

READING THE HAND.

Most Murderers, it is Said, Show Their Characters in Their Palms.

A French savant contends that the murderer has a distinctive hand. His face may not be hideous, but the hands are, and are self condemnatory. Evidence on the latter characteristic is scanty and rests upon the investigations of the French criminologists; but, as to the former, it is a fact that some of the most brutal murders on record have been perpetrated by men whose countenances habitually wore a very mild expression.

Deeming was a pleasant man to speak to until crossed, but some of the authorities who examined his hands declare his broad thumb indicated the torn murderer.

The true ballheaded thumb gives to the first phalange a round, bulboos appearance. It is short, and the nail is so abbreviated as to suggest that it has been gnawed. It is imbedded in the flesh, which rises on either side and beyond it.

Dumollard, a wholesale murderer, l:ad a hand remarkable for its thickness and length of paim in proportion to the fingers. He had a significant sign, common to most murderers— namely, almost entire absence of lines in the palm, save the three principal ones—the line of life, head and heart. These lines were very strongly defined. The line of the head—the center line extending across the palm—was violently cut by the line of life running upward from the wrist. Chiromancy interprets this to foretell a violent death. His fingers were knotty and uneven at the nail phalanges.

The Game of Life.

Life becomes, as the stoics more than once tell us, like a play which is acted or a game played with coun ters. Viewed from the outside, these counters' are valueless, but to those engaged in the game their importance is paramount. What really and ulti-mately matters is that the game shall be played as it should be played. God, the eternal dramatist, has cost you for some part in his drama and hands you the role. It may turn out that you are cast for a triumphant king. It may be for a slave who dies of torture. What does that matter to the good actor? He can play either part. His only business is to accept the role given him and to perform it well. * **
Success or failure is a thing he can determine without stirring a hand. It hardly interests him. What interests hardly interests him. What interests him is that one thing which he cannot determine—the action of your free and conscious will—Gilbert Murray.

DEATHWATCH BEETLES.

Their Uncanny Ticking and Their Trick of Playing Dead.

You've probably heard the deathwatch beetle oftener than you've seen him. He hides away in furniture or interior wood-work and keeps up continual "tick-tick-tick" like watch. Day or night you'll hear him pounding away. He's eternally persistent about it and ghostlike and uncanny, hence his name.

He makes the little ticking noise with his head, pounding it on the wood. It's the way he has of calling his mate, and his mate answers him in turn. If you pound on the wood where he is hiding he'll answer you just like he does his mate.

You may wonder how he finds his way inside a piece of furniture. He gets there when he's in the grub or larva state, boring his way, through wood, paper, or anything the grub can The larva which eats its way through the leaves of a book is

The deathwatch beetle has another trick besides that one of calling his mate by pounding his head on wood. When you touch one of the little creatures he folds his legs up beneath his body and makes believe he is dead. He will keep on playing possum even if you put him close enough to a fire to roast him.—Philadelphia North American.

POWER FOR HYDRO.

Niagara Company's Offer Now Reported Satisfactory.

Toronto, July 24.—Mr. F. A. Gaby, Chief Engineer of the Provincial Hydro Commission, and Mr. Barton, General Manager of the Canadian Niagara Power Company, were in conference on Saturday regarding the details of the agreement by which the company will supply up to 50,000 horse-power it required by the end of the year to the Hydro Commission at $12 per horse-power. Mr. Gaby will report to the Commission at their meeting on Tuesday what transpired at the conference. Though no official information is available, it is understood that the details will be satisfactorily worked out, and that a temperary additional supply will be used by the Hydro almost right away.

According to a letter received by the Hydro Commission from Mr. Monro Grier, K. C., the Canadian Niagara Campany is prepared to supply 50,000 horse-power at $12 per horse-power, the supply to be arranged as required and regulated agreeably to both parties. "in view of the emergency which has arisen," says the letter, "an immediate supply of 12,500 horse-power will be provided without prejudice to the agreement which will provide for a permanent supply."

