HOW TO ENJOY A BATH

Manya Tired Over worked House wife Real zes the Benefits

To be Derived From Regular and Sys tematic Bathing Just Before Retiring for the Night.

Many a tired, overworked house wife realizes the benefits to be derived from regular and systematic bathing just before retiring at night. It is often neglected, however, on the plea that— I'm just too tired to do anything but drop right into bed af-ter the day's work is over." By following this hint for quick bathing it will soon be a source of surprise to find how greatly refreshed and rested body will be after this rapid bath which requires so, little time. Get enough turkish toweling by the vard (remnants may often be secured) to make two pairs of thumbless mittens, just large enough to slip over the thumb and allow the hand to stretch flat, also a large, rough towel and a generous supply of tepid water, and of course some good soap; and if there is no bath tub in the house, a piece of oilcloth on which to stand, with another towel or carpet remnant spread over it. s all that will be required for quick bathing.

After taking everything off stand on the oilcloth or towel in front of your basin; slip your mittens on and dip them in the water, squeeze the drips from the mittens, soap well, and rub the body all over, beginning with the neck and ending with the toes. Then take off the mittens and lay them down beside the basin; all the soil of the body will be in those mittens. Take your second pair of mittens, slip them on and go over the body again, rinsing the mittens several times. Then give the a brisk and rapid rubbing with the Bathing thus rests and towel.

A PLEASANT TIME AT THE FOREST HILL STOCK FARM, NORTH-WOOD.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weatherr, a number of the young people of the Northwood Endeavor So-ciety, having decided to have a sleighciety, having decided to have a stein ride Friday evening, carried it through to a successful issue. Instead of going to Bro. McCully's on the Creek, though they decided to visit at Henry though, they decided to visit at Henry Jewell's instead. Arriving there they were received by Mr, and Mrs. Jewell with that warmth of hospitality for which they are justly noted. A few hours were quickly and pleasantly passed in games and social conversation. Nor were the wants of the inner man forgotten, as those who had the pleasure of partaking of the sumptuous repast provided can testify. The only regrettable feature of the evening's enjoyment was the unavoidable only regrettable leature of the even-ing's enjoyment was the unavoidable absence of the pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Camp. The gathering broke up at a late hour, with many thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jewell, for the kindly welcome so generously ac-corded them, glad that they had braved the elements in their determination to have a good time.

"The blood is the life." Science has never gone beyond that simple statement of scripture. But it has illuminated that simple statement and given ment of scripture. But it has illuminated that simple statement and given it a meaning ever broadening with the increasing breadth of knowledge. When the blood is "bad" or impure it is not alone the body which suffers through disease. The brain is also clouded, the mind and judgment are affected, and many an evil deed or impure thought may be directly traced to the impurity of the blood. No one can be well balanced in mind and body whose blood is impure. No one ean thave a wholesome and pure life unless the blood is pure. Foul blood can be made pure by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the blood is pure, body and brain are alike healthy and life becomes a daily happiness.

IRELAND'S BIG WIND.

the Paint Off Puildings and Dro

Jan. 6, was the sixty-first anniversary of the "big wind in Lieland." There have been other big winds, but there never was one to at equalled the first one. Births, marriages and deaths are fixed refore and after this big wind, and the e never was a true-born I ish man who has not heard of the "night of the big wind." Many ale have been told about this hur case. According to the relators it came up about y o'clock at night. It came like a sommer, bie ze, but in a very short time it bicame furious. said it was the work of the fairles, who had become displeased at the people. So they crawled under the bed and lowered them elves in wells to escape the fury of the elements. The next morning they came out to see what the "fairies" had done. They said they found that every havcock in Ireland had blown down. They found that straw had been driven through oak poards as clean as a carpenter would drive a nail, and there are some who declare that a stone as big as a freight car had been blown seven miles from its resting place. They found that the waters had been lashed .nio such terrible state that huge whales were lying upon the shores of the lakes, and that sharks and small fish were found in the forests miles from their home in the ocean. The tale is told of the sailors who became shipwrecked, and landed on the back of a whate supposed to be an island, and the wind carried whale and sa lors to a place of safety. Every clock on the public steeples was stopped, and the wind blew the whistles on the boats anchored at the wharves without an ounce of steam showing on the gauge. The people who remember this terrible wind tell how it carried the words of the Knights and Lords from the scabbards and left the powdered hair of the Queen as natural as the day she was born, and they say that the paint was removed from the barns, leaving the boards as bare as the day they came from the forest, and rocks were carried from Mount Chevalier to the town, seven miles away. Others say the bells in the churches and schoolhouses clattered as they never clattered before, and chickens were found the next morning without a feather in their tails.

Leaves were found driven into the trunks of the trees, and corn was found cleaned from the cob on the stalk. Other terrible things happened sixty-one years ago on the "night of the big "—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Magicians Generally Poor Poker Players A group of old-time sports were telling poker stories a few nights ago and somebody remarked that the elder Herrmann, the magician, might easily, have made a fortune had he turned his attention to gambling.

"I've heard that before." said one of the party, chuckling, "and it always amuscs me. Why, my dear sir, Alexander Herrmann was one of the poorest poker players that ever drew to a bobtail. He liked a social game and plugged away at it all his life, but he was never anything but a raw amateur. Good poker players are born, and it simply wasn't in him. As far as being able to manipulate the cards was concerned, he couldn't do it, even had he been so disposed, which of course he wasn't. He could perform wonderjul tricks, but that class of work is something entirely different from what is called advantage playing. I have known four or five fine sleight-of-hand performers, and not one of them could do a thing with the dick in an ordinary game. To do saccessful crooked work in short cards requires not only great dexierity of a kind entirely distinet from stage tricks, but also a pe-cular temperament. All the men who

A Useful Coin.

It is not generally known that the secent nickel cain of the United States currency was designed with special efe ence to its use as a unit of weight or measurement by the decimal system but it is true.

From some reason the metric system though its use has been legalized in this country, is not p pular with the Americans, and it has not come into reneral use and perhaps never will. If it does, the usefulness of this coin will at once become apparent. It is exactly five grammes in weight and two centimetres in diameter.

This is, of course, not an accident, and if there shall be any change in our system of coinage, other convenient measurements and weights may be adopted, according to the same system.
