

EXCALIBUR year end awards

Humour

ABOVE — The "Humour" award goes to professor Gus Thais, who said he was worried this year about the sociology department going "overboard" on Canadian content. EXCALIBUR is presently trying to get Mr. Thais a guest spot on the Ed Sullivan show, which was cancelled last week. Gus has also been recommended for the writer's job on Truth or Consequences.

Graphics by
JOHN ROSE

Cupcakes Cassidy and her twin 44's

ABOVE — The "Cupcakes Cassidy and her twin 44's" award goes to Chris Weber whose entrepreneurship will long be remembered in the locker rooms of York University. (The trophy is, in fact, a candid recreation of Weber's own act at the Victory.)

Struggle for Canada

CENTRE — The Struggle for Canada award goes to Gwen Matheson and Roma Standefer, two women who put their jobs on the line this year to fight for the right of professors to teach, and the right of students to study, Canadian content.

Worker of the year

LEFT — The Worker of the Year award goes to cleaner Walter Zampolin, who led the cleaners' struggle to oust their international union and bring in the Canadian Union of Public Employees as their bargaining agent. The workers subsequently elected Walter president of their local.

Tycoon of the Year

RIGHT — The Tycoon of the Year award goes to Mike Fletcher whose eloquent oratory persuaded Founders College Council into giving away $1500 of students money to a well-known Canadian charity called the Guess Who. The money will be used to find foster homes for orphaned guitar players.