Snub for the Kaiser.

The Catholic Herald publishes what it describes as "the fullest evidence yet available of the German plot to enrol Irish prisoners of war in a German-Irish brigade."

A corporal of the Royal Irish Regiment describes visits to the camp at Limburg by Sir Roger Casement and by an American priest in order to induce the Irish prisoners of war there to join the proposed brigade. The proposal was answered by a letter drafted and signed by the senior N.C.O.'s of different Irish battalions and sent to the German Emperor.

They said: We fully appreciate the kindness extended in (1) grouping us together under one roof; (2) assuring us of better food; (3) decreasing the amount of fatigue work to be done; but we must beseech his Imperial Majesty to withdraw these concessions unless they are shared by the remainder of prisoners, as in addition to being Irish Catholics we have the honour to be British soldiers.

The rules for the proposed brigade were that it was to be "formed solely for the purpose of fighting for Ireland and securing for her national independence." It was to be paid by the German Government, wear a "special distinctive Irish uniform" and have only Irish officers. "In the event of Germany gaining a big naval victory" the brigade is to be sent to Ireland, and if not to help to free Egypt from the "British yoke." When the war ended any member of the brigade who so desired it could be sent to America.

Commenting on these proposals recently, the Manchester Guardian said that the Kaiser had not read Mr. Kipling's "Mutiny of the Mavericks" or he might have scented a snub and held his hand.

The British Way.

Britain has the reputation of being slow to start and slow to stop when she has been fully aroused. It is sometimes profitable to know what our enemy thinks about us. M. Zolteln Ambrus, one of the most prominent Hungarian Publicists, in an article discussing the probabilities of an early peace, comes to the conclusion that peace, early or late, depends entirely on England.

He draws this conclusion from what he calls the "stubbornness and bulldog persistency of the English character." He says:

"The bulldog typifies the obstinacy in which the English have no rival and which demands our unwilling respect for them. We see that the Englishman—unlike the 'good business man' he is so persistently called—on seeing that his esteemed Ally is being slowly but surely defeated, instead of withdrawing from the struggle and making the best of it, will do his utmost to settle down for three or four years of war, and will work this bulldog obstinacy to crush his enemy in the end. When that end may be in no concern of his. He began the business and will see it through."

"Those people," M. Ambrus concludes, "who look forward for an early peace in the world with longish hearts must turn their eyes towards England hopelessly, for as long as the rays of peace are not originating from the two great islands in the west there is no hope for peace."

The Home in Japan.

The Japanese home is an excellent training ground for discipline. All must obey the Head, but he is bound also by custom and many religious regulations. The atmosphere is almost always one of kindness, gentleness, and good manners. Children are not allowed in Japan, to go to school until the March or September after they are six, but when that important event takes place they are already disciplined little human beings, with great respect for learning and some thirst for knowledge. They have already done some small share of the work of the home, they have been taught something of the history and literature and religion of their country, they are expert in manners, and are keen little patriots. All this education has been given them in their home. A true conception of a Japanese home is necessary for any clear knowledge of the Japanese nation, and explains many things, e.g. the fact that workhouses, old age pensions, school attendance officers, a cane in the schoolroom, and a truant school are unnecessary and inexplicable to the Japanese people.—E. P. Hughes, in "The Highway."

Asked for Prohibition.

Premier Murray promised a delegation of clergymen and laymen last night that his Government would give serious consideration to their request that the Nova Scotia Temperance Act be amended to provide prohibition for Halifax City. He agreed with the petitioners that the war presented a new phase of the question of licensed bars versus prohibition. Premier Murray was given an enthusiastic reception by the large number of delegates present. The members of the Government present were Premier Murray, Hon. O. T. Daniels, Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Hon. Geo. E. Faulkner, Hon. Jason M. Mack, and Hon. Robert M. MacGregor.

Those who spoke in favor of prohibition included the Rev. Manilton Wigle, Rev. L. J. Donaldson, Mrs. Frank Powers, J. T. Wilson, Rev. Clarence MacKinnon, Rev. H. R. Grant, Rev. W. I. Croft, Rev. Mr. Freeman, W. O. Creighton and Rev. Dr. Moore of Toronto.

City Solicitor F. H. Bell spoke of the difficulties of enforcing prohibition.

Mr. Bell stated that the temperance workers did not want a plebescite, so he would ask them to seriously consider how a Prohibition act could be enforced if it did not have the support of the people. The temperance advocates must bear in mind that many of them were not in favor of prohibition. He referred to Sydney, and stated that because of public opinion there liquor was almost openly sold, and the traffic was not as well regulated there as it was in Halifax. During the course of his remarks he was frequently interrupted and told to sit down.—Halifax Recorder, Nov. 17th.

Women's Wages On War Services.

A ledger clerk earning £2 a week joined the Army and was replaced by a girl at 17s. 6d., who did all the work. Another clerk at the same salary left two months later and was replaced by another girl at 17s. 6d., net result being that the firm, instead of paying £4 a week, paid 35s. Only one male ledger clerk is left, but he is very uneasy; but, characteristically not because the women are shamefully underpaid for doing identical work, but because he feels his tenure and the taking back of the other men as very insecure—the firm may wish to pursue these economical tactics. These girls were supplied to the firm by a well-known crammie establishment, and presumably advised to accept these conditions. But it is the same in the Civil Service—e.g., Post Office.—The Educational Times.

Declares America Honeycombed

WITH SPIES OF GERMANY.

Providence, R.I., Nov. 12.—The Providence Journal says to-day: "Dr. Joseph Gorlick, who has been a prominent official in the Austro-Hungarian consular service for fifteen years, and who resigned his office on December 20th of last year, made a statement to the Providence Journal in which he declares that the United States is honeycombed with German and Austrian spies working directly for Count von Bernstorff and Consul-General Von Nuber, and that every Austro-Hungarian consul in the country is the centre of a hot-bed of propaganda for the destruction of munition factories, for the creation of strikes among labor men working in such factories, and for every act of violence that is being committed here to-day, having these objects in view."
