Digging Up The Indian Past

leglets of shells. Brighter colored and more capacious shells that could come only from the coast have also been unearthed from many graves showing that intercourse existed with the tribes along the Pacific. From the greater rarity of these shells it seems reasonable to suppose they were used as a sort of rude money, much as the many tribes throughout the central American States used wampum.

In all the objects exhumed and examined perhaps the most interesting to the average man is the short stemmed, tubular bowled pipe of sandstone. From the legends of the Indians of to-day and the strata from which the pipe was recovered it seems evident that smoking antedates by many years the coming of the white men. The leaves of a wild plant known as native tobacco was smoked. The leaves of the bearberry (uva uris) and the inner bark of the red willow were also consumed. Even today the Indians use the two latter to mix with the tobacco of the white men.

The evidence gathered and the tools, ornaments and other things collected seem to show that there has been prac-

The preacher is

The Man With Authority

Let him be a good man, then all heaven is behind him. There is no limit to his work or the results of his work. He tells of light for those who sit in darkness, of strength for those who are weak. He carries comfort for those whose hearts are broken. He defies the open grave, for he preaches a Gospel which some day will split every tombstone and wipe every tear away, changing sighs into songs.

The preacher's message is one of hope, of light and joy because it is a message of salvation—salvation from guilt and power of sin.

The preacher must stand beneath the cross of Christ, the refuge for a lost world—his shame and his glory. He must be so hidden in the power and love and eternal mystery of that Atoning Cross that when he speaks those who hear will recognise the voice of God.

Oh, Brother Preacher, you are an honoured man, hidden in God, taught in the Sacred Place the secrets of God and His great loving and eternal purposes for men.

tically little change between the inhabitants of a half dozen centuries ago and the Indians who greeted the first white men. And in material culture the Indian does not seem to have progressed with the advancing ages. In fact, what with the firewater and the diseases of the white men, it is questionable if the red man of to-day is as good a man as was his skin dressing, stone age forefather.

A Message to Ministers from Gypsy Smith

"The spirit of the Lord God is upon me because the Lord hath anointed me to PREACH good tidings unto the meek. He hath sent to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives and the opening of the prison to them that are bound."

The man who can say these words holds the greatest office in the world. He represents God.

He bears the greatest message ever committed to a human being.

He possesses it and must tell it out. "Lift up thy voice, lift it up with strength, be not afraid. Say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God."

There is only one book daring enough to say "Thus saith the Lord"—that is the preacher's book.

Our Mrs. and Last Business must ever be to make that great mystery known—"To make all men see."

This must be done tenderly, lovingly, faithfully as in the presence of God.

The preacher should be the cheeriest and happiest of men. For with him there is no fear of failure—if he is faithful, God will see he is fruitful.

God has said, "So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth, it shall not return unto me void but it shall accomplish that which I please and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it."

Believe in God.

Believe in your office.

Believe in your message—live, love, and preach with conviction, drenched in power of the Holy Spirit.

Then, you preachers may "Arise and shine, for thy Light is come and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee."

The Best Liver Pill.—The action of the liver is easily disarranged. A sudden chill, undue exposure to the elements, over-indulgence in some favorite food, excess in drinking, are a few of the causes. But whatever may be the cause, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills can be relied upon as the best corrective that can be taken. They are the leading liver pills and they have no superiors among such preparations.
