large crowds, who have all been loud in their praise of the usage they received at the hands of the pari-h priest and the members of his congregation. This year there were grave tears that on account of the hard times and the consequent depression in all branches of business, the gathering would not be as successful as usual. Thanks, however, to the untiring energy of Rev. Father O'Rourke and an efficient committee, the picnic was in every respect fully up to that of any former year. The proceeds from all sources amounted to the large sum of $512, which is somewhat in excess of that received last senson. Certificate of regis excess of that received last senson. On our arrival upon the grounds we found a large number of tables set out in the most shady part of the grove, around which were gathered a lungry looking crowd, each seeking to appease a more or less rayenous appetite. Right roy-ally did the waiters perform their on-erous duties, and it was surprising to note with what a contented look the books turned away from the tables. F. B. BLANCHER.
