aptist Christman take a Swim.

Cut in Ohio, last week, twenty Baptist trymen, who were attending a convension, went down to a secluded spot on the river bank, in the afternoon, for the purpose of taking a swim. These score of watern removed their clothing and because the grass was wet. Then they entered the water and enjoyed themselves. Presently an express train came around the curve at the rate of forty miles an hour, and before any of the swimmers could reach dy land, all of those undershirts and socks and things were fluttering from the sew-catcher and speeding onward to Kansas. It was painful for the brethren—exceeding painful—because all the clothes that could be found after a careful search, was a sun unbrells and a pair of eye-glasses. And they do say that when those twenty marched home by the refugent light of the moon, that evening single file, and keeping close together, the most singular acquaintance with Zouave drill, on the part of a man at the head, with the umbrells, still hardly sufficed to cover them completely. They sad they felt conspicious, somehow; and the situation was made all the more embarasing because that night all the Dorcas societies and the Woman's Right's Convention, and the pupils at the female locarding school seemed to be prancing around the streets, and running across ihe route of the parade. Most of the brethren are now down on immersion, and altogether in favor of the use of wator only by sprinkling.

It is coming rapidly to this, that a first-class leader of society with a first-class leader of school seemed to be prancing around the streets, and running across ihe route of the parade. Most of the brethren are now down on immersion, and altogether in favor of the use of water only by sprinkling.

It is coming rapidly to this, that a first-class fortune, to be "on the level with his 1 saition," wants, or chooses to think he wants, a house in Iondon, a house on the river, two palaces at least in the country, a shooting box in the Highlands, an hotel in Paris as oratly as his London house, a vills at Come, a floor in Rome, an establishment in Catro or Constantinople, a yacht, a theatre and a racing stud, and then he think that life is as monotonous as it was when "in his cool hall with haggard eyes the Roman noble lay."—Spectutor.

In going it is sweeps along the ceiling tearing away props, brattices, and eyarything else, oven the pillars of coal. The unfortunate miner who may be within its influence instinctively throws himself flat upon the ground. Before he can raise the gas has encountered the body of air moving in an opposite direction. Education of Japanese Girls.

What sort of moralists the Japanese What sort of more lists the Japanese are may be gathered from their sermons, two or three of which are given by Mr. Mitford. Their preachers like some of our own, are not backward in telling funny stories. Once upon a time a preacher was staying in a family in which there was a petted daughter, who laid herself out to please the learned man by singing songs. He was thankful, and this so delighted the parents that they told him they had taught her to paint a little. "Of course," says the parents a little. "Of course," says the parents a little. "Of cause, "ask knows how to rub the parents (Cast) and delivered anywhere in two." they told him they had taught her to paint a little. "Of course," says the preacher, "she knows how to rub the shoulders and loins, and has learnt the art of shampooning." That conceited parents indignantly replied they had not fallen so, low as to let their daughter learn shampooning! The preacher then reads his audience a lecture on filial piety (the great Japanese virtue), in which they are told that the right path of a daughter-in-law and wife is to shampoo her parents-in-law and nurse them affectionatly. "The harp and guitar are very go, things," he says, "but if you train up your daughters in the manners and ways of singing-girls, they are sure to elope. What a ten million times miserable thing it is when parents make their little girls hug a great guitar, and squeak out songs in their shrill treble voices!" Some may think that the auther uses the Japanese as a stalking horse for his own purposes, but we assure them the above is the sentiment of the preacher quoted. However near to Us the Japanese may be in moral matters, they are sadly behind in esthestics.

A New RALLWAY PROJECT.—A delegation of the business men of Seaforth met Mr. Brydges on Friday last, by appointment, to make arrangements for the construction of a railroad line from Seaforth north to Wruxeter and Colper's Bay. Mr. Brydges net their views in the matter and a satisfactory arrangement was arrived at which will enable the promoters of this cheme to go on with the work immediately. The road to be completed to Wruxeter in one year.—Advertiser.
