The Two Types of Tea

There are two distinct types of tea, namely Black Tea and Green Tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavour. Black Tea after it is plucked is withered and partially 'fired' or dried, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives Black Tea its dark reddish colour when drawn. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidization. There are delicious blends of "SALADA" in both of these types and also a unique blend of Black and Green Tea Mixed. All are sold in four qualities.

A Diplomat.

"I am awfully sorry, dad," said little Georgie, "to think how much trouble I give mother."

"Why," remarked his father, "she hasn't complained, has she?" "No; she's very patient. But often she sends me to the shop for things, and they are a good way off, and I know she gets cross waiting when she's in a hurry."

"Not often, I fancy." "Oh, yes; she's nearly always in a arry! She gets everything ready for baking, and then finds at the last moment she has no baking powder, or something, and then she's in an awful You know I can't run very far, and- I feel awfully sorry for mum." "Um! Well, what can we do about 11 ?" "I was thinking, dad, that perhaps you might buy me a bicycle.

Something a Little Smaller.

A town girl who had married a well-to-do countryman was asked by her husband whether she would like to have a cow of her own, so that the of fresh milk. She agreed willingly, and the couple went to a farm to purchase a cow.

The farmer, who was, perhaps, less truthful than the majority of his kind. told them that his cow was far super-ior to any other that had ever lived. As for her milking capacity she gave ten quarts a day.

The bride performed a rapid calculation and said to her husband: "We can never use all that milk. We don't need such a big cow. Why not buy a calf?"

The patient boy went to a neighbor's

"I haven't any but sweet," said the

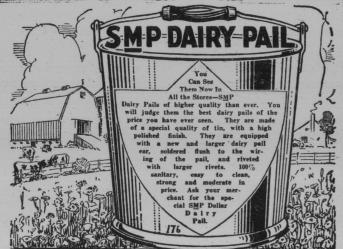

"Then I'll wait till it sours," said he.

AREE SON OF KAZAN James Oliver Curwood A LOVE EDIC OF THE FAR NORTH

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Synopsis.

Hidden benath a hug-wock, Buree, the many how be terrified to see Fiend, the hull-heed trapper, and Nepesse, his daughter, shot and kill Wagakoo, the bid black bear. This was slaughter, but for the two human creatures it was the business of life. Nepesse went ofter Baree and tried to entice him from his the eyes on the pond. Not a ripple with the same and tried to entice him from his the eyes on the pond. Not a ripple had a name, It was the Indian princess who couled him Baree.

CHAPTER VIII.—(Cont'd.)

In that moment Nepesse felt the pressure of the rock on her shoulder, and into the eyes that had been glow-live and the same from her lips a cry that was not like any other sound Baree was not like any other sound Baree was not not expend the wild. The case who can the wild not hear that first the third-and then scream after scream as the Willow's tender body was slowly crushed under the setting mass. He ran toward it with the same instant he saw a part of the Willow's crees and her mocashind feet. The rest of her was hidden under the builder she was white and deathly still. Her eyes were closed. His hand could not feet that she was not crushed as he had feared. Then he ran for water. Wenn he returned, the Willow's terrible cries and the sight of expense of the wild. The sound be sound be was gasping for breath.

Impelied by the wild alarm of the wild where he had so was a constraint would be difficult to say-but sureed. Then he ran for water. Wenn he returned, the wild ward him from the dead body of Wakayoo, seemed as though his Lungs could not draw another breath. When he stopped now and then he his flight and looked back, and then had far the culture of her soft hair, and yet of he was not fartait! If he stopped now and then ha his flight and looked back, and then had head the was not fartait! If he stopped now and then had his flight and looked back, and he was gasping for breath.

Impelied by the wild alarm of the was not fartait! If he stopped now and then had his f understand.

However this may be, courageous cid Beaver-tooth took it upon himself to end the suspense.

It was early in the afternoon that for the third or fourth time Baree walked out on the dam. This dam was fully two hundred feet in length, but at no point did the water run over it, the overflow finding its way through narrow sluices. A week or two ago Baree could have crossed to the opposite side of the pond on this dam, but now—at the far end—Beaver-tooth and his engineers were adding a new d his engineers were adding a newction of dam, and in order to acmplish their work more easily, they d flooded fully fifty yards of the w ground on which they were workThe main dam held a fascinameter for Beage. It was strong with

The top of it mixed goods.

guaranteed with Dia mond Dyes. Just dia soft, delicate shades, or boil to dye rich, permanent colors, Each 15-cent packtions so simple any woman can dye of gint lingerie, silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, drageries, coverings, hangings, everything new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"-no other kind -and tell your drugsist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, of Women often ask me says Mrs. Experience - how I get my table linen so immaculate"

"I take it as a real compliment, because most women do try to excel in their table linen.

"Of course, I tell them the way I've found easiest and best is with Sunlight—just rubbing the linen lightly with Sunlight, rolling it up and putting it to soak. After soaking, perhaps a light rubbing here and there may be called for, then just rinse, and the linen is spotlessly clean. Fine linens should be protected and never come into contact with anything but the purest soap.

"As a household soap there is nothing better or more economical than Sunlight. Every particle is pure soap, with no wasteful 'filler'. Sunlight is mild and easy on the hands, too." Lever Brothers Limited of Toronto, make it.

Sunlight Soap

The stands of the state of the just six, weeks ago that Pierrot had brought Nepesse on her first visit to Lac Bain since McTaggart had been factor there. She had taken his breath away. Since then he had been able to think of nothing but her. Twice in that six weeks he had gone down to Pierrot's cabin. To-morrow he was going again. Marie, the slim Cree girl over in his cabin, he had forgotten—just as a dozen others before Marie had slipped out of his memory. It was Namasea now. He had never seen every Nepeese now. He had never seen any-thing quite so beautiful as Pierrot's girl

Audibly he cursed Pierrot as he Audibly he cursed Pierrot as he looked at a sheet of paper under his hand, on which for an hour or more he had been making notes out of worm and dusty Company ledgers. It was Pierrot who stood in his way. Pierrot's father, according to those been a full-blooded F dering over her thrilling experience under the rock—while Pierrot still offered grateful-thanks in his prayers for her deliverance and Baree was becoming more and more a fixture at the beaver-pond—Bush McTaggart was perfecting a little scheme of his own up at Post Lac Bain, about forty miles north and west. McTaggart had been factor at Lac Bain for seven learn the mother would have been them to his power, and Nevars. In the Company's books down perses would have come to his cabin.