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, asked about a supply after the end of the present year, replied: "If ye need more power we will ask for it and get it." The Minister said Sir Adam Beck had put up a good fight, and it had remained with the Government to take the measures necessary to bring about an agreement.

Those On the Spanish Slopes Are the Pure Aborigines of Europe.

You are in the habit of thinking of the inhabitants of France as "French" and the inhabitants of Spain as "Spanand the inhabitants of Spain as "Spanish." Did you happen to read a learned disquisition on the shape of the skulls of people living on the two slopes of the Pyrenees, together with the announcement that, contrary to the belief of scientists, the Basques are not all of the same origin? And then did you ask, "Who are the Basques?" Primarily they are the people who gave to the rest of the world a curious kind of garment for women, but they are far more interesting to the student of anthropology and the historical development of language historical development of language than they are to the designers of wo-men's clothes.

There was a time before the present There was a time before the present generation of scientists got work on the problem when the Basques, both in Spain and in France, were recognized as the last remnant of the original occupants of Europe, the people who were driven into this backwater of civilization by the onrush of the Celts. The Celts were in their turn driven westward and into such out of the way corners as they could hold, so the way corners as they could hold, so that they are now represented by cer-tain strains in Spain, by the Bretons in France, the Irish, Scotch, Welsh, Cornish and Manx in the British isles and by a substratum of the Bohemians and the Galicians. Those who preceded them and who managed to cling to the mountain strengholds of the Pyrenees are remotely related to the Finns in another remote backwater. The ones on the Spanish slopes are the pure aborigines of Europe.

A Shabby Royal Palace.

The Persian royal palace is a most unattractive place. The courts are filled with painted pictures of cast iron in a kind of operatic Romeo's costume and with boys of gilt iron of fering vermillion cups to gilt eagles The tanks are stagnant and shabby, the gardens neglected. The rooms are horrible even for one of those monuments of bad taste called royal palaces; the walls are covered with mirrors, and a decoration made of small pieces of mirror set in eleboration. small pieces of mirror set in elaborate patterns, the effect reminding one of a wedding cake. The furniture is without exception European, of poor quality and worse taste; there is not a single one of those exquisite works of Persian art which in the collections of Europe arouse enthusiasm not so much as a fine carpet. Neither the famous peacock throne—so long erroneously thought to be the one built for the great moghal and looted by Nadir Shah—nor any of the jew-els are now exhibited. Local gossip believes them to have been broken up and sold in Europe by the present government.—"From Moscow to the Persian Gulf."

Light of the Firefly.

Probably as far back as 1733 it was known that the luminous parts of fireflies, glowworms, etc., could be dried and preserved out of contact with the air for considerable periods without losing their light giving power. In late years it has been possible to prove this permanence of the light giving power for at least eighteen months. Kastle and McDermitt were able, upon opening tubes containing the luminous organs of the common firefly preserved. gans of the common firefly preserved in hydrogen or a vacuum, to obtain quite a brilliant light by simply mois-tening with water. The light was in-creased when hydrogen peroxide replaced water. However, scientists have producing light without heat.

The Miserable Moors.

The lives lived by the Moors are without perhaps any exception the most precarious and miserable that can be imagined. The poor man is thrown into prison for sums he never possessed and can never pay, the rich to be squeezed of all he possesses, while those only can hope to escape who are members of families sufficlently powerful to arouse the fears of the local governor should he at-tempt extortion and not sufficiently powerful to stir up the avarice of the sultan.

Even the governors of the provinces suffer themselves as they make others suffer, for just as they squeeze the agriculturist and the peasant so are they in turn squeezed by the sultan and his viziers and should they fail by constant presents to maintain a good opinion at the court they can ex-pect only imprisonment and often

THE PILOT SNAKE.

He is a Bold Burglar, and Birds Are His Chief Victims.

Maybe you've been in the woods some day and heard a squawking and You look and see a pair of frightened birds darting this way and that about their nest on a limb. You look closer, and you see a long, black snake creeping along the limb to the nest. In a minute he will have devoured the young birds or eggs in the nest and then stretch out on the limb for his afternoon nap. The name of this robber is the plot snake.

