ARREST IN STRATTON CASE

R. H. Shepherd Charged With Perjury in Election Trial.

Mr. Stratton and Mr. Leary Deny Gates' Story.

Justice MacMahon Places Very Little Faith in Bribery Charges.

Peterboro, Oct. 1.—Developments took place to-night in connection with West Peterboro election trial when R. H. Shepherd, the witness who swore that he was engaged to act as a in the Liberal committee rooms and had misled the Conservatives by false reports as to illegal practices, was arrested on a charge of perjury, Shepherd at the trial stated that he had been promised $200 to Mr. In had been promised $200 by Mr. James Kendry, ex-M. P., J. M. G. Wilson, R. M. Waddell, and W. A. Brundrett to supply them with information. Cer-tain moneys had been paid to him, and these he had turned over to Mr. J. R. Stratton, the sitting member, whom Mr. J. H. Burnham, the un-successful Conservative candidate, is endeavoring to unseat, together with the information he had given to the other side. Shepherd, who lives in Peterboro, was arrested outside the other side. Shepherd, who lives in Peterboro, was arrested outside the police station, shortly after the court rose, on a warrant granted by Police Magistrate D. W. Dumble, on the information of Wilson and Brundrett Subsequently he was released on bail of $500 furnished by Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M. P., in the form of a marked cheque on the Bank of Ottawa, and he will come up for preliminary hearing at 10 o'elock in the morning. Evidence was concluded to-day before Justices MacMahon and Magee in what are known as the Leary charges. By the petitioner Leary is alleged to have paid $2 each to six Englishmen on election day, Both Mr. J. R. Stratton and Mr. Leary were on the stand to-day, and denied emphatically that any corrupt practices had taken place. The affili set up by Mr. Leary was greatly strengthened by the evidence of Deputy Returning Officer Hunter, who saw him at the North Monaghan polling station at a time when the bribes were said to have been paid by him in the Liberal committee room in Peterboro.

One of the Judges, commenting on the case, appeared to discredit the eviwitnesses for the petitioner that had the money been dence of witnesses for the petitioner by stating that had the money been paid as described it would have at once become known in the crowd, and the committee room would have been stormed. The Judges before the court rose stated that they would dis-pose of the Leary charges in the morn-ing.

DISCREDIT THE EVIDENCE.

MR. STRATTON ON THE STAND

Mr. J. R. Stratton was again on the stand this morning for the purpose of cross-examination. He modestly denied that he was a very experienced campaigner.

"I said I had none, and asked Clancy who sent him there, and he said it was a clean, smooth-faced man, and I found that it was one of the detectives paid by Mr. Burnham. James Fairs, one of the detectives, said that he had been employed by Mr. Burnham and sent many men."

"Was he not in your employ?"

"No; he was not."

Mr. Du Vernet—I will prove that he was in Mr. Stratton—That is false; put him the box himself and ask him.

Mr. Watson then took the individes all cases of bribery. The witness said all cases of bribery. The witness said.

Mr. Stratton insisted that the whole of the evidence should be read, and Mr. Du Vernet remarked: "You say Ashley was working for you?" "No." "Did you tell these men to go to the Conservative committee rooms?"

Judge Magee pointed out that these facts corroborated the witness' previous statement that he had been asked for

"Did any come in by themselves?"
"I think they were all sent in."
"Can't you remember any names?"
"Really, Mr. Du Vernet, you would be surprised at the small amount of interest I have taken in this petition."
"I thought it was one of the most skillfully worked up defences I had ever heard."
"That is to the credit of the profession. When I heard about your man.

"Will you pledge your oath to that?" "I will." "Mr. Stratton, you had better answer the question; this may go further if you make these reckless statements." "They are not reckless; they are facts."

Mr. Du Vernet then went into the Gates and Ashley interviews, when $400 and $300 were asked for false affidavits.

and $300 were asked for false affidavits. Mr. Stratton repeated his former statements in regard to the matter, and also in respect of the other interview.
"Did you tell them the penalty for bribery?" "I did not."
"You know a man called Daddy Taylor?" "He is a prominent Liberal."
"It was his duty to look after Englishmen?" "Not that I know; I don't think it is the fact."

being a good stenographer, he did a great deal of correspondence. On election day there was a great deal of confusion, and I set him to work with the voters' list to give information."

"If anything had to be done he butted in?" "Yes."

