CHAPTER X.

There were without faith in the future. Daylight, with his heavy outfit of flour, sat at the mouth of the Klondike he found flat as desolate and tenacious as ever. He closed by the river Chief Isaac and his camp beside the flames on which they were cooking. Several old timers were there. Having finished their summer at Mile Creek they had come down the river to Circle City. But at Sixty Mile they of the strike and stopped off to look over. They had just returned to their boat and landed his flour, and their report was

"moose pasture," quoth one, Long Jim, "sing to blow into his tin mug of tea, and have nothing to do with it, Daylight. It's a strike. They're just going through the strike. Hager and Ladue's behind it. It's the stool pigeon. Who ever heard of a strike pasture half a mile between rim rock and knows how far to bed rock?"

He nodded sympathetically and considered "pan any?" he asked, finally. "It was the indignation answer. 'Think I was a chequed-up fool around here long enough to fill a pan of dirt. You can't get a pan of dirt. One look at me at any pulling on in the morning for me. We're pulling on in the morning. I ain't never had faith in this City. "It for fun," he explained. "I'd give the creek for a pound of Star plug." Daylight said promptly. "But don't sneaking if I take twenty or thirty and cheerfully."

"tobacco," he said. "Long Jim murmured, 'taken alongside.' Long Jim murmured, 'late.' Daylight replied, 'twenty mile walk there and back.' 'for you to-morrow when I go up.' Daylight said to the same as Johnny. Get 'em. Long Jim's tenting bar in the d he'll lend me to me. There's a strike. I'll lend me to me and turn the papers over to him in the third old timer."

"I got a bunch," was the retort, "and I cheaper than dirt to ride her at the rate for three claims." Later at his own camp Joe Ladue strode Bonanza Creek. At last non-committal a strike, then, later, dubious, he finally at a hundred dollars for his share in the night queried.

Ladue pulled out his gold sack. Daylight absent-mindedly, and still absent the strings and rings of the gold in his palm. ALBERT CO. FAIR

PRIZE WINNERS

Hopewell Hill, Oct. 18—The annual fair of the Albert County Agricultural Society, No. 58, was held here today and was a splendid success both as to exhibits and attendance. Although late in the season—too late, it was generally considered—the weather was all that could be desired and there was a large gathering from different parts of the county. The exhibit as a whole was excellent, all lines being most creditable. It was the stock, however, that came in for the most praise, the cattle, both in numbers and quality, being much above the average. Horses were very good, and vegetables and fruit were a satisfactory showing.

In the afternoon W. B. Dickson, M. P., addressed the gathering in the hall. J. C. Stevens, president of the Agricultural Society, also spoke briefly, giving the secretary, C. C. West, much credit for the success of the society and its exhibition. Following is the prize award list:

FIGURES THAT TELL STORIES

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OF FORESTS

It is admitted by forestry experts that our knowledge of our actual forest resources is vague and uncertain at the best. Of one thing we may be pretty sure, and that is that private interests exploiting timber have tried to secure control of those forest areas that are most accessible and most easily worked, leaving the more distant timber and that more difficult recovery to public ownership. Allowing for everything, however, there seems ground for congratulation in the comparisons given above, based on the figures (not official) of a Government expert. This authority estimates as follows the timbered land making up the total illustrated in the picture.

British Columbia, 50,000,000
Manitoba, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Territories, 100,000,000
Ontario, 100,000,000
Quebec, 100,000,000
New Brunswick, 12,800,000
Nova Scotia, 4,000,000

Recent reports by explorers show that of the great forests of the north, very large portions have been burned over, perhaps utterly destroyed. The fact that two-thirds of the timber area of the country is still owned by the public does not mean that Canada can count upon owning two-thirds of the timber wealth. But the giving away of timber has been practically stopped, and even where private exploitation is permitted the conditions imposed by the Government are such as to protect the forest as a whole from wanton destruction and to secure for the public a fair share of the wealth produced.

Do not put garbage to burn on top of the range fire, but under the side or back lids, where it will dry out, after which it will burn very easily and without odor.
