side to dominate us...

CONCLUSION. The report of our high secretary will show you that our finances are in a fairly healthy state and that we have secured a fair number of new members despite the unfavorable conditions...

CONCLUSION. The report of our high secretary will show you that our finances are in a fairly healthy state and that we have secured a fair number of new members despite the unfavorable conditions...

CONCLUSION. The report of our high secretary will show you that our finances are in a fairly healthy state and that we have secured a fair number of new members despite the unfavorable conditions...

and which is now in such a good financial position. I submit herewith the usual financial statements, which I trust will be found satisfactory to you.

Appended hereto is the mortality list for last year. It shows that while we are in life we are in the midst of death. Many courts have been called upon to know the loss of members, some of them on more than one occasion during the year just ended.

With the hope that we will have a pleasant time during our stay in the Celestial City of Fredericton, I am Yours in L. B. and C. F. W. EMMERSON, High Secretary.

Appended to the High Secretary's report were various financial statements. The first showed that the high secretary had received from the various courts supplies, $430.57, and for High Court dues, $3,688.64, a total of $4,119.21...

Assets. Cash in bank, $1,723.75; Supplies on hand, $1,128.20; Amounts due, $1,838.60; Kegalia and office furniture, $300.00; Total, $3,990.55.

Liabilities. Due courts, $3,487.80; Surplus of assets, $502.75.

HIGH TREASURER'S REPORT. The High Treasurer submitted a report for April 16, 1908, to May 31, 1909, showing: Cash on hand April 16, 1908, $1,819.21; Received from High Secretary, 4,119.21; Rebate check, 29.28; Total, $5,967.70.

Disbursements were $4,215.26. Of this amount $300.55 went to the Supreme Court for supplies; $1,687.12 were expenses of last year's High Court meeting in St. John; $174.40, expenses of the high standing committee; $148.12, printing; $850, salaries; $529.56, cost of organization work; $138.60, travelling expenses; and $102.81, postage and express bills. Other small accounts made up the balance.

STATEMENT OF HIGH AUDITORS. We, your Auditors of the High Court, submit herewith our annual report. We have carefully examined the books, accounts and vouchers of the treasurer, and find all receipts duly accounted for, and vouchers for disbursements.

CONCLUSION. The report of our high secretary will show you that our finances are in a fairly healthy state and that we have secured a fair number of new members despite the unfavorable conditions...

Why should St. John refuse to support the administration? The Government itself could get along without this majority as before if Mr. Mosher were not elected—and the majority is large. But the Government naturally desires the approval of the people, and the county will surely be better represented by a member who will assist the Government in doing its best for the people, than one like Mr. Lowell, who seems disposed to make the work here as difficult as possible—Hon. J. D. Mazon at Fairville, Thursday night.

Proof Positive. A western newspaper man visited Washington recently and told the following story on former Representative Amos J. Cummings of New York, who was once city editor of the Sun. One Saturday night it was announced that all the saloons were to be closed next day. Cummings called his star reporter, Murray. "Tom," he said, "go out tomorrow and find out if the saloons are selling liquor."

It was Thursday when Tom again appeared at the city desk. "They were," he reported.—Success Magazine.

CHAMPLAIN CELEBRATION RECALLS FATE OF GREAT EXPLORER, HENRY HUDSON

To most Canadians Champlain seems much nearer the present than does Henry Hudson. The former is a prominent figure in our history, his work in Canada has been recorded with great detail, and the extent of his explorations and the nobility of his character are known to every other hand Hudson has been to most Canadians a rather shadowy personage, who years ago sailed the Arctic Ocean, and whose name is usually grouped with a dozen other navigators who tempted fate in their endeavors to find a northwest passage...