The witness, in answer to further questions said that he had no knowledge of Kingscote being in charge of Englishmen. Mr. Stratton's cross-examination lasted less than three-quarters of an hour.

Mr. Watson then produced evidence given in examination for discovery in of an noir.

Mr. Watson then produced evidence given in examination for discovery in which it was absolutely stated that Mr. Stratton said that men had asked him for money, reading that portion which Mr. Du Vernet refused to read: "Not a five-cent piece was paid to anyone," said Mr. Stratton, in reply to Mr. Watson's question as to whether unfair means had been used to get information, and he also denied that any money had been illegitimately spent as to Leary's absence.

Then Robert Leary took the stand and in answer to preliminary ques-tions said that he had resided in Petertions said that he had resided in Peter-boro all his life, and had wide business interests. He had been in the City Council and had been President of the County Agricultural Society. Mr. Watson—There is no doubt you were an active supporter of Mr. Strat-ton?" "Yes."

"And there is no question that Mr. Stratton knew?" "None at all."
"Were you asked by him to do anything?" "No; I have always taken an thing?"

"On election day what were you doing in the forenoon?" I was looking after sub-polling divisions in Ward 2." "When were you in the committee room in the morning?" "From 10.30 to 12. I made a round of stations and then went out to North Monaghan."
"In the forenoon?" "Yes; I was in charge of getting veter."

"The forenoon?" "Tes; I was in charge of getting votes."
"Did you go to the country again?"
"After lunch."

"After lunch."

"It has been stated by six men that in the afternoon you paid them money—Ashley, Harland, Alsept, Sydney Pope, Butler and Gates. Are these charges true?"

"They are not."

"You went to lunch at 12?"

"Yes, and was back at 1, because I had given instructions for Arthur Morgan to be there."

"How long did you stay in the rooms?"

"I went directly to the polling station

Bab's Lane?"
"Ten or fifteen minutes after 3."
Mr. Watson then took the individual cases of bribery. The witness said that he never saw Ashley, who had sworn he got $2 from Leary at 4.30 on the afternoon of election day, until the 21st September last. There was no foundation for Ashley's story, Cates' acquaintance he made at the same time as Ashley's. He had been told that men would be at Mr. Hall's office that night, and, therefore, he went there.

"What took place?" "We went into a small room of Mr. Hall's so we could hear the conversation that took

Were you there for that purpose?'

"I don't know."
"What happened?"
"Mr. Hall asked us to go in."
Mr. Leary reiterated the conversation and stated that Gates denied having made a statement to W. H. Moore, and

"What did Ashley say?"
"He said that it would not take him long to get out, because he had only one small trunk to pack and could get out at midnight."

"Did they say in your presence that they had received money?"

"No."

"Did Gates say in your presence that Davidson gave him five dollars?"

"No."

"No."
"Ashley says that he had a note to give to you, and gave you in the committee room a receipted bill instead."
"I never saw the man."
"You were in your usual right sensible mind that day?"
"Yes; no one ever saw me any other way; I'm a temperate man."
. "It has been sworn that there were eight or ten men in a row waiting to get into the little room?"

"I never saw anything like that."
Replying to Judge MacMahon, the witness explained that the little room had a spring door that closed itself.

Mr. Leary similarly denied the truth

Judge MacMahon — I suppose a man is at liberty to use a mild damn.

Mr. DuVernet —Do you mean that, witness?

Replying to further questions, Mr.

Leary denied that he endeavored to induce witnesses for the petitioner to leave the district, neither had he heard of such attempts being made. Mr. Watson —Are you prepared to abandon these Leary charges, now?

Mr. DuVernet—No.

James Jordan, the man whom Alseept said told him the money was going, swore that he never spoke to Alsept.

MORE EVIDENCE FOR RESPONDENT

The evidence offered at the afternoon The evidence offered at the afternoon session of the court strengthened considerably the case for the respondent. Hugh Wark and Roland Glover both swore that Harry Butler and Chas, Williams had stated to them that there was nothing in the charges of bribery they had been called to substantiate.

Mr. Thomas M. Hunter, deputy returning officer at Mayes' school, also strengthened the Leary alibib y stating that he saw Mr. Leary at the polling station between 4 and 5 o'clock.

PETITIONER'S REPLY.