He's one of the boldest burglars among our snakes, and birds are his principal victims. He can climb trees, clamber over bushes and race over the ground with equal speed. He grows to be from four to six feet long, and in the woods he looks terrible, but he He's entirely nonvenomous, and he doesn't "charm" birds, as many people believe. It may be that a bird will become so frightened at seeing one of these reptiles attacking her nest that as for charm, that's all a myth. The pilot snake doesn't need to charm his prey. He's too good a climber.

Often the pilot snake is mistaken for the blacksnake. The latter has a white throat and is bluish rather than black. The voung pilot snake has white throat and is obtain rather than black. The young pilot snake has white spots. In addition to birds and eggs, it eats insects and even small animals. It will climb a tree and crawl into a squirrel's nest to devour the young squirrels.—Our Dumb Animals.

Construction of Big Guns.

The making of a big gun involves a much intricate work as the nutting together of a locomotive or a giant crane. A twelve inch gun on board battleship if fifty feet in length, and has an extreme range of 25 miles, and an effective range of twelve miles. There is a vast amount of intricate delicate trained workmanship wanted in the finish of a giant non. For example, says a writer in the Millgate Monthly, the breech block has to undergo eighteen or twenty ma-chinings. And all the medley of mech. anism necessary to enable the ponder ous mass of ordnance to move to th right or left or up or down at a touch from the naval gunners is being built up together at the same time as the work proceeds on the gun itself. For some of the smaller guns no fewer than 550 machinings are necessary before the weapons are ready for use.

Author of "Annie Laurie."

"Annie Laurie," according to the generally accepted story, was written by a soldier in Flanders to his ladylove at home. The writer was William Douglas, and Annie Laurie was one of the four daughters of Sir Robert Laurie of Mawelton. Sad to relate, says the London Chronicle, Annie did not marry her ardent lover. Some say Douglas was killed in Flanders, but at all events Annie was led to the al-tar in 1709 by Alexander Fergusson, of Craigdaroch.

His Little Lot.

There were some interesting episodes in the life of Sir Charles Euan-Smith. Once in the market place of an Afghanistan town he was fired at by a native. He lodged a complaint with the ameer, who appeared to take no notice of the incident, merely remarking "That's all right." Sir Charles complained again and met with the same reply. He still thought that the ameer was treating a serious matter with less consideration than it deserved, but thought it advisable to say no more on the subject. About a week afterward he was invited by the ameer to ride with him. They rode for some distance outside the town, and they passed gibbet after gibbet. At length Sir Charles said: "Your Highness has been busy of late." "Oh, no," replied the ameer; "they are your little lot. He had seized all the mem-bers of the would-be assassin's family and hanged every one of them.

THE GARDEN OF EDEN.

It is Said to Have the Most Trying Climate in the World.

The chief peculiarity about Kurna is that the natives believe the place where they live is the exact site of the garden of Eden.

The climate of Kurna is acknowledged to be the most trying in all the world. The heat is terrific in the sum-mer time. It is claimed that the British government has a record of 159 degrees in the shade upon the bridge degrees in the shade upon the bridge of a boat anchored in the river at Busreh, a little to the south. The missionaries at Busreh tell of nights when the thermometer regis-ters not less than 125 degrees. British sailors bound for the Persian gulf in the summer time usually desert if they can. Perhaps in Arizona the thermometer rises nearly as high, but there is the dry air, while in the Persian gulf it is exceedingly moist. The Europeans at Busreh must pass the days in underground chambers, or serdaubs, while a native boy pulls a huge fan, or punkah, suspended from the celling to keep the air in circula-tion. The nights are spent on the roof, for it is impossible to sleep be-low.

In the winter time the air seems exceedingly cold, for the marshes are filled with salt, and as the wind sweeps over the plain the moist air is peculiarly penetrating. Frequently the Arab, benumbed by the cold, falls from his horse.