Preparations For The Homeward Voyage. When spring came on preparations for the voyage home were being made, when the mutinous spirit that had shown itself at Iceland during the preceding spring, and later after the Discoverie had entered the bay, broke out stronger and more threatening than ever. The deposed mate, Ivett, was again the leader of the mutiny, and was ably assisted by a man named Henry Green, a protégé of Hudson's, and a most ungrateful scoundrel. Open mutiny now broke out, and it was supported by a majority of the crew. The fate of Hudson was soon decided, and it was no less than condemnation to a most miserable death shared in by seven others. On the Discoverie was Hudson's young son, and of the crew five remained loyal to the commander. The father, the son and the five loyal sailors, and a Mr. Woodhouse, who had accompanied the expedition for scientific purposes—eight souls in all—on a mid-summer day in 1611 were cast adrift in a shallop. They were given a small quantity of provisions, and sent on in their little craft, thousands of miles from any civilized port. Their case was hopeless, and they were never heard of again.

Like the story of most mutineers the voyage home of the Discoverie was marked by other tragedies. The Discoverie was small, the weather was tempestuous, and many of the men suffered from disease. Before reaching Davis' Strait there was a fight with the natives, in which the false protégé, Green, was killed, and later on Ivett fell ill and died before the Atlantic was crossed. And so the ring-leaders of the mutiny, as well as the man whom they betrayed, never saw England again.

Before the year was out the Discoverie reached home. One of the survivors of the crew, a man named Wacou Prickett, published an account of the voyage, in which he attempted to clear himself of blame for the mutiny, and the casting adrift of Hudson and his companions.

As the year passed other explorers followed where Hudson had led the way—such men as Button, Bylot, Baffin, Hawkrigge, Jones and Fox. And then came the Hudson's Bay explorers from Canada, Haddon and De Grosse-Pointe. Fifty-nine years after the casting adrift of Henry Hudson, King Charles II. granted to Prince Rupert and his associates a charter under which was organized the Hudson's Bay Company, which, for the succeeding two hundred years, ruled and practically owned the great northland and the Central West of Canada, and which is still the greatest fur-trading company on this continent.

from the wretched survivors who succeeded in reaching England. In May They Reached Iceland. In May the Discoverie reached Iceland. A landing was made, and the crew were most hospitably entertained by the inhabitants. Here a mutinous spirit began to show itself among the crew, but it was quelled, although not extinguished, and the voyage was resumed.

Early in June Hudson sailed from Iceland, and on the 9th of the month he was off Frobiisher's Straits, and soon after he entered the Strait that bears his name. On August 3rd, he entered the great northern sea known today as Hudson's Bay. Sailing across to the west shore he turned southward and thoroughly explored the September trough with the crew broke out again, the ring-leader being the mate, Robert Ivett, who was removed from his post. Cold weather was now coming on, and although his stock of provisions was getting low, Hudson decided to winter in the Bay. A suitable harbor was found, and in November the Discoverie went into winter quarters there. The long months that separated them from spring were a time of great hardship and suffering for the crew; and the wonder is that they managed to survive.

BURNED BARK FOUND ON OCEAN

Special to The Standard. North Sydney, July 12.—The Newfoundland schooner Eremah, Captain Evans, arrived in port today. Captain Evans reported having encountered a vessel on fire about 30 miles southeast of Flint Island and on investigation proved to be the abandoned Norwegian bark the Arizona. Captain Evans sent his mate and a sailor to see if any of the crew were on board, but they found the bark deserted. Her main and mizzen masts and rigging had been burned away and were hanging over her side. Her stern was ablaze and the fire was making its way towards the galley. The Arizona was loaded with deals from a Bay Chaleur port for the United Kingdom when she encountered the full force of the heavy northeast gale on Thursday last off Cape North. She probably became unmanageable in the storm and was set on fire and abandoned by Captain Gunderson and his crew who then took to the boats. Captain Gunderson and his men landed at Ingouish Island yesterday morning in an exhausted condition and will probably reach here tomorrow. The Arizona was 1,032 tons register. Six steamers were anchored in the streets of International Pier today awaiting cargoes of coal.