PETITIONER'S REPLY. In reply Mr. DuVernet called George H. May, who said that he did not see Leary, whom he knew, at the school house, although the witness was in and out all day. He would not, however, attempt to contradict a statement made by the deapty returning officers.

by the deputy returning officer.

Mr. DuVernet in summing up the case for the petitioner averred that there had been a series of intimidations. The had been a series of intimidations. The practice had been to go to the witnesses and say, "You are in the same boat as us, and are liable to two years' imprisonment." Never in the history of election trials had there been such a condition. Witness after witness had gone into the box and spoken of from fifty to one hundred declarations having been obtained. "My friend has tried to throw doubt on some witnesses because they are Englishmen. That is a new idea in a court of English justice. I have yet to learn that perjury is the national failing of the English."

Judge MacMahon—We had an example of one who said he would do anything.

thing.
Mr. DuVernet—There are always good and bad in every class. There are men I venture to say, who have lived here longer and consider it an honorable thing not to tell the truth once a bribe has been accepted.

Proceeding, Mr. DuVernet said that the case for the petitioner bristled with circumstantial detail. They also had the fact that Ashley had been employed by Mr. Stratton, must have been friendly to him, and he destroyed valuable documentary evidence after being subpoenaed. The defence had been ingenious, but the methods adopted by the counsel for the reespondent in cross-examination for the reespondent in cross-examination had simply clinched the case for the petitioner. It was clear, however, that unless there were some change in the proceedings election trials would be simply farcical. The question was, did these men go together with the respondent and try and trap witnesses because they thought they had the truth on their side, or was it because they wished to discredit the man they had bribed and destroy damaging evidence?

stroy damaging evidence?

It was not possible, said Mr. DuVernet, that the newly-arrived Englishmen worked out such a clever scheme as that with which Mr. Leary salved his con-science. Then, commenting on the fact that certain witnesses were not called, he said: "No, they kept to the high class who would stick to their story once they got into the box and not let down the bars."

class who would stick to their story once they got into the box and not let down the bars."

Judge Magee—In the six cases before us only one promise was made, according to your witnesses; in two instances the men had no votes, and one was a man who had already voted.

Proceeding, Mr. DuVernet said: "No doubt, my Lord, there are people sitting in this court who know what was going on in that little room. The truth will come out, and I say that there is not a scintilla of evidence of conspiracy by Butler and Williams.

"I charge here that there has been deliberate conspiracy, a criminal conspiracy, to try and make evidence and tamper with witnesses, and I venture to say that when the whole facts come out that will be demonstrated to an absolute certainty. The more thorough the investigation the better it will be. It is too important a matter to be covered up. If these witnesses have formed a conspiracy they should be punished, and punished with the utmost severity."

With regard to the attempted alibi, he did not consider it signified anything, for it was admitted that Leary was there during the afternoon, and would have had ample opportunity to do these things.

Judge MacMahon—If Leary had paid $2 to six men in that room the

MR. WATSON'S REPLY.

"Mr. Watson, in reply, said that "it would appear as if the court had sat for a week for the purpose only of listening to a long tirade of abuse and slander against respectable, houest citizens. If they did not know that counsel's address was uttered for an ulterior purpose. they must have thought it was uttered as an assassin used his knife. The evidence offered was given by a pitiable exhibition of a lost type of degenerate humanity. Their Lordships had discredited the star witness, and it was apparent that this bunch of Englishmen had been hired to give the evidence and MR. Under the peculiar circumstances, with serious plackmail attempted, it was the duty of every citizen to take all steps to protect his honor and his country. No suggestion had been made that anything improper had been done by Mr. Hall and Mr. Davidson. They had offered no bribe, for such would be a payment, but the petitioner had bribed Gates in order to get the statement upon which his case rested. The whole evil arose from the employment of detectives for the despicable purposes which honorable and decent people would not think of, able purposes which honorable and decent people would not think of who were desirous of making a re-turn for their mener."

BURNED BY MOLTEN METAL.

Young Man Terribly Injured in Galt Moulding Shop.

Moulding Shop.

Galt, Out., Oct. 1.—Cowan & Company's moulding shop was the scene of a serious accident this afternoon, the victim being a young man named Albert Hubert. The men were getting ready to cast, and two were carrying a ladle of molten metal weighing 150 pounds. One of them tripped and knocked down young Hubert, who was standing nearby, and before the lad could get up the contents of the ladle poured over his back, inflicting terrible burns. There is some hope of his recovery.
